Applications for Whisky

Permits to Be Rigidly

Inspected, Says Howell

Closest Scrutiny to Be Used to Prevent Repetition of Levin Case, State Dry Director Declares.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 21.

APPLICATIONS for whisky permits are to be more rigidly inspected in St. Louis and the State, and shipments into the city and State under such permits are to be under scrutiny, according to Missouri Prohibition Director Shradler P. Howell, as a result of disclosures in the case of Harry Levin, who obtained a wholesaler's permit to sell whisky for medicinal purposes in St. Louis and brought in a carload—1500 cases containing 12 quarts each—of alleged bootlegging purposes.

Levin, who is a Deputy Constable in Justice Miles' court, has a police record. The report of the investigation of Levin's application did not disclose this record, Howell says that if he had known the facts the permit would not have been issued.

The Levin whisky was brought in and scattered in storage places other than the one named in the permit without the knowledge of Prohibition Enforcement Officer Digges. The information which resulted in seizure of 581 cases came from other than official sources. This was because precautions had not been extended to notification of the St. Louis enforcement office of the time of arrival of whisky shipments. Howell says that hereafter such notification will be given.

Says Regulations Are Needed. Howell takes the blame for the Levin enterprise. His excuse for this and other failures of prohibition enforcement in Missouri is the rush of business which the permit department has had to handle and the need of perfecting the enforcement regulations as imperfections developed in practice.

His department, which has to do more particularly with the permissive features of the law, is now fairly caught up with its work, he says, and is ready to correct past mistakes and avert repetitions.

Persons who obtained permits in the early rush, when inspection was inadequate, are to be required to renew their applications, which will be subjected to a more searching investigation, with a view to weeding out any unscrupulous holders who may be found. Citations have been issued against 10 wholesalers in St. Louis and Kansas City who are under suspicion. Hearings will be held and if the suspensions are sustained the permits will be revoked.

Three Applications Rejected. Howell has recommended to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue the rejection of three other applications which are believed to be in furtherance of such an enterprise as was revealed in the Levin case.

He will recommend, also, that the wholesalers in the State be limited to about the number now operating under permits, which is about 50. He thinks additional permits should be issued only as the number is reduced by revocation or otherwise.

Jefferson D. Taylor, prohibition inspector for St. Louis, has stated that "Danny" Naughton, a clerk in the court of Justice Miles; Hugh M. Sweeney and John J. Golden, all well known in political circles, have applied for permits to deal in liquor for medicinal purposes.

"The procedure in the Levin case was the same as in all others," said Howell. "It was referred to an inspector for investigation and report. The report did not disclose any reason for rejecting the application. I did not know the man and did not know that he had a police record. If I had known the facts the permit would not have been issued. I take full responsibility. The system in my office had not been perfected to the point of preventing such an advantage as was taken of it. We have had to work toward the perfecting of our system by the discovery from time to time of loopholes and amendment of the regulations to stop them. The way to prevent permits being obtained for crooked purposes is to obtain more detailed information about the applicants. That will be done. I will not stand for crooked permits.

Legal Grounds Lacking. "In the rush of business which we had to handle at the beginning, with a new organization, some obtained permits who should not have had them. In some cases I have doubts, but I had no legal grounds on which to withhold the permits, and might not have been able to withstand Mandamus proceedings if I had done so. All such cases I am watching closely.

"In doubtful cases, in the early period, I felt that it was my duty to resolve the doubt in the applicant's favor because if I recommended adversely on his petition, on suspicion, I might be depriving an honest man of the opportunity to engage in a legitimate business, and I felt that I could afford to wait and watch.

"But my organization is now completed and I am prepared to have such thorough investigation done as will sustain or disprove any suspicions that I may have.

"I want to make the investigation so thorough that a permit to sell liquor in Missouri will be a certain-

Hyde Discusses His Views on Public Policy

Says State Has Suffered From Being Run by Peanut Politicians

Charges Corruption Controls Kansas City

Republican Nominee for Governor, Who Won Over Party Bosses by More Than 20,000, Declares for Budget System, Redistricting State and New Constitution.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 21.

ARTHUR M. HYDE of Trenton, Republican nominee for Governor, whose smashing defeat of the party bosses in St. Louis and Kansas City in the primary attracted unusual attention, particularly from the fact that he had no wide acquaintance built up through the holding of office, took time between many appointments here to discuss with a Post-Dispatch correspondent his views as the possible next Governor of Missouri on some of the Missouri problems.

At the time of the interview the full extent of Hyde's victory, that is, his exact majority, had not been ascertained, but it was known that he had been nominated by more than 20,000. In his campaign he had run up against practical politics as it is practiced by practical politicians in the two big cities of the State. He had defeated the bosses outright in Kansas City and he had brought them to their knees in St. Louis, where he received about 20,000 more votes than they had believed he could get. Under these circumstances it was probably natural that foremost in Hyde's thoughts was the influence of the boss in politics and the methods by which the boss can be eliminated.

Says "Peanut Politics" Is Everywhere in State Government.

"The trouble with Missouri," Hyde said in beginning the interview and with the vehemence of a crusader, "is peanut politics. It is everywhere in our State government.

"Peanut politics is politics for patronage only, instead of politics for public service. I expect, if elected Governor, to devote myself to politics for public service only.

"As I see it, the political situation in Missouri for a long, long time has been such that, primarily, each campaign has been a struggle for control of patronage. The Democratic party has relied upon an unfair gerrymander of the State for control of Congress and the State Senate, and for State patronage it has relied upon its control of elections in Kansas City. Any party which relies for its continuance in power, not upon the merit of its service, but upon a corrupt gerrymander, or upon crooked or stolen elections, has lost all incentive to public service and will be found, as the Democratic party in Missouri has demonstrated, playing peanut politics.

"Why, Frank Farris, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, openly charged—and I have never seen it denied—that there is on the State payroll a man in the position of attorney for the Public Service Commission, at a salary of $5000 a year, who does not devote 24 hours a year to the service of the State—that's peanut politics.

"I am told there are five editors of Democratic newspapers who are on the State payroll in positions as heads of commissions or secretaries of boards, who seldom go near the capital. They are in those jobs because they have party newspapers which the party, or those in control of the party machinery, believe are needed for party political purposes. That is peanut politics. I shall insist upon a dollar's worth of service rendered to the State for every dollar of taxes paid out by the State.

"The first duty of a Governor is public service, and he can compel public service if he will. There is no doubt, not the shadow of a doubt, about that. It is his duty to insure fair selections, so that both parties will have to depend upon the merit of their programs, and on their performance, rather than upon control of the police and election commissioners.

"Another duty is to redistrict the State so fairly that there can be a genuine expression of the will of the voters in every election and for every office. By a fair redistricting, I mean not one which will give the Republican party an advantage, but one fair and square to all parties.

"Districting Keeps Democrats in Control of State Senate."

"Do you realize, do the people of Missouri realize, that under the present senatorial districting in Missouri, the Republican party can carry Missouri by 50,000 or 60,000 and still fail to obtain a majority of the members of the State Senate? Do they realize that this is accomplished by grouping together in six or seven senatorial districts the counties in which the larger part of the Republican vote is, and in spreading the other 27 or 28 districts over a large number of counties in which the Democratic vote lies, and that the population of the few Republican districts is almost as large as that of all the Democratic districts? Is that fair? Can that be called representative government? Yet that is the way the Democratic party has maintained its control of the Missouri State Senate for many, many years.

"The root of the whole trouble lies in the prirepresentative government? Yet that is the way the Democratic party has maintained its control of the Missouri State Senate for many, many years.

"I realize that under the present districting there is little probability that the Republicans can elect enough Senators to obtain a majority in the next Senate, and I am satisfied that unless we have a majority we are not going to be able to get a fair redistricting bill passed. It has been tried in other Legislatures in which the Democrats had control of the Senate.

"But, fortunately, we do not have to rely upon the Legislature. The Constitution says that if the 1921 Legislature does not redistrict the State, the Governor, the Attorney-General and the Secretary of State shall do it. I believe all three of those officers are going to be Republicans after Jan. 1, and if they are there will be a fair redistricting. By a fair redistricting, as I said, I do not mean a gerrymander which shall strangle the voice of Democratic sentiment, but a districting that is really fair, and through which can be expressed the proportional strength of both parties.

Points to Evils in Trading Done in Primary Campaign.

"The partnership between crooked politics and crime, masquerading in Kansas City under the label of the Democratic party, has become a State and national disgrace. Intrenched by control of national, State and city officials, most of whom were their official positions to this corrupt political machine, the so-called Democratic party in Kansas City protects crime and criminals, and on election days resorts to 'ghost' votes, padded registrations and to organized gangs of thugs and repeaters, who intimidate voters and steal the election to perpetuate the power of the machine.

"This is not only Kansas City's problem. It is a State problem. Since the control of the police and election machinery of the city is vested in the Governor of Missouri through his power to control the police and election commissioners, Kansas City has the right to call upon the people of the State for redress of the frightful conditions to which she is prey. And since both city and State elections have been not only influenced, but actually turned upon the results of stolen elections in Kansas City, every Missourian who believes in true representative government or in clean politics owes a duty to Kansas City and to the nation to see that a State administration is elected which will insist upon an honest election as well in Kansas City as elsewhere throughout the State.

"This is a problem for the people of Missouri. The 5000 or more votes which have been stolen and can be stolen again unless there is a change in conditions are so-called machine votes and can nullify the votes of hundreds of thousands of those out in the State who have voted their convictions. Many a man has been elected to office by the stolen votes in Kansas City and some have been helped to nomination by them. It might easily happen, and I believe has happened, that 5000 stolen or fraudulent votes in Kansas City have nullified the votes of 380,000 voters in the State.

"The people of Missouri have a right to look to the Governor for relief from these conditions because he appoints the men under whose supervision elections are held. No relief ever can be obtained from a candidate who has bargained for the support of the machine which controls this stolen vote.

"The root of the whole trouble lies in the primary campaign. Under the pressure of his desire for election the candidate too often goes to the machine and in return for the machine support pledges to appoint men of the machine's selection as police and election commissioners, as well as to other important administrative offices. In other words, he trades to the machine a large part of the power of his office in order to get the office. If he is elected he finds that he has received the official title, the salary and the responsibility, but is powerless to do the things that ought to be done because he has traded away control of the officers through whom it must be done. That is peanut politics.

Good Roads Program, Betterment of Public Schools With More Pay for Teachers, Square Deal for Labor Among Other Things Advocated.

Has Made No Promise of Office or of Policy.

"I have made no such trades. No man in Missouri has been promised a job, the control of an office or of an administrative policy. No man will be. I am free if elected to use the power of the governorship to insure a square police force, an honest election and a fair deal for every Missourian.

"I expect to win, but if I had to trade away the power of the office in order to get it; if I had to accept the responsibility of the office without the power to do the things that fix responsibility, I would rather lose it. I would rather be beaten once in November than to be beaten 365 days a year for each year of the four-year term, whipped down to the carpet in shamed helplessness, because I had traded away the power of the office.

"This does not mean that I expect to play a lone hand or that I am not a loyal Republican. I believe in the principles of the Republican party. I believe in party organization, the closer and more cohesive the better. The party organization exists to represent the party and effectuate its will. The organization, if successful, will be consulted, and, subject only to the good of the public service, rewarded; but neither the organization nor the party is an end in itself. They are means to an end and that end is public service—the effectuation in administration policy and in the laws of the State of Republican principles for the genuine service of the highest welfare of the State.

"I have talked about election matters at considerable length because a fair election is the corner stone of American free institutions. I believe the people, when they vote for a man, expect him to exercise the power and accept the responsibility of the office. They do not intend by their votes that the candidate may draw the salary, leaving the power to be vested in a half-dozen unidentified and undisclosed individuals whose interest and intention are unknown to them.

"I am not in favor of the system of handing out paroles to murderers, pickpockets, highwaymen and all other manner of criminals just because a ward political boss in the city 'trons' for them with the Governor or the State Prison Board.

"I have been informed that there are hundreds of convicts in the Missouri Penitentiary, first offenders, young men who have not influential friends, who have nobody with sufficient influence to get them out of prison, though they are proper subjects for the exercise of the pardoning power. While they remain there, I am told, old criminals, men with long criminal records, men who probably should be in prison for life, are being released right along because some city politician has exercised his political 'pull' in their behalf.

New Management for Eleemosynary Institutions.

"That's wrong. It's inexcusable. It's repugnant to every idea of right and justice.

"A better way of handling that situation is for the name of every convict, as soon as he enters the penitentiary, to go onto a list as an applicant for a pardon, to go on the list automatically, and to be taken up for consideration in the order in which they appear on the list. No influence should be great enough to advance the name of one convict ahead of others on that list.

"An investigation of each case should be made. If a case deserves exercise of the pardoning power, a parole should be issued. If it does not, the parole should be denied. The parole should be on merit, of course, with a broad sympathy for all humankind. It should not be on politics.

"Political control of State charitable and corrective institutions has not proven to be a success. There must be developed a system of sel-

Ride in Pullman From Laredo to Mexico City Is No Longer Adventure, but It's Instructive

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 18.

THE story of Mexico as it is today is a good deal like a moving picture film—all changes. Therefore, a good place to begin relating my experiences and observations here seems to be at the beginning. In New York the project of crossing the border in May had borne a suggestion of adventure, but once in the bright little city of Laredo, with its pretty plaza and its Texas-hatted men, the sense of adventure and exploration died a timely death. They told me all I had to do to cross the border was to go across, which I accordingly did next morning by way of a pontoon bridge. Customs guards and sanitary inspectors proved anything but unfriendly.

The mythical through train to Mexico City was standing at the Nuevo Laredo station with steam up. Passengers in picturesque costumes and bearing strange picturesque handbags and armfuls and backfolds of luggage were crowding into the second and third class coaches. There was one sleeping car built on the Pullman model. An apparently Mexican sleeping car porter took charge of my traps in a suspiciously homelike way.

Standard Style Pullman Porter. I found out later his name was Charley, born near Cleveland, O., speaking the purest American south English and thirty-seven years south of the border—and I promptly found myself installed in the Puebla as master of Alta Diez, which means upper ten. "Sorry you ain't got a lower, Boss," said Charley, "but there sure is a powerful lot of Mexican gentlemen goin' back to the city these days. And a powerful lot of other ones comin' out. It's always that way after one of these revolutions."

The train was scheduled to start at 10:30 a. m. Mexican time, which is twenty-six minutes slower than our central. It got away at 11:30. There is a saying among foreigners in Mexico, that the only thing which starts on time is a bull fight.

The train was very full, and soon after we pulled out of Nuevo Laredo, I went out to the back platform. We were traveling across the Rio Grande bottom. The landscape was desert, chaparral, bunch-grass and cactus and there was nothing in it to indicate that one country had been left behind and another civilization entered. In fact, one has only to slide down the long hill from San Antonio to the trickle of salty water, which is the Rio Grande, and climb the other long hill up to Monterey, to begin to realize that the border, like most other international boundaries, is a purely political creation. Geologically, botanically, climatically, there is no perceptible difference between Southern Texas and Northeastern Mexico.

But between the peoples on the two sides of the imaginary lines, there is a difference wide as half a world, and a difference due wholly to the different sets of ideals and institutions under which they are born and live. The Mexicans, viewed that way, the few minutes' spin from Laredo across the bridge to Nuevo Laredo is quite as long a journey as going from New York to Cairo.

Exiles on the Return.

The train was content with a speed of 20 miles an hour, which gave me ample time to study both the country and my fellow passengers. The latter, with one exception, were Mexicans, mostly men, and also mostly men who, for five, or six, or seven years had been in exile and were, therefore, for the moment grown-up children, filled with the thrill of home-coming, and given to babble even to strangers. They made acquaintance with each other and exchanged their stories. One had been in New York, another in St. Louis, another in San Francisco. Several came from Los Angeles, and some from no further than San Antonio. But all had known what it means to be sundered sharply and inexorably from home and friends and possessions, and to sit and wait in the cities of an alien land as men without claimable country. Now half hopefully accepting the assurances of Obregon and Adolfo de la Huerta that the days of political persecution in Mexico were over, half cynically prepared to take their chances, they were home-bound.

"Maybe it will be all right for us," said one of them to me. "Maybe it won't be. Quien sabe? The only way to find out is to try it, so I'm home-bound." He interrupted himself, "But I see a man there whom I had heard was dead." An instant later he and the man who was not dead were exchanging back-breaking slaps as they embraced.

For another of the exiles the emotions of the day had proved too stiff to be borne without assistance. He had an uncorked bottle of brandy in the inside breast pocket of his coat, and every few moments he moistened his lips with the fluid. Then he would smack them and extend the bottle to the company.

"It is very good cognac," he would say. "Drink with me to the United States and to Mexico. One has sheltered me for six years, and the other is my mother. We are all friends now. Let us drink."

No one drank with him, but all treated him with understanding tolerance, and through the afternoon and evening he continued to take his brandy in half-teaspoonful sips till the bottle was empty, and he sank into merciful slumber. His slumber was the semblance of a very red full moon sparsely bearded. So I made my first acquaintance with the Mexican exile, and also with another typical product of the Carranza regime and the revolution. At my end of the car a family was domiciled, father, plump mother in black, equally plump daughter of 14 or 15, and a small little boy. Father was a heavy-faced, heavy-set, olive-skinned man of a kind of sissy dignity and prosperity, evidenced by the fact that he was wearing a suit of the most expensive clothing turned out by that firm of American ready-made tailors which most does advertise. The first few hours out I had noted that about him.

The Well-Armed Gentleman. Toward mid-afternoon we ran into the small replica of Death Valley which forms the approach to the foothills of the Mexican sierra. Leon. All vegetation vanished but cactus, and that fantastic tree or shrub which persists in branching and growing at every angle which remains without unhesitatingly pronounce fatal to stability. The heat became for a while terrific, and the gentleman in section 9 arose and shed his coat. As he did so he stood revealed as a walking arsenal. Two cartridge belts, each packing eight or 10 pounds of ammunition, were clasped about his stomach. At each hip hung a pistol holster, and from each holster, ready for instant action, protruded the butt of a piece of heavy personal artillery. His coat shed, the gentleman resumed his seat, gave his hip a twist to clear the contiguous holster from the arm of the car seat and without glancing around picked up the magazine he had momentarily discarded. Plumb never raised her eyes from the hands she kept clasped on her black clad knees; plump daughter remained absorbed in the piece of embroidery she was working and restless little boy sucked an orange.

That was my first sight of a Mexican General—next time I went to the back platform I learned he was a General on his way to the capital to press his claims for recognition as a pillar and prop of the new revolution—in his traveling togs. For a time his proximity revived the feeling of adventure which had been so strong in New York and had faded away at the border. But I finally got used to his wearing artillery in the midst of a peaceful sleeping car, or would have if he had only worn it. But as time wore on the general evidently found his armament hard and heavy. He hitched around uncomfortably inside his hardware shop and finally unbuckled one of his metres of cartridges and laid it with the holster and gun on the seat before him. It stayed there during the remaining daylight hours of the journey, and about half the time the restless little boy sat on the belt and played with the gun and holster. As the weapon pointed in my direction, it added nothing to my feeling of complete security in an alien country. But mother and sister seemed unperturbed, so I made no protest.

Way down into night. The wornout storage batteries of the Puebla were switched on and for a time gave a feeble illumination. But this struggle was too much for them, and as the lights flickered out, we all went to bed in our various uppers and lowers. No one was shot during the night and in the morning, four or five hours later, we trudged into the station at San Luis Potosi. And there we picked up another General of quite another type than my neighbor in section 9, and one who supplied us with abundant interest all the rest of the way to the city.

Another General Enters. He came aboard unheralded and unescorted, a lanky, undernourished, smallish man with an impressive dark face and cold black eyes, and Continued on Page Thirteen.

Weddings of Interest to Society Take Place Out of Town, and Some of Them Are Surprises—Several Engagements Announced During Week.

WEDDINGS to the east of us and weddings to the west of us, all of great interest to St. Louis, have been the absorbing topics of the past week to the small number of society people remaining in town this month. All except the Lionberger-Chase wedding came as a surprise to St. Louisans, no announcements having been made of the engagements.

The marriage of Miss Effie Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Bagnell of 12 Westmoreland place, and J. Huey Hughes of Dallas, took place Thursday at "Miramar," Santa Barbara. Mr. Hughes is the son of Mrs. Ashford Hughes of Dallas. He is an alumnus of Amherst College. Mr. and Mrs. Hughes have called for Honolulu, where they will spend their honeymoon.

Miss Carter Mulliken, daughter of Mrs. James N. Nolan of Washington, and Homer Winthrop Lockwood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Lockwood of Washington, were married Aug. 7, in the Episcopal Church at Nantucket, Mass., where the bride's mother and Mr. Nolan have a summer home. Mrs. Lockwood made her debut in St. Louis last winter when she and her mother, who was Miss Sallie O'Fallon of St. Louis, were guests at the Westmoreland Hotel for several months.

Mr. and Mrs. Lockwood are now visiting the former's parents at their summer home at Magnolia, Mass. They will reside in Washington. The wedding of Miss Anne Leverett Chase, daughter of Mrs. Henry Leverett Chase of 5836 Clemens avenue, to John S. Lionberger, son of Isaac H. Lionberger of 31 Westmoreland place, took place Thursday in Saundertown, R. I. The bridal party included several St. Louisans, and many relatives and friends who are spending the summer in the East attended the ceremony. An informal reception on the lawn at "The Willows," Mrs. Chase's summer home at Saundertown, followed the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Lionberger will spend their honeymoon in Europe.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Hazeltine Wetmore and Paul Allen Ebbs was solemnized Aug. 11 at Travers City, Mich., in the presence of the bride's family and St. Louis friends who were at nearby Michigan resorts. Mrs. Ebbs is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Hazeltine Wetmore of 6633 Kingsbury boulevard. She was graduated in June from the Visitation Convent. Mr. Ebbs is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Ebbs of 6130 Pershing avenue. He was educated at the University of Wisconsin. The couple are spending their honeymoon in Michigan, and will be at home early in September temporarily at the Washington Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Wight of 501 Clara avenue returned last week from New Orleans where they attended the marriage of Mr. Wight's sister, Miss Pearl Wight, and George Summers Burman of New Orleans, which was solemnized Aug. 9. The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Wight of New Orleans, and is prominent in social and philanthropic circles in New Orleans. Mr. Burman is the son of

TURKISH HAREMS HIT BY HIGH LIVING COST

Few Men Now Able to Keep Many Wives—Women Find It Hard to Get Work.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 21.—Nowhere has the high cost of living been felt more keenly than in Turkish harems. Men who were formerly able to maintain many wives and concubines find their incomes insufficient to keep up large establishments, and are forced to turn some of the women adrift.

American women relief workers who have been investigating social and economic conditions say the tragedies of Turkish women have undergone as a result of the war as even worse than in other European countries because of the utter helplessness of women and their lack of training which might make them self-supporting.

The sufferings of Moslem women are worse in cities than in the country, for the country women are frequently trained to do farmwork and are an asset to their husbands rather than a liability. Furthermore, the economic conditions have not been disturbed so seriously in rural districts. Farming goes on much as usual. Women can find employment in olive groves, at silk culture, in fruit orchards and even in grain fields.

Since the war has robbed so many women of their husbands, fathers or other male relatives upon whom they were dependent, many city women have forced themselves into employment which was never before regarded as proper for Moslem women. Turkish women with their veils thrown back from their faces may now be seen as saleswomen in scores of Constantinople shops. They are even employed as street sweepers.

There has been a great outcry against Moslem women accepting employment which forces them into association with men, especially Christian men, but the economic pressure has been so strong that religious prejudices had to make way. The need for nurses with the army gave Moslem women their first opportunity to get hospital training and become nurses. That was the entering wedge which has opened the way into other employments monopolized by Greek and Armenian women. Turkish women may now be found in telephone exchanges. They are acting as cashiers, janitors and even street car conductors.

Stern necessity has won for Turkish women an independence which was undreamed of six years ago, and the wall of the untrained women forced to earn their livelihood has aroused Turkish leaders to a realization of the necessity for better and more practical education for women.

FRENCH IN MUDDLE OVER U. S. WAR GOODS

Shipment Taken Back After Being Sold to Ukrainians Causes Much Trouble.

By the Associated Press. PARIS, Aug. 21.—A job lot of American war stocks sold to a Ukrainian co-operative society last spring for $6,000,000, and later taken back by the American authorities, has caused the French War Department almost as much trouble as the liquidation of the remainder, which sold for $850,000,000.

One part of the stocks is today warehoused at Langres, France, where the French courts have undertaken to determine their actual ownership. Another part is warehoused at Marseilles in the name of the Ukrainian society and cannot be touched though up to this time any disposal or departure of the stocks has been prevented.

The largest part of the stocks, warehoused at Bordeaux, was ransacked by the Ukrainians for choice bits, and later by thieves, but the remainder has just been recovered by the American authorities and sold to the Jugo-Slav and Czechoslovakian governments.

The only boat that managed to sail with a cargo of the stocks was turned back in May by an American destroyer after it had left Constantinople, and the cargo was later disposed of there, little money remaining after the freight charges had been repaid to the Ukrainians. The stocks, consisting largely of clothing and medicines, were sold on the understanding that they would be used for the commission which was then in France, accepted in payment notes guaranteed by the Ukrainian government of that period. Some months afterward it was discovered that the agents of the co-operative society were peddling the stocks about France and the commission decided to take them over.

Baseball Blinds Salina Man's Eye. SALINA, Kan.—A batted ball struck August Nelson, 58 years old, in the eye, bursting the eyeball, which dropped into the old man's hand. He was passing a town lot ball game when the accident happened. It is said his recovery is doubtful.

1120-22 OLIVE ST. 3702 N. GRAND AV.

APPLICATIONS FOR WHISKY PERMITS TO BE INSPECTED RIGIDLY, HOWELL SAYS

must obtain permits to buy from wholesalers.

"The system of checks is perfect. When the wholesaler is checked on he must have on hand the amount he has been permitted to purchase from the distiller, less the amounts withdrawn in under permits issued to retailers. Sooner or later every crooked transaction is bound to be revealed. Revolution of permit, forfeiture of bond and criminal prosecution may follow.

"Heretofore our system has not included notification of the enforcement officers at point of destination of a shipment, to enable them to check on its arrival and prevent its diversion to unsanctioned uses.

"Under permits issued to Levin and Morris Multin advantage was taken of the opportunity to make a quick and large profit, in spite of the certainty of ultimate discovery and bond forfeiture and prosecution. But that defect in our system has been corrected. Hereafter enforcement officers will know when a shipment arrives and will be able to prevent its illegal use.

"These are the only two who are alleged to have violated the law in this way. Both were stopped before the transaction had been completed."

The capital is understood to have been furnished by a syndicate. The forfeited bond was counted as part of the first cost of the liquor. The permit holder, who alone is subject to prosecution, is presumed to count upon political pull to get him out of the scrape or to be willing to incur imprisonment for the sake of the gain.

Howell declined to name the inspectors whose reports were of such favorable character that the issuance of the permits followed.

'FAT' LEVIN'S POLICE RECORD INCLUDES ONE KILLING HERE

HARRY LEVIN, deputy constable in the court of Justice of the Peace "Jimmy" Miles, who obtained 1500 cases of whiskey from a bonded warehouse in Owensboro, Ky., is known to the police as "Fat" Levin and has a police record which includes one killing, but the major portion of which is in connection with gambling. In all of arrests shown in the records the notation appears at the end, "discharged."

On November 7, 1913, Levin shot and killed Fred Hesse, 30 years old, of 3012 North Newstead avenue, a mechanic.

The night before Hesse had complained to the police that he had been beaten by a gang at Broadway and Carr street. He said one of the men was Levin. Levin claimed self-defense.

On Sept. 18, 1917, police raided an alleged handbook at Thirteenth and Benton streets, and took charge of a safe and had it hauled to former Chief of Detectives Allender's office.

At 9 o'clock that night Levin accompanied by "Danny" Naughton, former clerk in the House of Delegates, and others, appeared at Police Headquarters, Levin claiming to have a writ of replevin. Levin got on top of the safe and defied detectives to remove him, but was finally ejected.

He returned the following night, and was arrested. The safe was found to contain $278.55, four pairs of dice and 23 tabs of racing bets.

On July 27, 1918, Levin and 33 others were arrested at 1:40 a. m. in a room over the court of Justice Miles, 1317A North Broadway.

The police reported finding a billiard table fixed as a craps table, money bags and crapper's sticks, and $490. All were discharged, both the Circuit Attorney and Prosecuting Attorney having refused to issue warrants.

On Sept. 12, 1918, 1201 North Broadway was raided and eight men arrested, including Levin. Warrants were refused in this case also.

On Aug. 31, 1919, the police raided the Fifth Ward Democratic Club, 421 Franklin avenue, after they had battered down two doors to get in. Levin with 33 others was arrested. The men were discharged on their bonds, Sept. 2, in the Court of Criminal Correction, warrants having been refused.

Among some of the reasons given for the increase are that there are more men at home and fewer of them in khaki, more policemen and those less overworked available for street duty, more hours for drinking and stronger liquor.

ART MODELS SCARCE IN JAPAN

Painting Endangered Because Girls Refuse to Pose in Nude.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.

TOKIO, July 24.—Modern Japanese art is endangered by lack of models. An unusual gathering of 90 girl models and most of the prominent sculptors and painters was held to try to solve the question of the demand for girls to pose. The Art School advertised and received only seven answers. Of these seven applicants only four were willing to pose in the nude, and none of them remained very long. They receive a salary ranging from $23 to $50 a month, and are expected to do two or three two-hours sittings a day.

SMITH-REIS

REPUBLICAN NOMINEE FOR GOVERNORSHIP GIVES VIEWS ON STATE ISSUES

entire management for the State. It is not only efficiency and economy, but will not neglect the humanitarian object of those institutions. It is the moral obligation which rests upon the State to care for the unfortunate and the defective, and to correct and educate the wayward.

"To get on to other questions, I am in favor of a State budget system, and it should be put into effect just as early as possible. It will mean economy in government and greater returns for the money expended. It seems to me that multiplication of the means of economy is much more desirable than multiplication of the kinds and varieties of taxation.

"I suppose there are few people who do not feel the disgrace which is Missouri's because of the unenviable rating which Missouri's schools have, and I suppose virtually everybody is in favor of improving the schools to the utmost.

"The Missouri schools are rated thirty-fourth among all the States and the five possessions. The fact that they have such a low rating when Missouri is fifth in area, population and wealth is another evidence of present mismanagement. I shall be satisfied until the Missouri schools are as good as the best in the United States, and the boys and girls of any other State.

"The teachers are underpaid. Salaries should be increased and the teaching profession recognized as one of great dignity and of the highest public service.

"I am in favor of a new Constitution as soon as a fair representation in the Constitutional convention can be insured. The need for a new Constitution is great. Many changes needed in Missouri law are dependent upon first changing the Constitution. I very greatly hope that the plan of the New Constitution Association can be worked out, fair representation provided and a new Constitution speedily adopted.

"I am a firm believer in good roads. The growth and progress of the State depends in a great measure upon having an extensive system of all-the-year-round highways. It has been demonstrated that the standard of living is higher and the percentage of illiteracy is lower along a good road than along a bad one. The question of just what kind of a law is needed requires the closest study—a more detailed study than I have so far had time to give it.

"With the information I have at hand I would hesitate to either criticize or approve the present road law, but I am of the opinion that good roads is more a question of the personnel of the Highway Commission and of creating a sentiment for good roads than it is a question of the kind of a law. The work of education along this line should be continued.

Fair Hearing and Square Deal for Labor

"My attitude toward labor questions was expressed in my first utterance in this campaign: To give to every Missourian, regardless of creed, race or class, so be it only that he is a loyal American, a fair hearing and a square deal. Industry and commerce are not an end in themselves. They exist as a means of promoting that welfare. Labor, whether of brain or hand, is a service and not a commodity. Capital and management are likewise services, without which the operation of industry must cease. Each must recognize the fact that they are not properly antagonistic, but co-servants in a great public service, and their private quarrels must be settled, in those few cases in which the State must intervene, on the basis of absolute fairness and justice, having always in mind the welfare of the people of the State whom they both serve. To each must be granted the right of bargaining collectively, either directly or by representatives of their own choosing; and each is entitled as a reward for their service to such a share of the fruits of their industry as each severally earns, the risk of the business, the risk of the occupation and the value of the service being considered.

"I favor the prohibition of child labor and feel that the future of America demands that the children of the State be given full opportunity for education, both general and vocational. I favor the extension of the free public employment agency and the adoption of the so-called 'humanitarian' legislation which has for its object the protection and preservation of the lives, the safety and the health of the men employed in industry and commerce."

Sketch of the Candidate's History.

In the nomination of Hyde the Republicans really went into private life to find a candidate. Not that he has not been active in politics, because he has, but he never has held public office, unless Mayor of a small town could be considered public office.

In stature he is of slight build, but he has a dynamic force in expressing his thoughts, a quickness of action and a decisiveness which gives him the appearance of a much more robust person.

Hyde is 43 years old. He was born in Princeton, Mo., where his father, Ira B. Hyde, has practiced law for many years. Hyde's mother died when he was 8 years old, and he lived for four years, until his father married again, with an aunt on a farm in Ohio. He was educated in the public schools in Princeton, and after graduating from the high school attended Oberlin Academy in Ohio, where his father and mother had studied. He received his classical education at the University of Michigan and his law education at the University of Iowa. He was admitted to the bar in 1900 and practiced law with his father in Princeton from that time until 1915.

Moving to Trenton in 1915, Hyde formed a law partnership with Samuel Hill, which was severed when Judge Hill's health failed and he was forced to go to California. Hyde still maintains his law office, though he does little except keep up an office practice. He devotes the major part of his time to an automobile sales agency covering a number of North-western Missouri counties and which has been very profitable to him.

Hyde's political career dates from 1912 when he led the Roosevelt forces in North Missouri. He has described his experiences by saying: "I got a worm's eye view of every stream roller operated that year." He was the Progressive nominee for Attorney-General of Missouri in 1912, but refused to go on the Progressive ticket for Governor in 1916. In that year he put in eight weeks of campaigning for Judge Henry Lamm, the Republican nominee for Governor.

His popularity at home may be judged by the fact that out of the 998 votes cast in Trenton in the Republican primary for Governor he received 919.

Hyde was married in 1904 to Miss Hortense Cullers, who lived between Trenton and Princeton. They have one child, a daughter, Caroline, 8 years old.

man as he has been painted. But he was an ominous look, and from the moment his incoherent words pierced we could no more relax from the watchfulness of his coming and going than we could have for gotten a can of nitroglycerin. If one had been rolling loose up and down the aisle. Considering the nature of his errand down to Mexico, he was too impulsive to be comfortable and too obviously unarmed to be considered true. His coat was open, and he was not wearing even a cartridge belt.

I must say for Rudolfo that he behaved very well. Only once did he give us a thrill. A poker game had broken out in one of the middle sections. Gen. Herrero sat into it, also my neighbor, the General from section 9. All at once Herrero leaped forward, dropping one lean brown hand on the little heap of gold pieces in the middle of the table, holding his smoldering cigarette in the other. His coal-black eyes looked impressively at the man diagonally across. "A mistake?" he asked. "I see you have six cards." All up and down the aisle necks were craned toward that middle section, and never have I heard explanations and apologies come thicker than those that crowded the next minute.

Herrero received them with an impassive stare, and the game proceeded. But after a few more hands the General with the pump wife and two children excused himself from further participation, came back to his section and sat down. His second hand belt with the pistol and holster had again been serving as a plaything for the restless little boy. With a glance over his shoulder to see he was not observed, the General picked up his magazine, and from that time on let the soothing influence of letters efface from his mind the sharper and more hazardous delights of gaming.

Food Only From Vendors. Such was the life inside the car which brought me into Mexico six weeks ago. It did not lack novelty and interest. Besides that, there was the country to study. Every 20 or 30 kilometers we made a longer or shorter stop at a station, and at every stop there was an instant exodus of travelers looking for something to eat, which met and made human whirlpools with a crowd of vendors eager to sell various stomach fillers. We of the Puebla fed in more or less state on connections which old Charley dug out of tin cans and warmed up in his little cabin of a kitchen, but for first and second and third class passengers no such provision was made. These wayside platforms were their restaurants, and the amount of fruit, beer, milk, lemonade, tamales wrapped in corn husks, leather tortillas, segments of fried chicken, cuts of haunches of lamb and pork served smoking hot from charcoal braziers, which they bought and began consuming as the train moved on, was enormous.

Arrival at Mexico City. On a long, dimly lighted station platform, slopped with rain and swept with a dank mountain wind, swarms of porters were waiting and there our little company broke up. Off into the night went Gen. Rudolfo Herrero, alone and ominous; went my fat General with his hardware and his wife and children, come down to the capital to press his claims as a pillar and prop of the new revolution; went the various little clumps of returned exiles, half cynical, half hopeful.

Then a porter, muffled in a startling red blanket, took charge of my own luggage and guided me down the platform and through a corridor to a taxicab. As we left the station inclosure a pair of gendarmes halted us, noted the license number of the vehicle, the fact that it carried a single passenger, American, and that its destination was a certain hotel, then waved us to proceed. I learned next day that this procedure resulted not from any Germanic thoroughness in registering arrivals in the capital, but from the fact that the police were having trouble with a group of taxicab chauffeur bandits who had a pleasant way at night of picking up fares unacquainted with the city, running them off to secluded spots, and there, after shooting them or knocking them on the head, going through their belongings.

Escaping such a fate, I was whisked and skidded for 10 minutes through streets that looked very spacious in the dimness and reached the hotel. In spite of a wire asking for reservations, there was no room for me. There were so many Generals in town, they said, but I might sleep in the Turkish bath if I wished to.

A Night in the Turkish Bath. So in the cubicle, on a hard-leather couch, under a blanket that kept continually slipping off, I passed my first part of a night in Mexico City, while on the floor above my uneasy head Generals who had been pillars and props of the new revolution, slept on horsehair and feathers, and I have little doubt dreamed dreams that their various claims for recognition had budded and flowered and borne appropriate fruit.

Before I slept I had one satisfaction. Into the cubicle next to mine was ushered the General who had been tenant of section 9 in the "Puebla." I heard his harness creak and his artillery clank as he parked himself for the night.

AMERICAN WOMAN, HELD BY BOLSHIEVSKI 8 WEEKS, FREED

Mrs. M. R. Warren, Author, Arrives in Constantinople From City of Baku.

By the Associated Press.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 21.—Mrs. Maude Radford Warren, American author, has arrived in Constantinople after being detained for 8 weeks by the Bolshieviki at Baku.

Mrs. Warren reached Baku by steamer from Persia the day the Russian Bolshieviki took the city over from the Azerbaidjanees. She was not imprisoned but was kept under surveillance and denied permission to take the train for Batoum until all information she had about the Bolshieviki military movements was old and the Moscow crowd had thoroughly entrenched itself and defeated Tartar opposition at Elizavopol and other points where there was bitter feeling against the new carpetbag government.

The only Americans now in Baku so far as American officials know, are Mr. and Mrs. S. Spoer, J. C. Smith, A. G. Telford, C. A. Casher and J. K. Graham. Practically all these remained in Baku of their own volition for business reasons when the other Americans moved out under the direction of Charles H. Moser, the American commissioner at Tiflis.

Letvonian Government Overthrown. BERLIN, Aug. 21.—The Letvonian Government, headed by Karl Ulmanis, has been overthrown and has been succeeded by a Cabinet comprising members of the left Radical party, according to a rumor from Riga published by the National Zeitung.

AMERICA TO JOIN
TO JENNY LIND

Hundredth Anniversary of Birth of Swedish Nightingale to Be Celebrated in New York Oct. 6.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—America will pay tribute to Jenny Lind on Oct. 6, the 100th anniversary of the birth of the Swedish nightingale, whom P. T. Barnum brought to this country in 1850 on her spectacular concert tour of nearly two years. The centennial is to be commemorated throughout the music-loving world. In Sweden, in England and in other countries where she sang, fitting plans are under way to honor the greatest singer of her time—the fine, noble-hearted woman, whose charity was as rare as her art.

Her admirers in New York City will give an historical concert—reproduce the first concert Jenny Lind gave in this country, bringing back the stage picture and atmosphere of that memorable night of Sept. 11, 1850. The same program will be given. The proceeds of the concert will be given to the same charitable institutions to which Jenny Lind gave the proceeds of the original concert.

Frieda Hempel will appear in the role of her famous predecessor. She will wear an exact copy of the gown worn by the nineteenth century diva, will sing the same arias, and play her own accompaniments to the same group of songs on the same piano Jenny Lind played them—a piano autographed by the Swedish Nightingale on the night of her debut.

Concert in Carnegie Hall. The centennial concert will be given in Carnegie Hall on the evening of Oct. 6. Castle Garden, the scene of Jenny Lind's first American triumph, has been transformed into the Aquarium and thus is deprived of the honor of housing another memorable audience.

It is contemplated to hold a centennial exhibit, however, in the old circular building in Battery Park from Oct. 1 to Oct. 10. Many of Jenny Lind's personal belongings and interesting relics associated with her tour here will be shown. The old concert grand piano will have its place of honor.

On the afternoon of Oct. 6, the park commissioners of New York City will present to the Aquarium a marble bust of Jenny Lind and a portrait of the famous singer, both made for her when she was in this country.

Other American cities where Jenny Lind sang are arranging to celebrate the day.

Jenny Lind was born in Stockholm of humble parents. She sang from childhood and famous teachers became interested in her. At 12, her voice entirely failed. Four years later it came back and her remarkable career began. Her first operatic role was Alice in Meyerbeer's "Robert le Diable." Having been acclaimed in her own country and in Norway, she carried her conquests to the continent and to England.

Barnum arranged for the most talked-of person in public life in all Europe when Barnum, without having seen or heard her, persuaded her to make a tour of the United States. No sooner was the contract signed than the new impresario, according to his autobiography, "began to prepare the public mind for the reception of the great songstress."

The steamer Atlantic that brought her to this country was saluted at Sandy Hook and again as she plowed up the Narrows. Forty thousand people assembled at the landing and on the surrounding piers to greet her. Triumphant arches marked her pathway. Crowds surged around her hotel and clamored for her appearance. Auctions for the sale of tickets brought thousands of buyers. Genin, a hatter—"a mad hatter" they called him—paid $225 for the first New York ticket. His unheard-of extravagance made him famous. The highest price paid for a single ticket was in Providence, where the bit of pasteboard was knocked down to Col. Ross for $650.

The Nightingale gave about 135 concerts in this country—more than 35 in New York City. Everywhere audiences fought to gain entrance to the concert halls. Everywhere they stormed her with applause, and everywhere admirers and charity seekers besieged her. Extra concerts had to be given to satisfy the throngs, and Jenny Lind herself added more extra concerts for charity.

People prominent in public life paid her great honors. Mayors and Governors presented their compliments in person.

Married Pianist in Boston. Jenny Lind broke her contract with Barnum with 55 concerts yet to sing, but the great showman and the Nightingale parted friends. While visiting in Boston she was married to Otto Goldschmidt, composer and pianist, and shortly thereafter returned to Europe. In 1858 she took up her residence in England, where she died in 1887.

There is no record of Jenny Lind's voice. But the journals of her time, the few living people who heard her and those to whom the memory has been handed down all tell the same story—"It was wonderful!"

A Carload of Players and no place to put them

A carload of NEW Player-Pianos have just arrived from the well-known H. C. BAY FACTORIES at Bluffton, Indiana. We are in the midst of remodeling and we're already crowded for room. We cannot safely store them on any of the upper floors, and only at great inconvenience have we been able to place them on the main floor for the length of time necessary to dispose of them.

Remember, these Players are manufactured by the H. C. BAY COMPANY. They are absolutely new, fresh from the factory. Eighteen Players comprise this carload. They are finished in mahogany, walnut and oak, both polished and dull. Full 88-note keyboard. Transposing device. Here are 18 wonderful Pianos and 18 wonderful bargains at the price we have placed upon them.

In Order to Move Them Quickly We Will Put Them on Sale This Week at

Our price on these fine Players is $100 lower than the price at which Pianos of the same value are being sold elsewhere in St. Louis. Come in and see them, and give us the opportunity of proving this statement. The Wurlitzer Guarantee—a guarantee backed by a $5,000,000 Company—is back of every Piano.

The local piano man who is up on P. T. Barnum sayings about the "American public wishing to be humbugged" must believe in P. T.'s logic, when you consider the fact that we sell these new players manufactured by the H. C. Bay Company for $495.00. Further conclusive evidence that he does believe in such philosophy will be given by our manager upon request.

There are still some bargains in used Player-Pianos at from $295 to $395

Lieut. William B. Robertson, 4305 Argyle place, a former army flier, will perform circus stunts at an altitude of 2500 feet, and Leroy Burns of Skelton, Mo., will jump, with the aid of a parachute, from an airplane at a height of 5000 feet.

Fire Does $5000 Damage.

Fire starting in a pile of shavings adjoining the engine room at the plant of the Lothman Cypress Co., foot of Angelica street, at 5 a. m. yesterday, caused two alarms to be sent in by the Fire Department, which saved the other buildings and lumber piles. The damage was estimated at $5000, mainly to the shavings and engine room.

Contributions to the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund since the last acknowledgment have brought the fund to $3908.49, nearly $100 short of the $4000 mark. Only a little more than one week of August remains, and $3000 of the needed fund is still to be raised between now and October 1. The money must be raised too, if the expenses of the babies' relief campaign are to be met.

A show at the Bircher School, Bircher and Davidson avenues, under the management of Miss Florence Piel, netted $34.70 for the babies. Dave Burch was pianist and the following children participated: Margaret Ritch, John Hayden, John Piel, Fred and Gertrude Stienmetz, Ruby and Gertrude Klier, Lucille Cronin, Alma Jones and Irene Dillon.

Children on the 5600 block of Kennerly avenue, under the directorship of Miss Margaret O'Connell, 5626 Kennerly avenue, gave a show, followed by a sale of lemonade and root beer, and earned $18 for the fund. The children are Edith and Louise Renshaw, Loretta Watson, Myrtle and Marie Wallace, Margaret DuBois, Margaret O'Brien and Mildred Moeller.

Busy and Profitable Bazar.

One of the busiest bazars of the season was conducted at 2323 West Pine boulevard the evening of August 14. The youngsters in charge disposed of various articles and earned $16.50 for the Milk and Ice Fund. Lydia Pearson, Hal Rice and Burton Haun were the workers and tiny Peggy Lou Baker, enthusiastic as any of her older playmates, took charge of the cash box during the evening at intervals, displaying a noteworthy spirit of interest in the benefit for the babies.

Fannie and Emanuel Jackaway, 1941 Burd avenue, who have been faithful friends of poor babies for many seasons, conducted a show, with the assistance of some of their playmates, and earned $9.85. They were aided by Jack and Arthur Greenburg, Clementine James, Joe and Jake Pitchilia and Bernice Rader.

Three children sold lemonade at the corner of Clay avenue and John street, and cleared $6 for the fund. They are Ruth Solberg, Imelda Gilmore and Bernard Riley.

Another lemonade stand of the past week was conducted by Helen Bensinger, 4211 Lafayette avenue, in front of her home. It netted $3.

Five Girls Give Show.

Five girls on the 5500 block of Etzel avenue presented a show which made $3. The girls' names follow: Mary Margaret Donovan, Roma Louise and Betty Landess, Mary Lindell Chase and Rosetta Tyner.

An addition of 75 cents was made by Mr. Neville to the returns from the show given early in the summer by the Neville School of Dancing, which formerly was at 3603A Palm street, but is now at 2702 St. Louis avenue. This brings the returns from the show to $94.50.

A partial return for a show given at 1249 Aubert avenue was made by Dorris Dunbar of that address, who turned in 64 cents. Jean Applegate, 1256A Aubert avenue, reported 58 cents which does not appear in today's contribution list, but will be included in Monday's total. Hazel Dunbar and Bessie Grosberg assisted with the show.

Billy Sanford conducted a lemonade stand at the Albany Hotel, and earned $1.18 for the fund.

Several cash contributions were received: H. D. L. sent $1 "in memory of baby;" Rosemary and Gertrude Little, 4948 Reber place, gave $2; $2 was received from "H. W.," $2 from "Friend," and "Cash" made a donation of $1.

Eastern Bank Robbers Got $5000.

PORTLAND, Conn., Aug. 21.—Four men with revolvers appeared suddenly in the Portland National Bank today, drove the cashier into the bank vault and closed the door. They then scooped up about $5000 in bills and left in an automobile.

MAN SUING FOR DIVORCE SAYS WIFE USED Y. W. C. A. FOR ALIBI

Alleges She Went Automobiling With Other Men and Told Him She Was Playing Basket Ball.

A divorce suit was filed yesterday by Gustav Wamsanz, proprietor of the Union Candy Co., 215 Chestnut street, against Mrs. Melvia Jane Wamsanz of the Buckingham Hotel, alleging that she has an ungovernable temper and that she associated with other men.

He avers that she would leave home and explain to him later she had been playing basket ball or swimming at the Young Women's Christian Association. The petition further sets forth that she went out automobiling with men other than her husband. They were married in Chicago, July 25, 1919, and separated Aug. 5, last. Mrs. Wamsanz entered her appearance in the case and filed an answer, denying her husband's charges. She declined to discuss the suit.

PECK NOW CHARGED WITH EMBEZZLEMENT

New Information Against Broker Issued at Request of William Lageman.

Another information charging embezzlement was issued yesterday against Austin Peck, 25 years old, residing at the Maryland Hotel, member of the stock brokerage firm of Peck & Co., Merchants-Laclede building, following his surrender to the police last Wednesday, when he furnished a $2500 bond in anticipation of a formal charge of embezzlement by bailer which was made by the Circuit's Attorney's office Thursday.

The new charge against Peck alleges that he obtained $1200 in stocks and real estate from William Lageman, 3115 Alfred avenue, manager of the Model Laundry, 2907 Pine street. Lageman charges that Peck was to sell for him 200 shares of United Drilling and Development Co. stock, valued at $400, and an $800 equity in a lot in East St. Louis, and invest the proceeds in 300 shares of stock of the Dayton (Tenn.) Coal, Iron and Railway Co., which were to be resold within ten days at not less than $4.50 a share. Lageman asserts that Peck was to give him $1350, less a brokerage commission.

Though this transaction was begun early in June, Lageman declares that he has never been able to get his money, Peck always putting him off with a statement that the deal was not completed.

A temporary injunction was issued Friday by Circuit Judge Grimm to restrain Peck from disposing of stocks valued at $13,000 deposited with him for use as collateral by George Eilers, a grocer, of Gillespie, Ill., complainant in the information issued last Thursday against Peck.

In his injunction suit against Peck, Eilers charges that he deposited his stocks with the broker to be put up at St. Louis banks as collateral for the purchase of 5000 shares of the Dayton Coal, Iron and Railway stock, which was to be resold at different prices, each assuring a handsome profit, within 90 days. He charges that Peck did not obtain such a loan, and asks that the contract be rescinded and Peck ordered to return the stocks to him. He also wants Peck restrained from selling any of the stocks. The case was set by Judge Grimm for hearing Aug. 24.

"BROTHERS"

Is one of the stories in the great series of short stories by most popular authors of today

TWO of the short stories by great authors are being printed each week in the Post-Dispatch, one starting on Sunday and being continued on Monday and Tuesday. The other will start on Wednesday and be continued on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Each will have one or more illustrations drawn by noted magazine artists of the day.

The story that will follow "Brothers" is "Out of the Hand of the Terrible," by Arthur Train. It will begin in the Post-Dispatch next Wednesday.

The writers represented in this great series are George Barr McCutcheon, Ellis Parker Butler, Holman F. Day, Richard Washburn Child, Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews, George A. Chamberlain, E. Phillips Oppenheim, John Fleming Wilson, Fanny Healdy Lee, Frederick Orrin Bartlett, Henry C. Rowland, Lowell Otis Reese, Leonard Merrick, Elizabeth Jordan, Holworthy Hall, George Weston, Bruno Lanning, Manda Radford Warren, Eleanor Hallowell Abbott, Virginia E. Roe, Arthur Train, Dana Gatlin, Lucien Carey, Mary Synon, Jeanette Lee, Berta Euck, Will Payne and Zona Gale.

"There is not one in a thousand would have had the cleverness and the pluck. She fought for you, young man."

SISTER PERDITA was fond of bringing her convalescents about the county. She declared it was good for them. Perhaps she also thought it added to her own importance. Certainly she shone on these visits in a kind of reflected glory, for nearly all her boys—as she called them—had some wonderful story of achievement, to account for wounds, and even those who were merely recovering from a crash or illness had the glamor of heroic romance about them; were they not airmen?

Many nationalities were in the gay and halting company, for from the beginning of the war the imperial air service had drawn to itself adventurous spirits from all parts of the globe.

Sister Perdita was a favorite. She was elderly and foolish, but she was the soul of good nature. The "boys" called her a jolly old bird; and if they laughed at her, if they were even wearied by or irritated with her irrepressible vitality when their own was at a low ebb, they were always ready to recognize her kind intention.

When, therefore, on this bitter November day, with an east wind blowing like fine knives and a death cold mist gathering across the moor, she came to Peter Montayne as he sat cowering over the fire in the smoking room and bid him "hustle," because she was going to motor him out to tea, deeply as he deprecated the suggestion, he knew she was bent upon his good.

She said "hustle" to him because he was an American and she was arch. He was the only American who had come the way of the hospital, and they thought a great deal of him.

He was a silent, dark-faced youth, with a profile like that on a classic coin and a sweep of black hair brushed straight back, which gave him a kind of eagle look. He had enlisted in the imperial air service before his country had joined in the great struggle for right. Most of his life had been spent in Honolulu and he had curious tropical experiences to add to the incredible adventures of the war. Little was known about him in the hospital—little, that is to say, of his life and inner thought, of his home, or kin, or friendships. But a great deal had become apparent of his serenity of temper and of a certain deep-rooted courtesy which struck him somehow apart from the rest.

He sprang up now and fixed pleading brown eyes upon Sister Perdita.

"It's awfully good of you, but I'm feeling just about cheap. I think I'll stay in the warmth, if you don't mind."

The Irish boy who was grinning and jerking his limbs in a sort of pantomime mockery from the other side of the billiard table, where he was practicing cunning strokes by himself, would not have troubled, had he been in Montayne's shoes, to drag himself out of this armchair, would not have troubled even to remove the cigarette from between his lips.

"Oh, stow it, Perdita, dear!" he would have said. "You don't annex me today if I know it!"

This was substantially what he did say when she now turned to him:

"Come, Capt. O'Flaherty, you're not going to stew all day indoors, not if I know it. As for you, Capt. Montayne, you've simply got to drive with me, for I have arranged it all entirely for you. I'm going to bring you to the most heavenly little manor house in England, a perfect Queen Anne gem. It belongs to a Mrs. Clavering, a widow. She used to be a friend of mine. I only heard a few days ago that she was in a motor drive, and I wrote to tell her I'd bring you over. What's that you say? Ah, that's right."

Peter Montayne was murmuring, with his invariable deference where the other sex was concerned, that Sister Perdita was always kindness itself. Of course, if she had thought about him like that, why, he would be very ungrateful not to be altogether at her disposal. He did feel shivery, headachy, unlike himself. But no doubt the fresh air would blow it all away.

"Be ready in half an hour then," commanded the sister in charge triumphantly to both; and, well flying, hurried forth to beat up further victims.

"You're a pretty ass!" said Desmond O'Flaherty, playfully threatening Montayne with his cue. For some not clearly defined reason he seemed to consider his own conduct involved by that of his comrade.

Peter Montayne smiled on him rather ruefully as he stood with his back to the fire. Though he put on his fur-lined leather flying coat and pulled down his cap over his ears and sat in front over the cylinders, never, he thought, had he felt so frozen—he who had known what it is to fly through the hallimeter, the snow cloud. He was ashamed to find himself unable to control his shivering as he followed Sister Perdita through the dark paneled hall into the pleasant drawing room of Clavering Manor. Here he had but a confused impression of warmth and flower scents; of deep-toned pictures on white walls; of a small, slender lady in black, and of a soft voice, speaking to him as from a great distance. Presently he found himself on a chair, with a cup of tea in his hand, and the cup and saucer rattled because of these ridiculous shudders. He thought he must have made some false movement or have been sitting awkwardly, for he had, too, a strangely paralyzing pain in his side; it seemed to him as if all the nightmare sensations of cold had concentrated into that pain.

"I must have given myself a tick," he decided.

His teeth clicked against the rim of his cup, then he saw a dish was being held before him by an arm that appeared to him to wander away, like the voices, to extraordinary distances.

"Have a bun, old chap," said someone from the sky.

A bun! He had to press back an explosion of anger. That was O'Flaherty. Only an Irish fool would think of holding an object so revolting within scent of his nostrils!

Mrs. Clavering interrupted her undertone conversation with Sister Perdita; her gaze had wandered several times from her visitor to the young airman on the other side of the hearth. She now put out her hand:

"One moment—I don't think he is well." "He? Who? Which one of them?" Sister Perdita's eyes rolled wildly round her contingent of invalids. "They all get a bit green now and then. It don't do to pay any attention—I see, Capt. Montayne. What's the matter, Master Peter? Got a stitch?"

Her voice was strident. Peter Montayne, his hand on his side, looked round vaguely, tried to pull himself together, and laughed, and was caught with such a stab that involuntarily he doubled up over the cushions of the sofa. And now that he had his head down in the cushion he did not feel as if he could ever lift it again.

He shut his eyes and descended suddenly, but not altogether uncomfortably into vast depths. Singular billowy substances, like clouds turned to feather beds, rose up all round him. As he fought through them and fell back again he got confused impressions of a gentle touch upon his wrist and brow and of other touches which he re-mented and from which he strove to draw himself away.

Then there was, it seemed, a curious conflict over his head. Sister Perdita was talking very loud, and insisting, as if she were quite angry, about "military regulations" and an ambulance, and what was "really unnecessary fuss" and "really her absolute duty as sister in charge." And to this argument and clamor somebody else, with a voice as soft as a dove and hardly any words, was opposing a barrier of invincible denial.

Emerging momentarily from his feather beds, Peter Montayne, without in the least connecting the idea of the ambulance with himself, was glad to find that Sister Perdita was worsted. Then he went back into those muffling, enveloping, devouring clouds, in which it was increasingly hard to breathe, to find that they were lifting him up and walking away with him.

Hereafter followed a time of strange confusion for Peter Montayne, thought and sensation so curiously intermixed that he scarcely knew which was which. The pain in his side became as some huge problem which he had to solve or die. The wandering of his wits was inextricably connected with an absurd want of control over his breathing. Into this nightmare world faces and voices floated, and he very often floated, too—which, as an airman, did not surprise him.

He was much disturbed by the constant reappearance of Sister Perdita's smile. Her teeth—they were always prominent—had uncannily grown; and really at times when he could sufficiently lay hold of that panting machine that had got into his brain it seemed to him that they were reprehensibly large for anyone in charge of invalids. This fact should be represented at the British War Office.

He was glad when suddenly she vanished and only one face remained. A very sweet and tender, pretty face, with which he presently associated a quiet, calming hand touch and a voice that never hurt his head or his chest; that seemed, on the contrary, somehow to calm them.

Peter Montayne had not known what it was to have a mother since he was 5 years old. There had remained a dim vision on his mind of a dark, lovely face and brooding eyes; of pale-colored muslin and arms that held him close; a breast against which a little boy found comfort. This delicate jumble of memories he had always called mamma; and even to manhood it had given him a swelling heart and a tightening throat when some turn of the wheel of sensation brought this treasure of lost childhood back upon him. Now it came to him with certainty that this touch, this voice, this face, were essential parts of motherhood—a motherhood miraculously for him.

It was an infinite soothing. He let himself rest upon it, went to sleep upon it, and woke up as from a double dream, agony passing to peace. His heavy eyes roamed. He saw, as through veils of mist, the firelight gleam upon dark panels that gave back the reflection as with a rich glow of their own. He saw the pillars of a four-post bed rise in spirals between him and space, and they, too, gleamed.

By a languid movement of the eyes he could just see the lining of the curtains about his head; it was a delicate lilac, made of infinitesimal rings interlacing. A fold turned back gave him a glimpse of the outside. He saw a fairy glade of oak trees, squirrels on the branches, deep beneath—the stage no larger than the squirrel—and the oak tree mysterious grew apples of pumpkin size. He felt as enchanted as a child. It was not worth while to move just now. But some day he would stretch out an arm, turn the curtain round, and see more of that wondrous forest.

There was a fragrance in his nostrils. He wondered if it came from the oak wood. He was sure it was, anyhow, a scent from far distant years. He would not be surprised if the woods had smelt like that in Robin Hood's days—or perhaps when Shakespeare wrote of "luscious woodbines and sweet musk roses and the egline where slept Titania."

It was, he knew, intensely English; of the rich, strong, proud English tree before it had sent so many branches and offshoots about the world. Yes, it was a smell of wood and of old roses and deep-hearted things—

His glance shifted again; a watching face; the gaze of thoughtful, tender, steady eyes, violet blue, set in shadow upon ivory pallor; dark-banded hair, gray streaked. Nothing in the least like that young, laughing, fruit-tinted countenance that had blessed his childhood. Nevertheless, he was aware that she who sat at the end of his bed was there as a mother.

Everything that grew upon his mind, as strength returned, charmed him; but nothing more subtly nor more exquisitely than the maternal presence.

From the glare and heat of the exotic lands he had most known, from the oddly contrasted existence, half intense business activity—diamond cut diamond for keenness, serpent outleap serpent for subtlety—and half basking relaxation, even to cessation of thought, he had brought a sensitive, fastidious soul. Here for the first time it felt at home. It was not because of her goodness to him, not because she had opened her doors to the stranger, nursed and comforted and healed, not because he owed his life to her—the bond between them was far subtler, compounded of elements beyond analysis, not burdened by the weight of facts.

The doctor and Mrs. Clavering stood, one on each side of the bed, and both smiled at him. The doctor was a broad, elderly man, rough and contrived, and yet, as he had proved himself, able.

"You've had an uncommon narrow shave, young sir," said he. "But you're out of the woods now."

The patient smiled in his turn. With the weakness of a child about him he thought in innocent childlike pleasure, that he was still in his enchanted old English oak wood, out of which no doctor could draw him yet.

"If it had not been for her"—the doctor nodded across the bed at the slender figure in black—"you'd not be above ground. If your fine army sister had had her own way and carted you off in her ambulance—Lord! Don't I know them, clanky, drafty things, rattling over the roads, full of men's groans, at 40 miles an hour! There wouldn't have been much left of you."

"Anyone with a grain of common sense," said Mrs. Clavering, straightening as she spoke a crumpled blanket, "would have done as I did."

"Well, and beggin your pardon"—the doctor began to button up his greatcoat and feel about its pockets—for his gloves—"there is not one in a thousand would have had the cleverness and the pluck. She fought for you, young man." He laughed suddenly. "That Sister Miranda, Lucinda, or whatever her silly name may be, she thought she'd terrify you, Mrs. Clavering, with her boogies of military discipline. She thought she had a kind of gentle dove to deal with! Pooh! There's no wind strong enough to drive a sitting bird from the nest. Ay, she fought for you, young man! And fought more than flesh and blood, a pretty dread enemy it was she fought, she alone!"

The boy in the bed had no words. He merely looked at her who had been mother to him. How could anyone put into the grossness of speech what he was feeling?

"Yes, night and day she never left you, that little woman. Last night was the first she slept; and then it was on that sofa there at the foot of your bed. Come, now, you know that's true, Mrs. Clavering. She has the strength of 20 when it comes to carrying out her will. She wouldn't let anyone else in to you. A pretty bad infectious type of influenza it was, my young friend. I hear, like flies. But you're lucky. You'll be potting Huns again before the month is out."

He went to the door, still laughing; but Peter had marked a glint in his little shrewd eyes that looked uncommonly like an unshed tear. He wondered. And when she came back and took her own chair he saw that on the worn, delicate face, for all its serenity, there was the stamp of an immense sorrow.

"I hope," she said, as she took up her knitting, "you do not mind his free and easy ways. He has known me since childhood and has helped me through many a dark valley."

"Why," said Peter, "it seems he has helped to pull me out of the Valley of the Shadow. It would be strange if I wanted to complain of the roughness of his grasp, though"—he paused, hesitated; his eyes became charged with what he found it so impossible to say—"there was another hand"—He broke off. His glance sought the ivory fingers now laid on the counterpane as if to impose silence. "That hand," he went on, "was ever gentle, and yet it held me. It alone. How did you do it?"

She answered him steadily: "You were as a son to me. There was no other way." She rose and bent over him. "Do not think of that; do not thank me. Have you a mother?"

"No. She died when I was a tiny kid. I never knew, I never had"—here he brushed to the roots of his hair, and added shyly—"till now."

"I had one son," she said.

To be continued tomorrow and concluded Tuesday.

Eminent Lawyers to Be Here This Week for Bar Convention

Guests From England, France and Canada to Attend Sessions Beginning Wednesday—Delegate Conference Tuesday.

The annual meeting of the American Bar Association will be held in St. Louis next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Many eminent lawyers usually attend the annual meetings of this association, and several men distinguished in world affairs appear as speakers. The attendance usually is about 1000 out of a total membership of 16,800.

Chief among the speakers at the St. Louis meeting will be Sir Auckland Geddes, the British Ambassador to the United States; Charles Evans Hughes of New York, former Republican nominee for President; former Senator Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana; Franklin K. Lane of California, former Secretary of the Interior, and Judge Ben B. Lindsey of Denver.

No subject has been announced for the British Ambassador. His address will be delivered at the opening session on Wednesday at 10 a. m., the other speech at that session being that of the association president, Hampton L. Carson of Philadelphia, who will discuss "The Evolution of Representative Constitutional Government."

Sir Auckland Geddes, by profession a physician and professor of surgery in many British universities, including McGill in Canada, served in the South African and European wars, was director of recruiting in England during 1916 and 1917, Minister of National Service in 1917 and 1918, and Minister of Reconstruction in 1919. His coming to the United States as Ambassador was recent.

The British Ambassador will be accompanied, upon special invitation by the Right Hon. Viscount Cave, one of the Lords of Appeal, and member of the Judiciary Committee of the Privy Council of England. Lord Cave formerly was Secretary of State for Home Affairs in Lloyd George's administration, and was Solicitor-General in Asquith's first coalition ministry.

In response to the courtesy of the American Bar Association, in its recent annual meeting, the Canadian Bar Association has designated Richard Bedford Bennett, K. C., of Calgary, Alberta, who, during the war was Director-General of National Service for Canada, to represent it at the St. Louis meeting.

Albert LeGrand of Paris, who was counselor for the French Government at the peace conference, is another guest who has accepted his invitation.

Among the American lawyers of prominence who will attend are: David Jayne Hill of New York, author and diplomat, who from 1908 to 1911 was Ambassador to Germany; the four former presidents of the American Bar Association—Judge George T. Page of the U. S. Court of Appeals at Chicago; Moorfield Story of Boston, regarded as a national figure in corporation law; Walter George Smith of Philadelphia, and Everett P. Wheeler of New York City—John H. Wigmore of the University of Chicago, a prolific and recognized author on legal subjects, and John Lowell of Boston, a descendant of James Russell Lowell.

The speakers for the annual banquet of the association in the Hotel Statler roof garden on Friday will be chosen from the above list of men, no program for that event having been arranged.

Former Secretary Lane will speak Wednesday night. Former Senator Beveridge will be the speaker at a night session Thursday. His subject will be "The Attack on American Fundamentalism." Justus Hughes and Judge Lindsey will appear as speakers in a symposium Friday morning on the general subject, "Legal Aid," the only general discussion programmed. Hughes has as his subject, "Legal Aid Societies, Their Function and Necessity." Judge Lindsey's portion of the same topic will be "Justice Without Cost for Parent and Child."

The general sessions of the Association will be held in the Shubert-Jefferson Theater. Various sections of the Association and allied bodies will hold simultaneous meetings in court rooms of the Federal building, the assembly hall of the Union Electric Light and Power Co., Central Public Library, and Hotels Statler and Jefferson. Headquarters for the meeting will be in Hotel Statler.

The Conference of Bar Association delegates will hold morning, afternoon and evening sessions on Tuesday, one day preceding the association meeting, in the assembly hall of the Union Electric Light and Power Co. The chief topics of discussion will be: "What Are State and Local Bar Associations Doing to Impress Upon People of Their States and Communities the Vital Importance of Respect for the Law?" and "What Are the Associations Doing to Promote Understanding of the Fundamental Principles of American Institutions?"

The National Association of Attorneys-General, of which Clifford L. Hilton of Minnesota, is president, will hold sessions tomorrow afternoon and Tuesday morning and afternoon in Hotel Statler.

A section on criminal law will be organized in the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals room in the Federal building Tuesday. Lawrence McDaniell, Circuit Attorney for St. Louis, will be one of the speakers at this meeting.

Financiers Back Publication of Political Book by Barnes

Fully $100,000 Collected From Eastern Capitalists to Defray Cost of Issuing Treatise on "Republicanism."

By Leased Wire From New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—John D. Rockefeller, John D. Jr., William Rockefeller, Harry F. Sinclair, Ambrose Monell, J. Leonard Replogle and Clarence H. Mackay are a few of the multimillionaire capitalists of finance and business who have contributed liberally to the publication of a book entitled "Republicanism of Nineteen Twenty," of which William Barnes, a former Republican State Chairman, is author.

Published ostensibly in behalf of Republican success at the presidential election this fall, Barnes conceived the idea of writing the book early in 1919 and a crop of solicitors has been combing the financial and business district of New York and other cities for more than six months. The minimum contribution requested has been $1000. Some amounts given have exceeded this figure. Among political leaders and office holders, present and prospective, the figure has ranged from $100 to $500.

Barnes has never informed the Republican National Committee that money made on the book is to be turned into the presidential campaign fund. Today, with the book reported by its author to be on the presses, campaign fund solicitors for the Republican National Committee, in appealing for donations to maintain the book, find themselves at a disadvantage. Some of the subscribers to "Republicanism of Nineteen Twenty" say they were under the impression that the money they gave was to go to the National Committee for the good of the cause, and that they presumed their donations were in the nature of campaign contributions to promote Republican presidential success.

Several contributors were amazed to learn that the publication of Barnes' book has no official connection with the Republican National Committee and is an enterprise financed by Barnes and his agents from the New York office of his Albany newspaper publishing company. Some contributors, mindful of the announcement of National Chairman

Will H. Hays that no campaign contribution in excess of $1000 would be asked for from any individual, recalled that $1000 was the exact amount they were asked to give to Barnes' book. Several of the contributors, however, gave in excess of $1000, the chief of John D. Rockefeller and a few others having been for $1500 each. J. Leonard Replogle, steel financier, gave $2500 and F. H. Hill of the American Tobacco Company $1000.

Fully $100,000 has been collected to defray the cost of publishing Barnes' book. Original subscription blanks which came into the possession of the New York World, bearing the signatures of 36 contributors, all of them men of large means, total $34,000 alone. Authoritative information from other sources is responsible for the impression that the total collected was far in excess of this amount.

Partial List of Donors. The partial list of donors, compiled from blanks they signed, follows: William Rockefeller, $1000; John D. Rockefeller (by Starr J. Murphy), $1500; John D. Rockefeller Jr. (by Starr J. Murphy), $1500; Ambrose Monell, capitalist, Tuxedo Park, $1000; Harry F. Sinclair, head of Sinclair Oil Co., $1000; J. Leonard Replogle, capitalist and steel financier, $2500; C. M. Warner, president Warner Sugar Co., $1000; Clarence H. Mackay, head of Postal Telegraph Co., $1000; Walter C. Teagle, president Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, $1000; C. E. Danforth, capitalist, $1000; L. F. Loree, Delaware & Hudson Railroad, $1000; John McE. Bowman, head of the Bowman hotels, $1000; Dwight W. Morrow, partner of J. P. Morgan, $1000; J. E. Livermore, broker with Harriman & Co., $1000; Percival S. Hill, American Tobacco Co., $2500; W. Murray Crane, former United States Senator and capitalist, $1000; Jacob Rupprecht, brewer and baseball president, $1000; H. H. Rogers, railroad and oil financier, $1000; Chauncey M. Depew, former Senator and railroad director, $1000; E. J. Berwind, coal and rapid transit financier, $1000; H. A. du Pont, capitalist and manufacturer of munitions, $1000; C. L. Auger, head National Silk Dyeing Co., $1000; W. Rice Jr., president General Electric Co., $1000; W. R. Coe, insurance broker, $1000; W. P. Jackson, State Senator, capitalist (Maryland), $500; Samuel P. Colt, president United States Rubber Co., $1000; Ballantine & Sons, brewers of Newark, N. J., $500; Famous Players Co. (by Adolph Zeuker), $500; Peter Cooper Bank, capitalist, $500, and Albert O. Gittinger, former State Senator, $100.

Barnes, who refused to be personally interviewed yesterday, talked briefly over the telephone. He expressed surprise because his book was to be made the subject of newspaper publicity. "It is a perfectly legitimate enterprise," asserted Barnes. "The book will be out Monday. You had better wait until you see the book before indulging in adverse criticism."

Anniversary of Jewish Old Home. The anniversary exercises of the Jewish Old Home and the opening of a new addition to the building at East Grand and Blair avenues, will be celebrated next Sunday by an automobile parade. The parade will form at King's highway and Enright avenue at 1 p. m., proceed north on Page, east to Grand, then north to East Grand and Blair avenues.

NEAR EAST FUND CONFERENCE

Meeting to Discuss $500,000 Campaign Set for Oct. 13.

A conference of workers endeavoring to raise $500,000 in Missouri for Near Eastern relief will be held in St. Louis at Hotel Stadler Oct. 13, beginning at 10:30 a. m. Archbishop Glennon, Rabbi Harrison, Bishop Tuttle and other church leaders have been invited to attend as have Gov. Gardner, Mayor Kiel and special workers from the National Headquarters in New York. Missouri has been divided into two districts for this campaign. 74 counties in the eastern portion being under supervision of the St. Louis office for solicitation purposes. The funds being sought are to alleviate privations and suffering of women and children due to war and post war conditions.

WHITE PLAGUE DRIVE OPENS

Committee From Welfare Bodies to Fight Tuberculosis in County.

The St. Louis County Tuberculosis Committee, with headquarters in the Equitable Building, has opened a campaign in the county. Pamphlets containing the State regulations for the prevention and control of tuberculosis were distributed last week to factories around St. Louis and to homes in the county.

Other items of the campaign will be lectures in factories and schools, and traveling health exhibits. The committee is composed of representatives from the St. Louis County Welfare Association, Kirkwood Welfare Commission, Webster Groves Welfare Commission, Tuberculosis Society of St. Louis and local Red Cross chapters.

MUST WIDEN SEVENTH STREET, SAYS TALBERT

Rapidly Growing Traffic Across Free Bridge Will Congest Route to Chouteau.

Director Talbert of the Department of Streets and Sewers, after a review yesterday of traffic statistics on the Free Bridge, said that Seventh street between the bridge and Chouteau avenue should be widened from its present width of 60 feet to 80 feet as soon as possible to accommodate the rapidly increasing traffic.

Statistics show that 60 per cent of the vehicles using the bridge go over Seventh street to Chouteau avenue and west on Chouteau to Twelfth street.

From Jan. 21 to Aug. 1, this year, Talbert said, 752,973 vehicles of all kinds used the bridge. On that basis he estimated the number which would use it during the entire year at 1,585,946, an increase of 280,548 over last year.

In 1919 the bridge was used by 7568 fewer one-horse vehicles than in 1918, a decrease of 18 per cent over the previous year, and by 14,949 fewer two-horse vehicles, a decrease of 19 per cent. The largest increase has been in heavy trucks, which was 22 per cent in 1919 over 1918. Passenger vehicles are the largest users of the bridge, the number in 1919 being 894,152.

The total number of vehicles which have passed over the bridge since the opening, Jan. 21, 1917, to Aug. 1, this year, is 4,044,102. Putting the average toll on other bridges at 25 cents, Talbert figured the saving to St. Louisans and East St. Louisans at $1,011,025.

CONCILIATOR SELPH REFUSED TO SEE TO BE WITHDRAWN

He Was Sent Here at Request of White House When Postoffice Clerks Complained.

It was announced yesterday in Washington by the Department of Labor that the refusal of Postmaster Selph to receive its conciliator, Oscar F. Nelson, who was in St. Louis to inquire into a controversy said to exist between Selph and members of the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, would be followed by an order for Nelson's withdrawal.

Nelson came to St. Louis Friday from Chicago. The department order for his coming followed a request from Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to President Wilson. Thomas F. Flaherty, secretary-treasurer of the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, had complained to the President that Postmaster Selph had threatened to discharge 300 members of the union who are St. Louis postoffice employees if they refused to depose their president, Charles P. Freeman. Flaherty declared that Freeman had incurred the Postmaster's displeasure by writing a letter asking postoffice employees to vote against John Schmoell for Sheriff in the primary election. Schmoell had befriended Jacob L. Babler, Republican committeeman, who in turn had appealed in Selph's behalf to a House committee in Washington hearing complaints of former employees against the St. Louis Postmaster.

Selph departed yesterday for Cincinnati to attend a meeting of the executive committee of the National Postmasters' Association, of which he is president.

First Assistant Postmaster General Koons said in Washington yesterday that the charge that Selph was threatening to discharge 300 employees was absurd. Only the department here has authority to discharge postal employees," he said.

WORKERS WILL MEET TODAY TO PLAN FOR HOSPITAL BAZAR

The workers of the annual bazaar of the Sisters of St. Mary at Mount St. Rose Sanatorium, 9101 S. Broadway, will meet this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock to perfect details of the bazaar, which will be held on the grounds of the hospital, Sept. 5. Mount St. Rose Sanatorium is conducted by the Sisters of St. Mary for the treatment of tuberculosis patients, and the annual bazaar is used to raise funds with which to meet expenses incurred in caring for the charity patients, or about 50 per cent of those cared for at the hospital. The hospital has a total capacity of 150 beds, and during the last year the free treatment given totaled 24,824 charity hospital days, at a cost of approximately $25,000.

At the bazaar dinner will be served in the dining room of the hospital, which can accommodate 200 persons at one time.

SOLDIER'S BODY DUE TODAY

The body of Bugler Arthur Newman, son of Mrs. Hugh Nece of 3317 Vista avenue, who died of meningitis while serving with A Battery, 129th Field Artillery, in France, is expected to arrive today. The funeral will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow at Jefferson Barracks, soldiers there taking part in the ceremonies. Burial will be in the National Cemetery at the barracks.

Members of Troop B Cavalry, of which Newman was formerly a member, will serve as pallbearers. Newman, who was 19 years old, was sent to France with a special detachment three weeks ahead of his regiment, and died after being there 13 days.

WEEK'S BIRTHS EXCEED DEATHS

The number of births in St. Louis last week was 311, compared with 137 deaths. Of the deaths, three were self-inflicted, two homicides and five accidental. Thirteen deaths from pneumonia occurred.

HOT STILL FOUND ON FARM

Federal prohibition agents, after a search of more than an hour Friday night on the farm of Philip Rebbio on the Gibson road, near Russell

St. Louis County, where they had been informed a whiskey still was being operated, found the still, yet hot from recent use, in a 12-foot excavation in a weed patch 50 yards from the house. The excavation was covered by a tarpaulin.

They reported the still had a daily capacity of 50 gallons, and that 50 gallons of raisin whiskey and several barrels of mash for making the liquor were found in the excavation.

All was confiscated.

The excavation was 12x18 feet, and steps into it had been cut in the dirt on one side.

Rebbio and his brother, Joseph, 25 years old, were arrested.

BUSHMAN PLANS INVESTIGATION OF $1,000,000 WILL

Son of Mrs. C. J. Peper to Confer With Sister Before Fighting Bequest Hostile to Wife and Daughter.

GIRL, 17, EXCLUDED
BECAUSE OF QUARREL

Instrument Also Provided
That Son Should Be Disinherited if He Did Not Drive Child From Home.

Christian Peper Bushman 4448 Washington boulevard, announced yesterday that he would inquire into the unusual provisions in the will of his mother, Mrs. Caroline J. Peper, which was filed for probate Friday, and which disposed of an estate, the value of which he estimates at approximately $1,000,000, when his sister, Estelle Peper Bushman, returns from Lahad, Mo., where she is visiting friends.

The will, as has been told, disclosed hostility toward Bushman's wife, Mrs. Anna Bushman, and his daughter, Ruth, 17 years old, a third-year student at Soldan High School, in directing that they were to be forever excluded from any interest in the estate.

Bushman, commenting on a codicil in the will, inserted June 4, last, stating that if Ruth Bushman continued to occupy or enter the house at 4448 Washington boulevard, after June 7, 1920, the bequest to her father was to be rendered null and void, said that it evidently was inspired by a trivial quarrel between Ruth and her aunt, Estelle Bushman, over housework.

Would Out Off Contestants.
One of the provisions of the will is that any heir contesting the document shall be cut off with $1. Bushman said that he had not given the question of contest any consideration as yet. He said that he believed that the will was unfair, but that he hoped to reach a satisfactory settlement through his sister, who was named as executrix.

He said that a copy of the codicil of June 4 was mailed to him by his mother's attorney the day after it was drawn and that at the solicitation of his wife, who wished to avoid a conflict with his mother, he sent Ruth to the home of her maternal grandmother, Mrs. John Johnson, 5906 Cote Brilliante avenue, where she has since remained.

Mrs. Peper, who was 70 years old when she died Aug. 1, and her daughter occupied the second floor of the Washington boulevard house. The Bushmans for the past year and a half have resided downstairs. Mrs. Peper was the daughter and principal heir of Christian Peper, founder of the Christian Peper Tobacco Co. Estate Divided in Three Shares.

The will was dated July 14, 1919, and directed that the entire estate was to be divided into three equal shares, one of which was to go directly to the daughter of the testatrix; one to be held in trust for Christian Peper Bushman during his lifetime, and after that for 30 years for his son, Fred Bushman, now 11 years old; and the third share to be held in trust for 25 years for Mrs. Peper's other grandson, Christian Peper, 9-year-old son of Clarence F. Peper, who died in 1918, and whose widow, Mrs. Christine Baird Peper, and the boy reside at 5831 Chamberlain avenue. Estelle Bushman was designated as trustee.

The will further directed that at the expiration of the trust held for Clarence Peper's son, providing the beneficiary dies in the meantime, his share is to go to Protestant charities, the nature of which are to be determined by the trustee.

Christian Peper Bushman said that the fact that he had been cut off with a mere income did not give him so much concern as did the intimation conveyed in the will that his wife or daughter had done something to justify a grievance on the part of his mother.

"My mother was eccentric," he said, "and unalterably opposed to daughters-in-law. It was evidently her purpose to see that my wife and my brother's widow received no benefit from her estate."

"As to the codicil concerning my daughter, Ruth, that apparently was inspired when Ruth refused to clean a heavy rug which my sister, Estelle, had directed her to do. Ruth was willing to do it, but I would not permit her as I considered it a man's work."

Mother Lived on Floor Above.
"My mother had been an invalid for 12 years and she and Estelle occupied the rooms on the second floor. My family and I kept to ourselves downstairs, though I frequently visited my mother in her room, as also did my children. My wife and mother never quarreled. They exchanged courtesies and otherwise were on friendly terms."

"When I received the letter ordering Ruth from the house I was dumbfounded. My first inclination was to resist the notice and demand an explanation. Ruth always was a good girl and had given me no one in the house the least bit of trouble. She was of a nervous disposition and I feared that the ultimatum for her to leave might have a depressing effect upon her. My wife, however, counseled me to say nothing, because she feared that trouble between my mother and me might follow. I took her advice and sent Ruth to the Johnson home."

and my brother, Clarence, was married about ten years ago. My mother did not look with favor on either marriage, although she never displayed any outward sign of animosity toward our wives. Her will, strangely enough, is similar to that of her father, which was the subject of litigation many years ago. He wanted to leave all of his estate to direct members of his family only.

"I believe that when my sister returns she and I may reach an amicable adjustment of the estate. At least, I hope we will be able to come to terms."

Mrs. F. W. Richardson Dies

Funeral services for Mrs. Florence Wyman Richardson, 55 years old, who died of uremia Friday at her home, 5733 Cates avenue, will be held at the home at 2 p. m. tomorrow, with services later at the Missouri crematory.

She was one of the organizers of the Equal Suffrage League of St. Louis of which she was the first president, and was one of the founders of the Piano Club and the Symphony society. Three children, James Richardson of Omaha, Mrs. Roland G. Usher of 5737 Cates avenue and Miss Elizabeth Hadley Richardson survive.

ACCIDENT VERDICT IN PRIEST'S DEATH

Motorman of Car Which Struck Rev. Father Chamoun Says Rain Blurred Window.

A coroner's verdict of accident was returned yesterday in the case of Rev. Father Francis Chamoun, 45 years old, pastor of the Catholic Church of St. Anthony the Hermit (Syrio-Maronite), 1201 St. Ange avenue, who was struck and instantly killed at 7:35 o'clock Friday night by a Bellefontaine car at Virginia avenue and Delmar street. The priest was running to board the car, northbound, as it was approaching Delmar street, and, believing that the car would stop at the corner, he undertook to cross the street in front of it. He was knocked down just as he was stepping over the east track. His skull was fractured.

The motorman, George O. Yehlen, 553 Eiler street, told the police that his vision was partly obscured by rain on the vestibule window, and that he did not see the priest until the car was within five feet of the crossing. He said that he had reduced the speed of the car when within 100 feet of the crossing, but had applied more current as he approached the corner, seeing no occasion to stop. At the point where the accident occurred, the tracks have been undergoing repair and piles of paving stones were in the spaces between and on either side of the rails.

Father Chamoun was born in Syria and, following his ordination to the priesthood there, was sent to South America as a missionary. He came to St. Louis 14 months ago when Father Slyman, then pastor of St. Anthony's, was ill, and later, at the request of the parishioners, was made pastor in charge.

Arrangements for the funeral will be completed when a niece of Father Chamoun arrives from Detroit, Mich.

VERDICT OF ACCIDENT IN DEATH OF WOMAN STRUCK BY AUTO

Mrs. Charlotte Hildebrand, 47th Motor Victim, Hit Friday Night After Leaving Street Car.

A coroner's verdict of accident was returned yesterday in the death of Mrs. Charlotte Hildebrand, 65 years old, of 2308 Shenandoah avenue, which occurred at the city hospital Friday night from injuries received an hour before when she was struck on Jefferson avenue near Shenandoah avenue, by the automobile of Joseph Staat of 3954 South Broadway. Her death was the seventh by motor-driven vehicles since Jan. 1.

Mrs. Hildebrand had alighted from a southbound Jefferson avenue car. She started across in front of a northbound car which was running alongside the northbound street car. He said that he did not observe Mrs. Hildebrand until she stepped from in front of the street car into the course of his machine. He said that his windshield was rained, but that the street car, not the rain on the windshield, had prevented him seeing her.

SOCIAL ECONOMY FELLOWSHIP GIVEN BY MRS. GEORGE W. BROWN

Award Carries With It Free Tuition and $300 for Expenses of Student During Year.

Announcement was made yesterday by Dr. George W. Mangold, Director of the Missouri School of Social Economy, 2221 Locust street, that a fellowship has been given for the school by Mrs. George Warren Brown. It carries free tuition and $300 for expenses of the student during the year. Another fellowship was given by Mrs. Elias Michael earlier in the summer.

Both fellowships are open to either men or women, who are college graduates, and application for some may be made in person to Dr. Mangold any morning at the school. The next term opens on Sept. 20, and includes one and two year courses in training for social service workers who wish to take positions in philanthropic, welfare, reformatory and research organizations. The School of Economy is operated by the University of Missouri with a co-operative board of St. Louisans of which the Rev. Carroll M. Davis, Dean of Christ Church Cathedral, is the chairman, and Mrs. W. E. Fischel, vice chairman.

ONLY THREE COUNTRIES ENTER FOR GORDON BENNETT CUP

France, Great Britain and the United States Competitors in Airplane Race.

PARIS, Aug. 21.—Only three countries—France, Great Britain and the United States—are entered for the International Airplane Race, in competition for the Gordon Bennett Cup, to be held in France the week of Sept. 27.

The United States is the only competitor which has already held preliminaries for the selection of three entrants. The British preliminary trials will take place early in September and the French about September 10.

The entries of the United States are as follows: Air Service, U. S. Army, Capt. R. W. Schroeder; Aero Club of Texas, entry for Miss S. E. J. Cox, pilot who was named, who will use a Curtiss plane; Dayton Wright, Division of General Motors, pilot to be named.

LESCHEN ESTATE LEFT IN TRUST

The will of Henry Leschen, president of the A. Leschen & Sons Rope Co., who died July 22 at his home, 1 Windermere place, was filed yesterday.

The estate is left in trust of his widow, Mrs. Alwina Leschen, and their two sons, Harry J. and Arthur A., she to receive the income during her life. At her death the property is to be divided among six children or their heirs.

Where Delay Is Costly

THE executor who delays needed action for an estate in his charge nearly always lessens the value that ultimately goes to beneficiaries.

Take the single item of investing cash which comes into an estate. A private individual must, under ordinary circumstances, give some time to the selection of an investment, and during this time the money draws little or no interest.

As your executor, this Trust Company is ready at a day's—nay, at an hour's notice, to supply a first-class investment for every dollar of cash that comes into the estate.

No estate for which we have made an investment has ever lost a dollar of principal and none has ever suffered on account of a day's delay.

LIBRARY SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS

Entrance examinations for admission to the next class of the St. Louis Library School will be held at the Central Library Wednesday morning, Sept. 1, at 9 o'clock. Applicants who hold a bachelor's degree are admitted without examination. According to a statement issued at the Library there is a shortage of library assistants all over the country. This is attributed to the fact that the staffs were greatly reduced by the war-time work of the various welfare organizations, and the hospital library work which is still being carried on.

INCORPORATION LAWS NOT YET AGREED ON

National Conference on Uniform Legislation Fails to Reach Decision.

A discussion of a committee draft of a uniform incorporation law for recommendation to State legislatures which had consumed three sessions of the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws, in Hotel Statler, was terminated abruptly yesterday by a motion to re-refer to the committee, which prevailed.

This was the seventh successive annual failure of the commissioners to agree upon a draft of the law. Three factions appeared in the debate—those commissioners who apparently had in mind the desires of corporations, those who adopted the interest of the investor and those who sought to watch the purely legal aspects of the act as it took shape during the discussion.

The section which made it appear that there was no hope of agreement in this year's meeting of the commissioners was that providing that no figure should be set for par value of stock, but that one share of stock should be designated by its fractional part of the whole issue. Some of the commissioners attacked this provision as enabling corporations to conceal from public discussion their money capitalization, and making it more difficult for tax assessors and collectors to determine amounts of various corporation taxes.

A second section of the act also brought vigorous opposition from those who declared they saw in it a means for a bare majority of any corporation to usurp absolute control to the detriment of minority stockholders.

The commissioners are holding sessions today and will continue morning, afternoon and evening discussions through Tuesday night.

PARENTS OF MISSING GIRL ASK HER FRIENDS TO AID IN SEARCH

Harriet Kimball, Kansas City Art student, said to have cashed Liberty Bond.

St. Louis friends of Miss Harriet Kimball, 19 years old, who disappeared from her home in Kansas City last Monday, have been asked by her parents to aid in the search for her.

Miss Horton Watkins, 5879 Cab-anne avenue, who was a classmate of the girl's sister at Vassar, said yesterday that the family had told Harriet cashed a Liberty Bond at a Kansas City bank just before disappearing and that she evidently planned her departure in advance.

"Harriet was a student at an art school in Kansas City but it seems she was dissatisfied," said Mrs. Watkins yesterday, "and it is possible she may have tried to get employment with some interior decorator as she was interested in that branch of work. She could leave home if she wished but her parents would like to know where she is. Her sister, Mrs. Ralph Renwick of Evansville, Ill., has not heard of her since she left home."

Miss Kimball is the daughter of Howard H. Kimball, a wholesale shoe dealer. Her parents are wealthy and she is said to have always had a liberal allowance. Her description was sent to the St. Louis police by her parents when she disappeared.

Inquiries made at various Y. W.

C. A.'s throughout the State have brought no result. When last seen Miss Kimball was carrying a black suit case, bearing the initials H. H. K. She wore a tan skirt and brown hat. Her description, as sent out by her parents, gives her height as 5 feet 4 inches, her weight about 125 pounds and her complexion ruddy and freckled. She has curly brown hair. Her home address is 628 East Thirty-sixth street, Kansas City.

JOINT WILL OF COUPLE FILED

The joint will of Eli B. Johnson, 5186 McPherson avenue, and his wife, Maria E., was filed yesterday. It leaves a life estate in the property of each to the survivor, and at the death of the latter, four children of the couple, or their heirs, are to inherit the property.

Mrs. Johnson died Aug. 8. Her husband is still living.

WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY

Intimate cooperation with the business and social, the musical and artistic life of the great city of St. Louis enables this institution to offer young men and young women the most effective training for the real leadership demanded by the affairs of modern life.

Location in a beautiful suburb of the chief city of the Mississippi Valley, Washington University is one of the ten great urban universities of America. It combines country surroundings with city advantages. In addition to its libraries, museums and opportunities for the enjoyment of Music and Fine Arts, it has at its service as a larger laboratory the whole city of St. Louis with all its commerce and varied industries.

Equipment Washington University has a campus of one hundred and sixty acres overlooking the city. More than a score of large, beautiful buildings, praised by the British Educational Commission as the finest group of college buildings in the United States. Complete modern apparatus. Libraries of 176,000 volumes. Faculties of carefully selected specialists, who are teachers as well as investigators.

Departments include the College of Liberal Arts, the School of Engineering, the School of Architecture, the School of Medicine, the School of Law, the Graduate School, the School of Dentistry, the School of Fine Arts, the School of Commerce and Finance, the Henry Shaw School of Botany and the Division of University Extension.

Ideals Washington University aims not merely to impart instruction, or to enhance the earning power of its students, but to inspire them with the love of learning for its own sake and to develop in them the true qualities of leadership.

Opportunities for Self-Development outside of the classroom are offered by the extensive recreation dormitories provided by Washington University for both men and women; by well equipped gymnasiums, dramatic and musical societies, musical clubs and student publications which provide abundant facilities for human contact and for inter-collegiate training.

OLD PAPER CRUSADE PLANNED AT SCHOOLS

Pupils May Be Asked to Help Move for Benefit of Teachers' Annuity Fund.

A plan of urging every pupil in the public schools to take at least one old newspaper to school each day is being considered by Stephen M. Wagner, chairman of the finance committee of the Board of Education, who several years ago conceived the idea of selling waste paper, collected by pupils, for the financial benefit of the Teachers' Annuity Association. The enterprise has brought $60,000 to the treasury of the organization in the past five years.

Wagner said that contributions by pupils at 70 schools in the 1919-1920 scholastic term approximated three tons of waste paper daily, and he estimated that if every one of the 100,000 children enrolled in the schools would bring two pounds of old newspapers or magazines to school each week, it would produce about $80,000 revenue yearly.

The plan of selling waste paper collected by the public school children was praised in a recent statement issued by the United States Department of Commerce, which is urging public schools of other cities to follow the St. Louis plan. A copy of the statement was sent to Congress. A few days ago Wagner received a letter from Schuyler F. Herron, educational director for the First Federal Reserve District (Boston), requesting information about the plan. Herron said that he wished to introduce the system in the Boston schools.

Wagner plans to stimulate the work here by having contests between various schools and between various rooms in schools. He is going to award a pennant to the school reporting the largest collection each week, to be held by that school until its high record mark is passed by another school.

A proposition has been submitted to the Board of Trustees of the Teachers' Annuity Association to increase the annuity from $15 to $25 a month. The organization was formed to aid teachers who retire after long service, and for relief of members temporarily in need.

The public schools open Tuesday, Sept. 7.

Woman to Speak on Law.

Mary F. Lathrop of Denver, who holds a law degree from the University of Colorado, and who was the first woman to practice law in Denver, and is said to have been the first woman member of the American Bar Association, will speak on "Pioneering in the Law," at the Town Club luncheon Tuesday. She is author of a book on probate law in Colorado.

The Test of Tests

Can you suggest a better test than the one of placing the original artist alongside the instrument?

The Edison Has No Tone

It does not alter or change the original sound. You do not want a phonograph tone—you want the original tones re-created and only the New Edison does that.

One year ago the first PIGGLY WIGGLY stores were opened in St. Louis, Mo. Today 23 PIGGLY WIGGLY stores are in operation in St. Louis, Mo. Nearly every day a PIGGLY WIGGLY store is opened, either in a new town, or a link is added to the chain in some city. No PIGGLY WIGGLY store has ever closed its doors for any reason.

Why This Phenomenal Growth and Success?

In a PIGGLY WIGGLY store one hundred people can be served in the same time that it would take to serve ten people in any other store.

PIGGLY WIGGLY is different from any other store in the world and looks different.

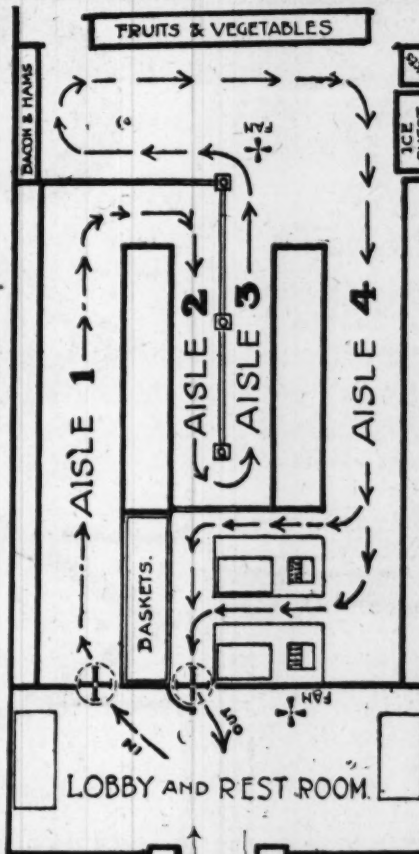

In a PIGGLY WIGGLY store is found more than 1000 items of nationally known merchandise of the best of each food product. Each customer is loaned a basket for use while in the store. A Swinging Price Tag over each article tells its price in plain figures.

The PIGGLY WIGGLY system saves not only time, but it saves money, energy and health.

PIGGLY WIGGLY is the best and cheapest method for the distribution of food products of national reputation.

By eliminating delivery and telephone charges, bad accounts and blue-sky salesmanship, it is possible to reduce price on goods, and customer is given the benefit.

EVERY PRICE on EVERY ITEM

Reason for Getting Rid of Police Told by Cork Mayor

Recognized as "Ears, Eyes and Most of Brains" of British Government, Revolutionary Ireland "Has Too Much at Stake to Spare Them."

By ARNO DOSCH FLEUROT.
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.
DUBLIN, July 21.—"Why do you kill policemen and take so much satisfaction out of their deaths?" I have asked Sinn Feiners in all parts of Ireland. "The police are all Irish too."

"That's why we kill them," has been the invariable reply. "The soldiers sent over here by the English are not Irish, so we have not the same feeling against them. But the policemen are of our own blood and they have betrayed us to the enemy."

"How have they betrayed you?" Many of them have belonged to the Royal Irish Constabulary for years. They joined the police force when there was no active struggle for Irish freedom. Individually they are brave men of excellent character. "They are the spies of the British Government. They occupied every little nook and cranny of Ireland. They know everybody. They lived years in the same neighborhoods, married and raised families. They knew all the local secrets, all the family connections. They were all well and good as long as they did their duty as police preventing crime. But they did not confine themselves to police duties. They were always snooping around getting political information for their British master. Sinn Fein was also not anxious to kill them. We wanted to get rid of them. That is all. When they went of their own accord, we let them go. We burned their barracks to prevent them coming back. But when they insisted on staying after the military forces of the republic had warned them repeatedly to leave, and made themselves obnoxious by keeping up their spying on us, they were attacked and driven out. Those who came back with reinforcements were ambushed, and we killed as many as we could."

"The 'Black-and-Tans,'" "But were they not better than the black-and-tans?"—British soldiers drafted into the police who are still wearing khaki uniforms, but have adopted the black caps and belts of the police.

"The black-and-tan are lost. We are not afraid of them. They are like soldiers. They can only work in bunches and in the towns. They do not know the country like the old police. They do not know how to set to work to break up the Volunteers, at any time they get too obnoxious we can ambush a lorry full of them on the road."

"The police feel the hatred. They know why they are hated, and many of them would gladly resign, but to leave now would be to resign under fire, and they are not cowards. It is not easy to recruit new Irishmen into the constabulary. For very fast. In fact, their morale is gone now. They have been forced out of nearly 700 of their barracks and the whole system by which they controlled Ireland is finished. "They were distributed according to a system which made it impossible to come in or out of any town in Ireland by any road without encountering them. There was not a section of any city where there was not a police barracks handy."

"That would have been well enough if they had been there for the detection of crime. But that was not the British purpose. They arranged the police barracks so as to be able to prevent just such a revolution as is going on in Ireland now. But when the revolution did break out they made a fatal mistake. Surely an evil spirit was pursuing the English when they let the first police barracks be burned down without doing something about it. If they had promptly re-established it, with heavy reinforcements, perhaps the revolution would not have been able to go so rapidly and successfully. But the British evidently thought themselves too strong. Then there were whole barracks burned, a whole series of them. Soon there were whole districts cleared of the police.

REASON FOR GETTING RID OF THE POLICE

"What the British probably thought was that the Irish people would soon be so terrorized by bodies of armed ruffians that they would welcome back the police and there would be an end of it. That is where they showed they did not know what was going on in the country. Throughout the towns, villages and country the Irish ruffians had been organized according to a strict discipline, permitting no drinking, no rowdiness, no violence except against the enemies of the republic. For the least infringement of any of its rules a member was immediately expelled. Being a secret organization, dependent for its existence upon the good faith of its members, it was necessary to pick carefully and maintain the strictest discipline."

I don't think McSwiney knew that I was aware of his position as chief of the volunteers when he spoke so earnestly about them. As a matter of fact this was the ideal of the organizers of the volunteers, and succeeded to an extraordinary degree. There are criticisms of the volunteers for other reasons, but as to their sobriety, discipline and revolutionary passion, there can be no doubt.

Sein Fein Courts Established.

"No sooner had the police gone than the volunteers took over the local policing, and as the country came more and more under their system, it settled down to tranquility. The volunteers were all local men and were also soon in intimate relation with other local revolutionary bodies which grew up as the Irish people, left to themselves, began to take over the administration of their own affairs. It became necessary to deal with criminal offenders caught by the volunteers. Local men of good standing consented to act as judges, and the offenders were compelled either to pay fines or leave. The establishment of jails was not and has not yet been possible, as there has been no part of Ireland where the police supported by the military could not return any time they tried. The police by the volunteers, their administration of justice, all the local government under their protection, has had to be more or less informal, and not open.

"The establishing of courts to deal with local offenders soon brought about the establishment of civil courts, and that was much simpler. They were based on agreements of arbitration in order to make their decisions binding, so there was less occasion to conceal their activities. Of course they were annoying to the British, as the whole administration of justice passed in this manner into our hands. The decrees of the courts were supported by public opinion, which is more than could ever be said for the British courts. The result is that those parts of Ireland where the police have abandoned the people to their fate, are today the most peaceful portions of the country. Trouble only comes when the police try to invade them again.

"Played Into Our Hand." "The British made their mistake in thinking they could frighten the solid citizens into begging for the re-establishment of the police barracks. They thought they would punish us, but they only played into our hand. When it was too late they realized their mistake.

"In abandoning the police barracks they found they had even abandoned the administration of justice—for the new courts that sprang up worked with the volunteers, and replied upon them for the execution of their decrees. The volunteers doing this work scrupulously, the courts being well administered locally, by the local county councils have, by the dozens and scores, come over to us and sworn allegiance to the republic."

The Sinn Fein leaders are all sufficiently intelligent and worldly to know, however, that the ambushing and killing of police has been injurious to their cause, not only in England but in other countries—the United States, for example. But they believe there is no way to get rid of the police except by such means, and they know the importance to them of driving the police out of the country. It permits the free organization of volunteers and also gives an opportunity to point out to the entire world that the Irish people are quite capable of administering their own affairs and maintaining their own order.

As the Mayor of Limerick said at an election of Republican Judges which I attended: "We are a law-abiding people, but the law must be Irish law, administered by Judges selected by the Irish people."

The British Government is at last awake to the harm it did itself in not retreating promptly the moment the first police barracks was burned. Now it is too late. The morale of the police is broken, and the Irish people have tasted the delights of ruling themselves. It is all more or less under cover, but it is supported by so large a percentage of the population that the Government can do nothing about it. The police are reduced to going about in bands and cannot carry out an order without a carbine. They can only dash about in motor-torries honking through the village streets between the sullen frowns of the people, or, if sufficiently numerous, maintain themselves in armed isolation in the police barracks where they lived many years peacefully. They have become an outside force. It is rare that any one comes to them either to complain or to ask for protection, and in either case, particularly on the west coast of Ireland, they can do very little.

Dollars' worth of Autopianos have been placed in St. Louis homes by Conroy's.

The Autopiano has received the indorsement of the Vatican and of the Spanish Court, as well as of the Shah of Persia, and of such great artists as Mary Garden, Puccini, Composer of La Boheme and Madame Butterfly, Victor Herbert and Tetrizzini.

The Autopiano is the preferred player of the American Army and Navy as well as the military and naval services of foreign countries. In the late war it rated the gold chevrons of overseas service.

The Autopiano has won 16 gold medals in open competitions held in all parts of the world. No other player has even approached the numerous impressive honors that have been conferred on the Autopiano by rulers, governments and International Expositions.

More Autopianos are made each year than any other make of player and there are more Autopianos in St. Louis homes than any three other makes of players combined.

For sound and durable construction, excellence of tone, beauty of finish and long-continued service the Autopiano is the player pre-eminent.

FRIENDS SOCIETY TO CONTINUE FEEDING CHILDREN IN GERMANY

The Associated Press.
PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 21.—The American Friends Service Committee, Philadelphia, has arranged to make shipments of food for the child-feeding work in Germany, in sufficient quantities to last until the end of the year. Recently there have been shipped from New York 140 tons of cocoa, 317½ tons of lard and 14,820 cases of condensed milk.

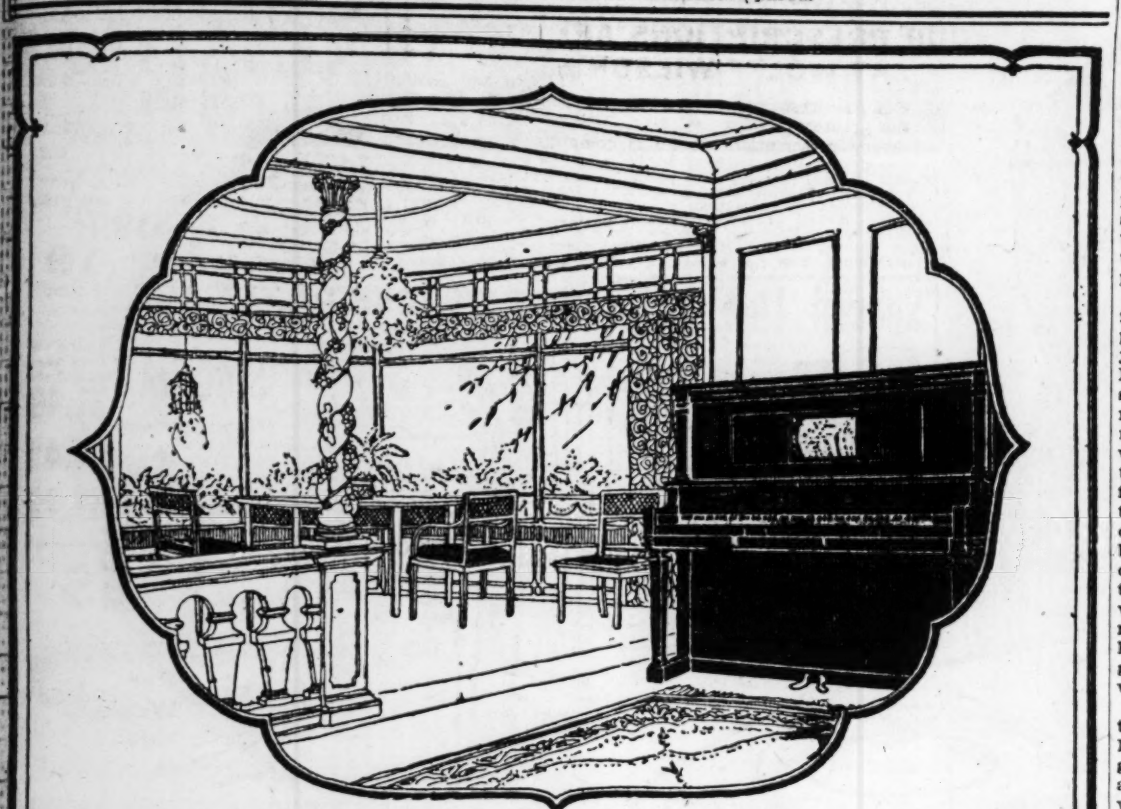

In addition to this, there were shipped 31 barrels of cod liver oil for hospital use in combating rickets, the disease of children so common there because of under-nutrition. Dried peas and dried beans used in the food ration are already stored in warehouses in Hamburg to be drawn as needed; 880 tons of rice have been purchased and will be delivered at Hamburg soon. The remaining articles of the ration, flour and sugar, will be supplied in the future by the German Government.

The value of these goods is about $1,500,000, and it is expected it will be sufficient to provide a supplementary meal for about 500,000 children per day until January. This number is slightly less than the Friends fed during the spring months of this year.

The original plan was to close the child-feeding operations Aug. 21, but the food situation was found to be so acute and the harvest poor that another year's program was prepared.

The Duo-Art Pianola

It is all that any piano or player-piano can be—and then so much more

An incomparable Steinway Piano awaiting the caress of talented fingers—a Steinway Pianola ready to play any standard music roll—a Steinway Piano awakened by the invisible fingers of Paderewski, Hofmann, Bauer or any one of a score of great musicians.

That is the Duo-Art Pianola—the reproducing piano made by the world's foremost makers of musical instruments, the Aeolian Company.

When practically all of the great pianists select the Duo-Art as the only instrument of its type that reproduces with fidelity and artistry their actual playing; when the Duo-Art is the only reproducing mechanism that is made in the Steinway, the Weber, the Steck, the Wheelock and Stroud Pianos—

Will you accept the invitation of the Aeolian Company to come and hear this wonderful instrument? Informal Duo-Art recitals are held daily.

"I ended corns forever in this scientific way"

Millions have said that about Blue-jay. Others tried it and told others the same story. So the use has spread, until corn troubles have largely disappeared.

If you have a corn you can settle it tonight. And find the way to end every corn. Apply liquid Blue-jay or a Blue-jay plaster. The pain will stop. Soon the whole corn will loosen and come out. Think what folly it is to keep corns, to pare or pad them, or to use the old harsh treatments.

Here is the new-day way, gentle, sure and scientific. It was created by a noted chemist in this world-famed laboratory.

It is ending millions of corns by a touch. The relief is quick, and it ends them completely.

Try it tonight. Corns are utterly needless, and this is the time to prove it. Buy Blue-jay from your druggist.

ROME, Aug. 21.—Let those who can draw comfort from the fact that H. C. L. is no more than many other plagues which poor humanity suffers from. In fact, the citizens of Rome, now tormented with further leaps and bounds in prices, are trying to console themselves with the discovery, made by those who read ancient books, that this city was bothered with the profiteer 1600 years ago.

In the reign of Diocletian, who flourished in 300 A. D., the Emperor was so disturbed by his subjects, who suffered from the H. C. L., that he fixed the prices of food-stuffs and drew a schedule for workmen's wages. To read his proclamation is to read the many long-winded documents which Food Controllers, Mayors and other public functionaries have perpetrated in the past three or four years. The condemning of the profiteer, "moved by all proportion to the real value of the goods he sells" and the imperial wish that his "fixed prices should be respected, throughout the Empire," have a familiar ring which makes glad the hearts of historians who want to make history popular.

But relief, comfort and joy to stop there. For it is enough to read a little further to discover that the good Emperor's laws and curses against newly rich and profiteers were as useless 16 centuries ago as they are today. And, in despair, the good old Roman tyrant implores his "honest and patriotic subjects" to resort to the one and only remedy, boycott of high-priced goods.

With this ruler's history fresh in their minds, the modern citizens of ancient Rome are now being informed that the following goods are to go up:

Aluminum goods, 500 per cent; nickel, copper goods for household use, such as knives, forks and spoons, 500 per cent; iron goods of all kinds, 600 per cent; locks and bolts, 700 per cent; earthenware and china, from 400 to 600 per cent. All these increases are on present prices which are from $50 to 1000 per cent above pre-war prices.

RIO DE JANEIRO PLANNING MUNICIPAL DRAMATIC THEATER

New House Intended for Production of National Plays Performed by Native Talent.

By the Associated Press.
RIO DE JANEIRO, July 29.—This city, which already possesses a splendid municipal opera house, is now planning a municipal dramatic theater where national dramas written by national authors and performed by native talent will be presented under the auspices of the municipality. It is intended that the new theater shall be largely for the benefit of the public.

This project, which has already passed its second reading in the Municipal Council, provides for the establishment of a stock company of which two-thirds are to be native Brazilians and the remainder naturalized Brazilians who have had their artistic training in this country. The company will perform for regular seasons in Rio de Janeiro and make annual tours to the State capitals and the principal cities of Brazil. One benefit performance will be given each season for the first artists of the company, and another for those of the second class. Gala performances will be given on five days marking notable events in the nation's history.

FORMER EMPEROR BLAMED FOR COLLAPSE OF AUSTRIAN ARMY

Report of Investigators Surmises He Feared Return of Troops to Vienna.

Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.
VIENNA, July 30.—Chief blame for the collapse of the Austrian forces on the Piave River, in the Austro-Italian campaign, is placed on the former Emperor Carl by the report of a commission appointed to investigate war delinquencies.

On the fateful Nov. 2, 1918, the report says, the then Emperor issued three conflicting orders within a few hours. The first was for the conclusion of an armistice. Nine minutes later this was revoked, and 95 minutes afterwards it was issued again. During this period, it was said, the Emperor consulted no one on the matter.

"We must ask," the report says, "whether the Emperor and his advisors were not guided by the fear of the army flooding back on Vienna rather than by any other circumstances. It may be a trap set not by express intention, but rather subconsciously, that the desire prevailed with more than one of these men that the troops had better not return home at all."

DROP IN RAILROAD BUSINESS

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—The effects of the traffic situation in 1919 are set forth in the annual report of the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis Railway (Big Four lines), just issued, with the recording of a decrease of $5,512,926 in the car mileage for the year, and a decrease of 1,029,550,820 tons in freight carried one mile. Net operating revenue for the year totaled $16,429,004.45, a decrease of $3,079,677.07 over 1918. In spite of the decrease, however, the company earned considerably more than the compensation allowed under the contract with the Government. Rental during Federal control was fixed at $9,915,597.23 for 1919.

How to Make Your Own Complexion Treatment at Home

A Free Ointment Prescription Does Its Work Overnight.

New York—"It is my own discovery, and it takes just one night to get such marvelous results," says Miss Edna Wilder, when her friends ask her about her appearance of her hands and arms.

"You can do the same thing if you follow my advice," she says. "I feel it my duty to tell every girl and woman what this wonderful prescription did for me. Just think of it. All this change in a single night! I never tried anything else before. Here is the identical formula that removed every defect from my face, neck, hands and arms. Until you try it you can form no idea of the marvelous change it will make in just one application. The prescription, which you can prepare at your own home, is as follows:

Go to any grocery and get 100 worth of lard and a small rough skin. My hands and arms were covered with freckles. After eight weeks' use of Miss Edna Wilder's wonderful complexion prescription, my freckles have entirely disappeared. I look ten years younger. I have recommended it to my girl friends and they are just as enthusiastic over it as I am. We all use it before going to the theater, dances or parties, and it's wonderful what a difference it makes in our appearance."

Miss O. V. writes: "Ointment and Derwillo have worked miracles with my complexion. I had many deep wrinkles and a sallow rough skin. My hands and arms were covered with freckles. After eight weeks' use of Miss Edna Wilder's wonderful complexion prescription, my freckles have entirely disappeared. I look ten years younger. I have recommended it to my girl friends and they are just as enthusiastic over it as I am. We all use it before going to the theater, dances or parties, and it's wonderful what a difference it makes in our appearance."

NOTE—To get the best effect be sure to follow the complete directions contained in every package of Derwillo, and it is so simple that anyone can use it, and so inexpensive that any girl or woman can afford it. Department stores and drug stores guarantee that there will be a noticeable improvement after the first application or they will refund the money. It is sold in this city at all toilet counters under a money refund guarantee, including Wolf-Wilson, Judge & Delph, Johnson Bros. and the Enderle Store.

PILES CURED WITHOUT THE KNIFE TO STAY CURED

No Cutting. No Pain. No Chloroform. No Hospital. No Danger. No Loss of Time. Consultation and Examination Free—Tell Your Friends.

DELAY MEANS PAINFUL WITH FIRE

When the size of one or more Pile Tumors obstructs the rectal channel for passage unduly, severe symptoms suddenly develop. Likewise a disintegration of the affected rectum sets in. Any slight movement of the bowels or spasms may start an agonizing pain and the patient feels that he is being deliberately torn apart in the region of the pain.

The shock is usually so severe that an utter collapse may quickly develop. During the past twenty-five years, my knowledge has greatly increased of how to bring relief and quickly restore to health sufferers from growths in the rectum.

Get this point firmly in your mind. It is as true as the law of gravity. Do not, therefore, make the mistake of grasping at a straw. No medicine, cathartics, or salves in my judgment possess the power of dissolving the Piles which have become imbedded within a human rectum. On the other hand—the longer the Piles remain in the delicate substance of the rectum, the greater destruction they commit. It is like a cat in a china cabinet—the quieter the cat the less the damage. The essential thing is to get the cat out of the cabinet quickly and quietly. The best way to accomplish this is through the recent advance in Non-Surgical knowledge. Secure some prompt action. You are playing with fire if you delay. "The Henrich Cure is safe and Sure."

Cured of Piles, in a Safe and Humane Way, After Suffering 25 Years.

W. P. Henrich, Ph. D., M. D.
Dear Doctor:—After suffering from Bleeding, Itching and Protruding Piles, also Constipation, for 25 years, you cured me without the knife and I did not have to go to any hospital to take that dangerous chloroform. I did not get any pain from your treatment, so I did not lose any time from my work, as cook. I tried many remedies but had no success with them. I am completely cured of the Piles and my bowels are regular now. Also do get get tired from my day's work.

I recommend every sufferer from Piles to take Dr. Henrich's wonderful treatment. It is safe and humane and will cure you in a safe and humane way. I am cured of Piles in a safe and humane way. I am cured of Piles in a safe and humane way. I am cured of Piles in a safe and humane way.

"TIZ" FOR ACHING, SORE, TIRED FEET

Use "Tiz" for tender, puffed-up, burning, calloused feet and corns.

People who are forced to stand on their feet all day know what sore, tender, sweaty, burning feet mean. They use "Tiz" and "Tiz" cures their feet right up. It keeps feet in perfect condition. "Tiz" is the only remedy in the world that draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet and cause tender, sore, tired, aching feet. It instantly stops the pain in corns, callouses and blisters. It's simply glorious. Ah! how comfortable your feet feel after using "Tiz." You'll never limp or draw up your face in pain. Your shoes won't tighten and hurt your feet.

Get a box of "Tiz" now from any druggist. Just think! a whole year's foot comfort for only a few cents.

DANDRUFF SURELY DESTROYS THE HAIR

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

MISSOURI WOMAN WRITES HISTORY OF WOMEN'S WORK

MRS. EMILY NEWELL BLAIR

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, a clubwoman and writer of Joplin, Mo., is the author of a history of the Woman's Committee of the Council of National Defense which has just been made public by the Government. The history is entitled "An Interpretative Report" and contains a foreword by Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, chairman of the council.

During the war, Mrs. Blair was in the news section of the former Woman's Committee, while her husband, Harry Blair, an attorney of Joplin, was abroad with the Y. M. C. A. After the armistice she was designated official historian for the committee. Her interpretation of the struggles, disappointments, achievements and victories of the American woman in mobilization was commended by the late Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, chairman of the committee, as being a true picture of the war work done by the women of the United States under the Federal and state governments.

The Council of National Defense is distributing the history as a Government document.

BRANNEN BUILDING, OLD TAVERN IN WEBSTER GROVES, SOLD

Three-Story Brick Structure to Be Altered and Used as Garage.

The Brannen Building, a three-story brick structure, opposite the Missouri Pacific passenger and freight stations on Gore avenue, Webster Groves, has been purchased by George Neff, who will make extensive alterations and establish a garage. The land contains 16,000 square feet and is one of the most valuable business corners in Webster. This is one of the landmarks of St. Louis County, having been a tavern and inn in the days when Webster Groves was considered a day's journey from St. Louis. James C. Moritt represented both parties.

Moritt reports the demand for Kirkwood and Webster homes during the summer months has been greater than ever and actual sales made are far in excess of any previous summer. Houses are scarce. Many of the older houses have been purchased and the contractors are busy getting them remodeled for fall occupancy. R. T. Gaebler, city salesman for the Moritt agency, reports the sale of a dozen bungalows and flats in South St. Louis.

NEW RECORD ESTABLISHED IN FAST BISCUIT MAKING

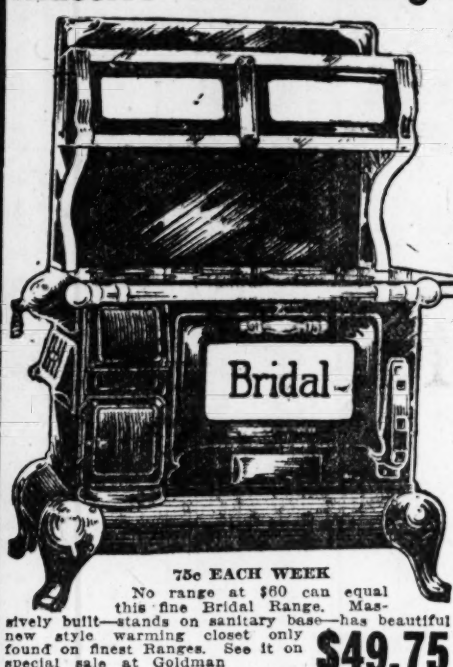

Missouri Farmer's Wife Turns Out Panful 4 1/2 Minutes After Grain Is Out.

CARROLLTON, Mo., Aug. 21.—Jim Lawton, near here, was not satisfied with his own record two years ago when his wife baked bread to a finish in 8 1/2 minutes after the grain was standing in the field, so he determined to beat this achievement the other day when harvest was begun on his farm. Biscuits and griddle cakes were the agencies used to establish the new record.

At a given time, the reaper stood at the corner of the field of growing wheat. Men were stationed every few feet along the line of grain, ready to seize an armful as it fell from the reaper and rush with it to the thrasher close by. The mill was just 12 rods distant. At a signal the mules sprang to work and in a minute and a half a peck of wheat was in the sack and on a horse that began a race for the mill. A minute and 17 seconds later the flour was delivered to Mrs. Lawton, and in three minutes and two seconds from the starting of the reaper the first griddle cakes were eaten. In four minutes and 30 seconds after the starting of the reaper a pan of biscuits was passed to the spectators.

St. Ferdinand's Festival Wednesday. The annual festival of St. Ferdinand's Church of Florissant, of which the Rev. J. M. Millet, S. J., is rector, will be given Wednesday afternoon and evening in the public park at Florissant. The festival is an annual event for the church, which celebrated its centennial in 1892, and many quaint French customs which have been preserved by the old residents of Florissant are revived for the occasion.

Heat Saps Power; Store Up Your Energy

Keep digestion perfect with Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and you will then have strength to work.

SUMMER is the season of vacations, of slowing up in work. And there is a good reason for it. Heat is enervating and work quickly tires. But people must work, and we should all keep ourselves in such fine physical condition that we can do our share even in hot weather.

Of first importance is to see that there is a regular, daily bowel elimination. If you skip a day you are constipated. Constipation, especially in summer, is quickly followed by fatigue, loss of appetite, chills and colds. There is no energy for work.

When you feel constipated and out of sorts, more tired than you know the circumstances warrant, take a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. This delightful laxative-herb with pepsin and can be bought at any drug store.

Syrup Pepsin will quickly relieve your constipation and give you a feeling of lightness and clear headedness.

FREE Millions of people of all ages suffer from occasional or chronic constipation. Let them send name and address to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 512 Washington St., Monticello, Ill., for a free sample bottle of his wonderful Syrup Pepsin. 8 million bottles were bought at drug stores last year, the largest sale in the world.

KANSAN WORKING ALONE BUILDING RAILROAD 13 YEARS

Rudolph Myers, Constructing Grade From Jetmore to Garden City, Is Now in His Thirteenth Mile.

HE REFUSES TO TELL HIS PURPOSE

He Is Said to Buy Right-of-Way a Mile at a Time and Work With 4 Mules He Had at Start.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. JETMORE, Kan., Aug. 21.—Kansas' one-man railroad is slowly but steadily pushing its way westward. It is the railway which Rudolph Myers is building, single-handed and isolated, from Jetmore to Garden City.

For 13 years Rudolph Myers has been engaged in the construction of this railroad grade. He now has 12 miles of grade completed. He is doing all the work without human help, with four mules and a small grading outfit. He buys the right-of-way a mile at a time. He seems to have plenty of money, pays cash for everything and only once in the 13 years has he been known to make any money.

Myers lives alone in a galvanized iron hut three miles southwest of Jetmore. The people about credit him with being a real railway grade builder. The grade he has constructed, without surveyors' lines or any civil engineering, is uniform in width, runs straight, and cuts and fills have been made according to approved construction lines.

Refuses to Talk of Road. Myers' railway grade starts a short distance southwest of Jetmore and heads southwest toward Garden City. A few more miles will connect it with the abandoned grade of the old Nickel Plate Railway, which ran northeast from Garden City in the old boom days, and later was torn up.

With the completion of the Myers grade it would be a simple matter for the Santa Fe Railroad to lay steel and carry the present Jetmore branch on to Garden City. But Myers doesn't talk about selling his grade or even offering it to the Santa Fe. In fact, he doesn't talk about it at all. Near neighbors have been unable to get him to tell why he is building it.

Myers arrived in Jetmore about 13 years ago with his four mules and the small grading outfit. Immediately he started to build his grade. He has the same four mules and the same outfit.

The story goes that Myers buys his right-of-way a mile at a time, pays cash for a deed, and then goes on about his business. That he is a grade builder goes without question when his work is investigated. The lines are run straight and the top of the grade is uniform in width the entire length. At one point on the road is a cut of about 40 rods, 10 to 12 feet deep. Here he has removed the rocks and dirt, and held the grade down to the level in good shape. When the grade crosses a ravine, he has left the gap open for bridge work.

Graded Streets for City.

Several years ago Myers was employed by the city of Jetmore to do some street grading. He did the work well, but never presented a bill for payment. After a year's waiting the City Council was able to persuade him to accept payment after considerable insistence. He has always paid spot cash for provisions and feed. For a right-of-way through one section of land he paid $500.

Myers is about 55 years old, and little is known of his life before he came to Jetmore, although it is said he previously was employed by the Santa Fe system as a grader. A story also is told that he formerly lived in an eastern Kansas town and that his family caused him to be committed to an asylum in order that they might assume control of his property. He obtained a release from the institution, sold his property, quit his family and made his way into Hodgeman County. It is said.

Myers appears to care little about the passage of time. However, at different times when he has been engaged in his work and some passer-by has remarked that the day was Sunday, the old man has unheeded his mules immediately and refrained from any further activity that day.

WHITE QUAIL LATEST FIND OF MAN WHO HAS STRANGE BIRDS

Special to the Post-Dispatch. LEON, Mo., Aug. 21.—C. W. Huffman, a farmer living near here, for a number of years has claimed the honor of being the discoverer of more freak birds than any other person in Missouri, his latest being a perfectly white quail he discovered among a covey on his farm. Huffman ran across the bird while working in his field. He at first thought it was some other bird, but a peculiar whirr of the quail, as the bird arose, convinced him that it was of that family.

SALVATION ARMY WORK IS EXTENDED TO RURAL DISTRICTS

Formation of County Advisory Boards in Missouri and Arkansas Announced.

The Salvation Army announced yesterday that it has perfected organizations in virtually every county in Missouri and Arkansas and as a result the plan to extend its activities to rural Missouri and Arkansas will be a success. The extension program has been in progress of development in the two states for 60 days.

The program calls for the organization of what are known as Salvation Army Advisory Boards in virtually every town or city of more than 1000 inhabitants. These boards, composed of representative citizens, co-operate with the Salvation Army in relieving distress. In each county in which a board is organized the facilities of the Army are made available to the residents.

Restricts Export of Antiques. PARIS, Aug. 21.—A new law modifies that of last April, which forbade the export of works of art or antique furniture dating back earlier than 1830, and also of the works of painters, sculptors and engravers who died more than 20 years ago. A special license for sending such things out of the country is now necessary, and this will not always be granted. When it is granted, however, the owner of the article will be taxed 15 or 20 per cent, according to whether its value be less than 5000 francs or 20,000 francs, and 25 per cent of its value be more than the larger figure.

Is There Any Man or Woman Who Does Not Enjoy the Greatness and Beauties of the Mountains?

Whether it be the attractive and restful Ozark Mountains right here in our own state,

Or the massive, picturesque Rocky Mountains of the West, which draw thousands of sightseers annually.

I am fortunate in having been able to spend a short time for the past few summers in the White Mountains of New Hampshire.

One enjoys looking for hours from the veranda of the magnificent hotel at this, "The Presidential Range" of mountains; the clouds and sunshine throw shadows which change the wonderful panorama every few minutes.

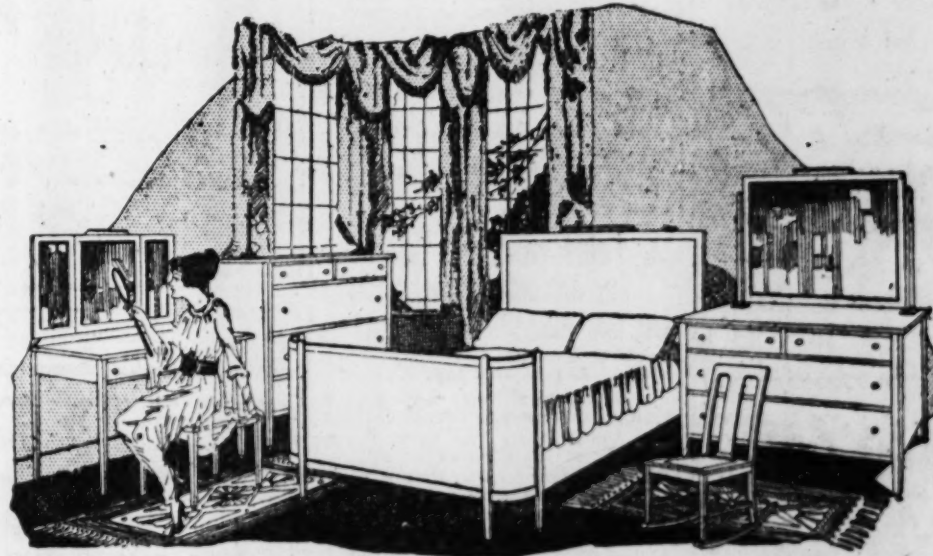

From these beautiful pictures the artist gets his inspiration and the tourist, motorist and vacationist find pleasure and rest.

The stately birch trees which grow on these New Hampshire mountains are made into the most durable chamber furniture, which is shipped in car lots to St. Louis and sold by the Prufrock-Litton Store.

Test It Free!

Get a box of REOLO from your druggist today. Deposit the regular price, $1.00 a box, as evidence of good faith. Then take Reolo regularly for two weeks according to directions. After you have tested Reolo for Two Weeks, if you are not perfectly satisfied and delighted with the improvement in your health, your druggist is hereby authorized to return your money.

Reolo Restores Health

Reolo supplies to the cells of the body the natural cell-salts, which are absolutely necessary to keep the body strong and vigorous. These cell-salts feed the cells of the nerves, blood, tissues, brain and bones. They build up what over-work, worry and over-exertion of brain or body have torn down.

Waste products are cast out, new cells grow, the hollow cells fill out and take on the ruddy glow of health, the spring comes back to the step, and the whole body pulses with health, strength and vitality. Reolo aids digestion and assimilation, stimulates the circulation of the blood, tones up the heart and nervous system, and gradually restores normal health, energy and endurance.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color, Gloss and Attractiveness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous. Just a few applications will prove a revelation, if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and lustrous.

Itched Till Almost Crazy

"My hands were almost raw. They itched so bad I was almost crazy. I tried day and night. Used all kinds of medicine and got no relief. Lost all hopes of ever being cured until I got a trial bottle of D. D. D. Results were so great I got a large bottle. Can sleep now and will not scratch. D. D. D. is the only cure for skin trouble—itch, eczema, etc. Should investigate at once the merits of D. D. D. Try it today. We guarantee the first bottle, 50c, and the second, $1.00."

COCONUT OIL FINE FOR WASHING HAIR

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.
Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Multisided coconut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls of Multisided will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Multisided coconut oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

Be sure your druggist gives you Multisided.

Arthur C. Larson, private, K Company, 140th Infantry. Reported missing in action Oct. 1, 1918; reported killed same day. In January, 1919, reported returned to his regiment. Did not come home. Address father, Arthur Larson, Minnawaukan, N. D.

ST. LOUIS DISTRICT THIRD IN SAVINGS STAMPS SALES
Missouri Banks Seventh Among States for July, Says Director's Report Just Issued.
The Eighth Federal Reserve District of the Savings Division, Treasury Department, was third in the country in the amount of sales of thrift and savings stamps, and treasury savings certificates for the month of July, according to the report received yesterday from Washington by R. R. Smith, government director of this district. The total sales for the district were $209,746. Missouri was the seventh state in the country in the July report of sales. Treasury savings certificates are on sale at many of the St. Louis banks and trust companies on the time payment plan, payments from $2 per week up can be made on the $100 certificates. Cash prices this month are $82.80 for the $100 certificates, and $83.80 for the $100 certificates. Both mature in 1925, bear interest at 4.27, and have tax exemption privileges. The certificates can be cashed before maturity in case of emergency, at purchase price plus interest.

STATE MEDALS FOR SOLDIERS
May Be Obtained at Missouri Historical Society Headquarters.
Medals from the Adjutant-General's office in Jefferson City for distribution to all soldiers, sailors and marines of St. Louis and St. Louis County who saw service in the recent war as well as on the Mexican border are at the headquarters of the Missouri Historical Society in the Jefferson Memorial at Forest Park. The filling out of application blanks, which will be furnished by the Historical Society, is all that is necessary to get the medals.

GREENWICH FOLLIES AT THE JEFFERSON SEPT. 5

Shubert Playhouse Announces Its List of Attractions for Season.

The Shubert-Jefferson Theater will open its season two weeks from tonight, Sept. 5, with "Greenwich Village Follies." It was announced yesterday. At the same time, a partial list of the season's attractions was given out, in which lighter entertainment predominates, with some more serious matter.

William Courtenay in "Civilian Clothes," a return attraction from last season's list, is scheduled for the Jefferson's second week. "Aphrodite," the notable New York spectacle, and the sumptuously revived "Florodora" are conspicuous in the list of later bookings. Other productions scheduled with more or less certainty are:

Jane Cowell in "Smilin' Through;" Fay Bainter in "East Is West;" Barney Bernard in "His Honor Abe Potash;" "The Passing Show of 1919;" "Lassie;" Leo Dittus in "The Purple Mask;" "Not So Long Ago;" "Up in Mabel's Room;" Guy Bates Post in a new play; Nora Bayes; Grace George in "The Ruined Lady;" "Kissing Time;" Al Jolson in "Sinbad;" "Broadway Brevities;" with Dorothy Jordan, Bert Williams and George LeMaire; "Cinderella on Broadway;" Frank Tinney in "Tickle Me;" Anna Pavlova; "The Little Blue Devil;" "The Maid of the Mountains;" "Adam and Eva;" "My Lady Friends;" Frances White in a new musical play; McIntyre and Heath; "The Girl in the Limousine;" "The Storm;" "Poor Little Ritz Girl;" "Mecca;" William Hodge in "The Guest of Honor;" "The Jury of Fate;" and "The Mid-night Rounders."

Orpheum Opens Tomorrow.
The Orpheum Theater, which in the past has made Labor day the occasion of its fall opening, will begin its fourth season two weeks ahead of that time. It will open with tomorrow's matinee, having Charles King's musical fantasy, "Love Letters," as the headline attraction.

"Love Letters" was written by Edgar Allan Woolf. In the cast presenting it will be Clarence Nordstrom and Ona Munson, Ernie Nichols, Maud Potter and Kate Pulliam and company. Howard Langford and Frederick will appear in a skit, "Shopping." He is a former player in "Katinka" and "The Velvet Lady." Others on the bill are Kenney and Nobody, Dunham and Williams, and the DeKoch family of gymnasts.

"Twin Beds," the furniture farce which has been coming here for several seasons, will open the American Theater's season next Sunday night, with Zaina Curzon and R. M. D'Angelo in the cast.

"Lincoln" Vote Contest.
The American expects to include in its list of attractions for this season, John Drinkwater's play, "Abraham Lincoln." It can get, early in the season, a second company, which William Harris Jr., the producer, is planning to organize. Or it can wait for the original American cast, which is now playing at the Cort Theater, New York. How long the wait would be, is not known. The American management has planned to conduct a voting contest, to determine whether St. Louis playgoers wish to wait for the New York company or see another company. Details of this voting are to be announced later.

The Empress Theater will present its second week's vaudeville bill tomorrow, headed by Harry Girard and company in a musical melodrama, "The Luck of a Totem." Herman Brothers, Housch and LaVelle, and Violet Gallet are on the bill.

The bill at the Rialto Theater tomorrow will be featured by the Ryan Sisters, Berrens and Leslie, dancers; Hughes and DeBrow, comedians; Elsie Williams and company in a playlet, "Who Was to Blame?" and Jessie Baker and William Redford are also on the bill, besides two acts of a gymnastic character.

The nine-act opera of the Grand Opera House, beginning tomorrow, will be headed by "The Spirit of Mardi Gras." Louis Hart, portrait painter and strong man, will appear in the latter capacity. Harry Hayward in "The Firefly" and Johnny Johnston in "The Poet and the Peasant" are other numbers.

At the Columbia Tudor Cameron and Petrie will appear in "The Apple Sisters," and Dunbar's Old-Time Darkies will entertain.

SHIPS LOSE MONEY IN STRIKE

U. S. Vessels Unable to Get Return Cargoes at River Platte Ports.
Correspondents of the Associated Press.
BUENOS AIRES, July 22.—American vessels in the River Platte trade have suffered serious losses by being unable to find return cargoes in many cases because of the refusal of port workers to handle wool and hides out of sympathy with strikers in the wool and hides markets, according to shipping men. This strike has continued for several months, and, as a result, almost no wool and hides are being moved. Normally these two items furnish many return cargoes for American vessels, and the continued strike has put ships to loss of time and cargo. The result, according to shipping men, is that a number of ships are being diverted and that charter prices are more or less unstable.

Thousands Cured by Drinking Mineral Water

The Famous Perla Mineral Springs at Excelsior Springs, Mo., Makes Generous Offer to Sufferers.

Every year as many as 250,000 people visit Excelsior Springs, Mo., to drink the wonderful waters found there. Invalids from all over the country, given up by their home doctors, find health and vigor in the mineral and curative agents compounded far underground by Nature.

Probably the most famous waters are those found in the Perla Mineral Spring, and many thousands who have suffered from Gout, Rheumatism, Consumption, Liver and Kidney troubles and similar ailments have been permanently relieved by drinking it.

No confident are the owners of the spring that this water will benefit you that they offer to send a $1 carton of Perla Mineral Water to anyone who will write for it. When dissolved in water this is equal to ten gallons of Perla Mineral Water. Their offer is that it is to be paid for only if it benefits the person taking it. It is to be the sole judge and report results within 10 days.

If you suffer from any of the above diseases, write a card today, send no money—just your name and address. Perla Mineral Water, 310 Perla Bldg., Excelsior Springs, Mo.

Famous Screen and Stage Beauty Tells Why She Takes Nuxated Iron

TO INCREASE STRENGTH, ENERGY AND POWER BY BUILDING RICH, RED BLOOD
Thousands of Women Become Care-Worn and Show Signs of Age Simply Because They Fail To Safeguard Their Health—Says Physician
In Commenting Upon the Experience of Miss Dorothy Dalton.

"Known to millions as one of the most brilliant screen and stage stars before the public today, Miss Dorothy Dalton, who for the past season played the leading role in the notable New York production of "Aphrodite," now explains how Nuxated Iron proved a wonderful strength-giving help in her strenuous work.

"Miss Dalton says: "In my picture work and on the stage, which at times is very strenuous, I have found Nuxated Iron a great help. It has wonderful building powers and makes rich blood."

In commenting upon the above statement, Dr. T. Alphonsus Wallace, a physician of many years' experience and formerly of the British Naval Medical Service, says: "Miss Dalton's case is one that clearly shows what may be accomplished by a young woman in keeping up vigorous health and strength while undergoing the strain of long hours and hard work. There are thousands of other women in different occupations of life who show signs of age years before they should, simply because they fail to take the same precautions in safeguarding their health with Nuxated Iron."

Dr. Wallace says: "You can tell the women whose blood is rich in strength-giving iron when the iron in your blood runs low, your red blood corpuscles are by millions, the strength comes from your body, the color from your face—that mirror of yourself—and your every action is full of power. All most invariably in these cases I prescribe organic iron—Nuxated Iron—to enrich the blood and create thousands of new red blood cells, thereby quickly transforming the flabby, toneless flesh into firm, healthy tissue. I have known women take iron to give women increased strength and energy in two weeks' time and make them look years younger."

Dr. Kenneth K. MacAlpine, a prominent New York Surgeon, member of the New York State Medical Society and for 20 years Adjunct Professor of the New York Post Graduate Medical School and Hospital, says: "You can tell the women whose blood is rich in strength-giving iron when they are the beautiful, healthy, rosy-checked ones, radiant with life, vim and vigor—bright and alert after every day's work. Yet despite all that has been said and written by physicians about the alarming iron deficiency in the blood of the average American woman today, there are still thousands who need something to increase their red blood corpuscles and are either unaware of their condition or do not know what to take. In my opinion there is nothing better than organic iron—Nuxated Iron—to help make healthy, full-blooded, beautiful women."

In commenting upon Dr. MacAlpine's statement regarding the alarming iron deficiency in the blood of the average American woman today, Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Hospital, says: "I fully agree with Dr. MacAlpine that there can be no healthy, rosy-checked women without iron. I have strongly recommended that doctors should prescribe more organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for their patients, run-down, weak, haggard looking."

Miss Dorothy Dalton

Beautiful Star of Spectacular "Aphrodite" production, often called the modern Venus—keenly interested in aviation and other outdoor sports—now recommends Nuxated Iron.

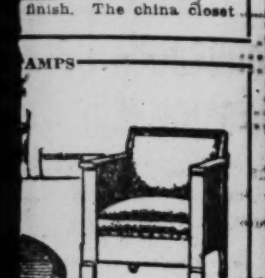

ing women patients. Anemia—iron deficiency—is the greatest cause to the health, strength, vitality and beauty of the modern American woman. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Numbers of nervous run-down women, who were ailing all the while, have surprisingly increased their strength and endurance in two weeks' time in many instances.

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron, which is recommended above, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. The older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated and does not irritate the stomach, make them black, nor upset the stomach. Each tablet of genuine Nuxated Iron is stamped as follows and the words Nuxated Iron are stamped into each bottle, so that the public may not be led into accepting inferior substitutes. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

NEW BOOKS FOR THE WEEK AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Any of these books will be sent by parcel post to card-holders on receipt of postage, in order of application.

ENSLAVED, AND OTHER POEMS. By John Masefield.—A volume for second reading. The London Spectator in a review says of "Enslaved": "The story, like an impatient guide, hurries us along at a running pace and we only get a fleeting half-view of the white topping seas, of rigging black in the moonlight, of the dripping walls of a cave where the galley slaves are imprisoned, and the high, white-washed wall of the Khalif's house."

THE ROAMER, AND OTHER POEMS. By George E. Woodberry.—The most striking poem in this collection is the "Roamer", a lengthy narrative of the soul's progress, dealing with the religious, social and aesthetic ideals of the age. Mr. Woodberry devoted more than 20 years to the composition of this poem. At one time he was professor of comparative literature at Columbia University. He is a member of the American Academy of Arts and Letters, and an honorary fellow of the Royal Society of Literature.

LIBERAL REPUBLICAN MOVEMENT. By Earle D. Ross.—A thesis submitted to the faculty of the Graduate School of Cornell University, in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy. The author is professor of history at Illinois Wesleyan University.

ROMANCE OF MODERN COMMERCE. By H. Osman Newland.—The story of the production of such things as cereals, coffee, rubber, tobacco, cotton, silk, wool, timber, cattle, oil, furs and precious stones. Mr. Newland is lecturer in commercial history, sociology and English literature in the London County Council.

SHORT HISTORY OF THE AMERICAN LABOR MOVEMENT. By Mary Bowd.—Brief story of the labor movement in the United States, from the day of independence to the present time. Includes the origin and growth of trade unions, the development of the American Federation of Labor, growth of the more radical organizations and the currents of thought that have developed out of the world war.

MERCHANT ADVENTURERS, 1914-1918. By F. A. Hook.—An interesting account of the Merchant Marine of Great Britain. Contains maps and illustrations from photographs.

REMINISCENCES OF MORRIS STEINERT. By Mrs. Jane Morlin, Comp.—Story of the musician's life as dictated to Mrs. Jane Morlin, who has arranged and compiled it. Contains a short history of the pianoforte.

Postcard 13 Years in Mails. PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 21.—A postcard which has been traveling 13 years from Wildwood, N. J., arrived here the other day. It was mailed in August, 1907. The postcard was addressed to Thomas Smith, a policeman of the Fourth and York Streets Station. It was received in first-class condition. Smith has been dead for five years.

Confidence In Acme Proved Construction

After carefully investigating other trucks, I finally decided on the Acme because of the "Proved Units" used in its construction and its splendid service record. I know of Acme trucks which are giving uninterrupted service to their owners after five years of hard usage.

My experience with the performance of my 2-ton Acme more than justifies my claim that the proved units used in its construction are the best that can be incorporated in a motor truck.

Acme Qualities That Win

For easy riding, easy driving, power and operating economy, and low repair costs and uninterrupted service, Acme stands out conspicuously in the entire motor truck field. Acmes are built on known standards and sold on positive facts. Acme proved construction means not only that proved units, carefully selected, are used, but that they are also correctly assembled.

Built in 1, 1½, 2, 3½ and 5 ton Models
Every Model Consistent in Design and Quality

A Sale Extraordinary!

Lehigh Tires

From the List Price

Monday morning at 8:30 we shall place on sale a quantity of Lehigh Tires of first quality, guaranteed five thousand miles.

The discount of 50% from the list prices does not imply that this is the extent of the saving, because all Tires are sold on the basis of a discount from the list price. Fifty per cent, however, is a greater discount than has been offered on Lehigh Tires.

To illustrate—it brings the price of the popular 30x3½ down to $11.75, and other sizes in proportion.

Autoists should avail themselves of this unusual opportunity. This is a feature of the Removal Sale of the Men's Store Across the Street.

MARTINS NOW ON WAY SOUTH
By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—Thousands of purple martins from Michigan, Indiana, Wisconsin and Illinois halted here recently in Jackson Park and in Evanston, on their journey to their winter home in Central America. The birds flocked in the trees, on telephone wires and on the grass while resting up for the next leg of their semi-annual itinerary.

It is said that the only places the martins gather in the Chicago region are in Jackson Park and on a vacant lot in Evanston. They arrive from the south around April 10, and gather again in early August for the return flight.

NEW FACILITIES FOR RELIEF OF AUSTRIANS

Orders for Supplies to Be Delivered by Committee May Be Purchased.

New facilities for the sending of relief by Americans to their relatives and friends in Vienna and elsewhere in Austria are announced by the American Committee for Vienna Relief, with headquarters in the People's Gas Building, Chicago. Festus J. Wade of St. Louis is a member of the committee, of which Harold F. McCormick is honorary chairman and Dr. Charles S. Bacon chairman. The committee announces that its forwarding and distributing service may be used in sending relief supplies to sufferers in Vienna, Innsbruck, Gratz, Salzburg, Linz and other cities of the Austrian republic. "This committee," it is stated, carries on its work through the Government Food Administrations of Austria, and its work is officially recognized and approved by President Seitz.

"It has been the general complaint of those who have tried to relieve the distress of their friends in Austria that, in addition to the great cost of forwarding and the months required for the goods to reach their destination, a large percentage of the packages are looted in transit and only empty or near-empty boxes delivered.

"In order to avoid these excessive costs, long delays and disappointing losses, the American Committee for Vienna Relief has established free distributing stations in the Austrian centers, and has arranged with the Government Food Administrations of Austria to provide these stations with food supplies at wholesale prices. It now remains for those who desire to send relief to friends and relatives in Austria without loss or delay, and without the payment of extortionate profits, to unite in buying through the Austrian Food Administrations and delivering through the Free Distributing Stations.

"According to the prices quoted by the Government Food Administrations of Austria, a food parcel consisting of 24 pounds of flour, 8 pounds of bacon or lard, 10 pounds of beans and 8 cans of condensed milk can be delivered in Vienna at a cost of $6.50. No profit is made by anyone connected with the transaction.

"It is expected through this method of distribution not only to save millions of dollars to American givers, but to insure safe and prompt delivery of their humanitarian gifts."

WEALTHY WOMAN DECLARES ALL PERSONS SHOULD WORK

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Mrs. Seth Barton French, herself a wealthy woman, sailing for Europe on the Adriatic, deplored the present extravagance of Americans and ostentatious display of wealth as tending to develop Bolshevism.

Mrs. French then turned to her son, William Barton French, held a warning finger before him and exclaimed: "And I've told that to my boy, too." He quickly agreed. "Yes, I've been preaching that capital and labor should get together."

Mrs. French arrived a week ago on the Adriatic after spending about five years in war and post-war work in France. In the past week she has traveled 2,000 miles on "personal business." She said that she had decided to go into business next spring for the reason that "now every man and woman must go to work." Mrs. French declined to tell what business she will enter. She added: "Bolshevism is a situation that must be met. It is only an advanced form of Socialism, so this country must face it on that basis. We spend without reason. We make an ostentatious display of money. When a young man with a high-powered automobile speeds through a town menacing the children, that makes for Bolshevism."

"There are too many millionaires' sons who are spending lavishly the money earned by the sweat of their parents. The people of this country are not getting down to business. They are more interested in whether Babe Ruth makes another home run than they are in the future of the United States."

INRGARD

100° in the Shade

Nobody likes tire troubles on a hot day or any other day. INRGARDS practically end tire troubles for they are guaranteed to absolutely prevent blowouts and 90% of all punctures. They double tire mileage. They cost little and do much.

WINTON SIX

What a Jolt it is!

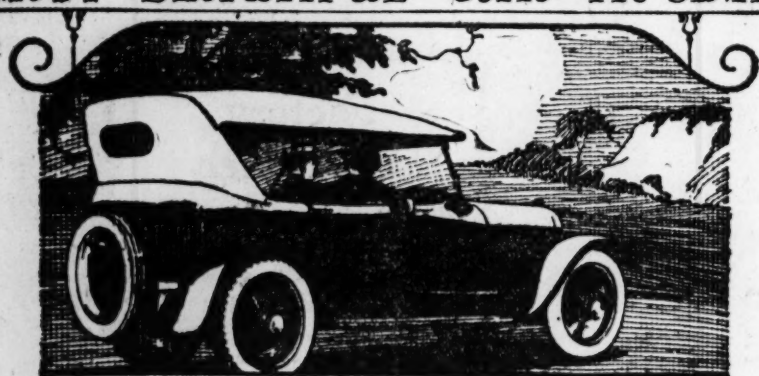

When you fully believe you own the best car that money can buy, a car that is just right in every respect, what a jolt it is to have some other car leave you behind on getaway. Or show you its rear view when you are at the limit of your speed. Or overtake you on a stiff climb, and inch by inch, foot by foot, prove to you its superior power.

These things do happen. But why let them happen to you? Why not have your own monogram on the car that stars in getaway, that has the sustained speed, that fears nothing on hills? You will find that car in the amazing new Winton Six. May we show you? Simply telephone.

PAIGE

THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CAR IN AMERICA

IN actual service, our seven-passenger model has proved itself a car of superlative worth, possessing every advantage of the high-powered car, yet remarkably free from the customary disadvantages.

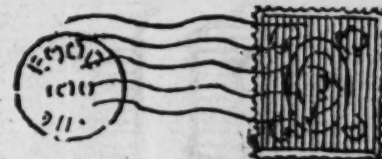

It satisfies every requirement of power and speed, without imposing a burden of excessive upkeep.

The Paige Six-55 meets the demand for a car large in size, yet moderate in price. A more beautiful, and luxuriously comfortable vehicle is not to be found on the automobile market today.

Oakland owners regularly report return of from 18 to 25 miles from the gallon of gasoline and from 8000 to 12,000 miles on tires.

The 365-Days-a-Year Car

You wouldn't buy a watch that could run in fair weather only. It would be a bad investment in this climate.

Why not insist on 365-day value in your motor car?

All kinds-of weather look alike to the driver of an Oakland closed car—Coupe or Sedan. He gets at least twice as much service as he would from a car he was afraid to take out every time the skies were frowning.

And the sturdy Oakland—with 44-H. *P. valve-in-head engine—is built to go in any kind of weather, on any kind of roads. An inspection will convince you that, for all its ruggedness, it is the most beautiful, economical and easily operated car in the market.

Kopper King

Ruggedness—

"Kopper King" fearlessly steps out into the fierce white light of comparison and criticism—even hostile criticism.

It welcomes comparison—seeks it, in fact. Lay the "Kopper King" alongside of other Spark Plugs and compare them ultra-critically part by part from terminal to electrodes—and it outpoints them every time, decisively. Plug for plug, it's 'way out in the lead.

That's the way to buy your Spark Plugs—by reason, not by tradition—by downright value and spark-efficiency and not by habit—by critical, cold-blooded COMPARISON, without bias or favor.

That manner of shrewd buying will lead you straightway to the "Kopper King."

UNIVERSAL TERMINAL

IMPORTED CORNISH KAOLIN PORCELAIN

It is the Spark Plug with the famous Copper Coat on the shell, both inside and out. That's your "insulation" against carbonizing—hot carbon deposits do not adhere readily to copper surfaces. And then the Porcelain. For out-and-out, shock-defying wear, the porcelain on the "Kopper King" is absolutely supreme—made as it is of tough, imported Cornish Kaolin fused to rock-like hardness at a sustained temperature of 2600 degrees Fahrenheit. Two-piece construction—easy to take apart and clean.

Equip every cylinder on your engine with a "Kopper King" and carry a couple of "spares" under the seat. Sold by the dealers shown below.

OLD MAID IS DISAPPEARING IN ENGLAND; ALL YOUNG NOW

1,000,000 Women Without Husbands, but Faded Spinster Who "Detects Men" Is No Longer Seen.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—What has become of the once typical "old maid?" There are in Great Britain 1,000,000 women of marriageable age for whom there are no husbands; there are more than 2,000,000 more female humans than male. Yet the "old maid" has vanished, there are no more disappointed, faded women who crocheted, were fond of cats as companions, go to sewing circles and "positively detect" men. To be sure, there remain very many spinsters, "women of a certain age." But their conversation is brilliant, their bearing youthful, they are not moody, but lead active, helpful lives.

Sportswomen attribute the old maid's disappearance to the influence of athletics. Professional women declare it to be due to their widened scope of work. Artistic women say that modern freedom and lack of restriction keep the spinster of uncertain age "off the shelf."

"It is true that there are no more old maids," says Mrs. Champion de Crespigny, authoress and artist. "Although she loses a great deal in life by her unmarried state the spinster has much to do in the world, and although she may be 'superfluous' in a marriageable sense she is far from being so in other respects.

"The world has become a much pleasanter place in many ways for old as well as young people. Women keep their youth far longer, whether they be married or single, for they have multitudinous interests to keep them young.

"We may well ask where the old maids have gone when we see thousands of well-groomed women in the 40s and 50s full of life and energy, sparkling with humor, athletically fit, professionally efficient or artistically brilliant."

BLIND MULE TIMES SELF SO THAT IT STEPS OVER CABLE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BOONVILLE, Mo., Aug. 21.—A moon-eyed mule, owned by J. A. Payne of Nelson, has had a monotonous existence, but, even though he cannot see anything more than daylight, his long service has made him proficient in at least one thing. Part of the equipment that Payne uses and to which this mule has been hitched for 22 years, is a cable and standard around which the cable winds as houses are moved along streets.

The mule has gone around this standard a countless number of times, and after stumbling over the cable quite often he learned to become so accurate in timing himself that he never fails to step high every time he gets to the cable so that he gets over without hitting it.

Before You Buy Another Tire

you owe yourself this investigation

More than 1,000,000 motorists in the United States have found a way of cutting their tire cost in half.

They are getting 10,000 to 15,000 miles out of the same kind of tires that you have been throwing away after 5,000 to 6,000 miles.

You too can benefit by the same kind of a saving if you will take advantage of it.

The tires now on your car—even though they are tread worn and scarred with service—can be made to double their mileage.

It's the Gates Half-Sole Tire that has upset all the old extravagant and wasteful ideas about tires and they are revolutionizing the tire business.

Business houses and car owners everywhere—now over a million of them in the United States alone—have taken advantage of this big saving.

There are now 2,153 authorized Gates Half-Sole Tire service stations in the United States. There is one near you and there's a trained expert there ready to give you service.

CHANDLER SIX

Demand for this Closely Priced Fine Car is Greatest in Chandler History

YOU who want to invest your money wisely in an automobile must be interested in the Chandler Six. Chandler price policy—price based upon production costs and a fair profit, and nothing else—has always attracted the attention of careful buyers. And now in 1920, with demand and production greater than ever before, this Chandler policy places the Chandler Six in a still more commanding position.

Today the Chandler is almost without competition in the field of medium-priced fine cars. Cars that were selling two years ago at within fifty or a hundred dollars of the Chandler, are listed today at hundreds more. A continuous demand beyond possible supply has never marked up a Chandler price.

And the Chandler Six is a big, handsome car. It pleases the most exacting, alike for the beauty and comfort of its fine bodies as for the proven excellence of its standard chassis construction.

The six body types are exceptionally graceful of line and highly finished, combining to a most happy degree, a sincere consideration for your comfort.

The seats are deep and restful, tilted to just the proper comfort-point, and offering a roominess well in excess of the stated passenger capacity. Upholstery is of genuine hand-buffed leather in the open models and of a high-grade silk-plush material in the closed models. The arrangement of gear shift, of brake and clutch, as of the instrument board fittings, extend an invitation to you to "take the wheel."

By constant development and refinement through a period of seven years, the one standard chassis, distinguished for its really marvelous motor, has been brought to a state of approximate perfection.

And in these years, many cars of many kinds and many motors loudly heralded, have come and gone or fallen back into their rightful rank.

In all, the Chandler offers you everything that any one could ask for, and at a price that recognizes no competition.

FOUR AMENDMENTS TO LEAGUE ARE PROPOSED

Norway, Sweden and Denmark Unite in Offering Changes in Covenant.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Aug. 21.—Headquarters of the League of Nations announced yesterday that four important amendments to the covenant have been suggested by Denmark, Norway and Sweden for consideration at the first meeting of the league assembly, Nov. 15.

The four proposed amendments were announced as follows:

1. Providing for a fixed annual meeting of the assembly and proposing that 19 members of the league can demand and secure a special meeting at any time at the seat of the league.
2. Seeking to regularize the method of selecting the four nonpermanent members of the council. It is proposed to accomplish this by providing that the assembly, after making the first selections of four to serve respectively three, four, five and six years, shall name a new state yearly after the third year to serve four years and not be subject to re-election for the following period. It is suggested that this method would secure successive representation on the council of a large number of states and would maintain continuity in the composition of the council.
3. Making the obligation for arbitration more absolute by omitting the word "generally" from article 13 in the paragraph beginning "disputed" and ending "submission to arbitration."
4. Permitting the council to authorize a state in the vicinity of a state against which an economic blockade is in force, to maintain a degree of intercourse with the latter, provided the council considers this necessary in order to prevent the blockaded state from attacking its neighbor.

ENGLISH WORD 'GENTLEMAN' ADDED TO FRENCH LANGUAGE

Adopted by Academy the Preference to 'Gentilhomme' Which Really Means Nobleman.

PARIS, Aug. 21.—The French Academy, which devotes long sittings to the task of keeping the French language absolutely correct, and which regards all foreign words introduced into the language with horror, has just made an exception in favor of the English word "gentleman," which is henceforward to have a place in the official dictionary of France.

The word "gentleman" is very frequently used in modern writing and conversation rather than the time-honored "gentilhomme," which ordinarily means nobleman, but which, in the new edition of the dictionary, is also to be described as meaning "a man who, without being noble by race, has lofty sentiments, elegant manners, and does noble acts." As for the word "gentleman," it is to be described in the dictionary as "an English word, sometimes employed in French in the metaphorical and moral sense of the word gentilhomme."

This is undoubtedly not the last time the French Academy will be called upon to give an official welcome to an English word which has become current in the French language. For example, the word "home" is becoming a great favorite, and the misuse of the words

"smoking" and "dancing," for "smoking jacket" and "dance hall" has become so usual that the English origin of the words is quite forgotten.

MORE SUGAR HELD IN UNITED STATES THAN EVER BEFORE

Law of Supply and Demand to Make Self Felt by Lower Prices—Shortage Reports False.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—The great sugar bubble has burst. In the opinion of statisticians of the Department of Agriculture, a further downward trend in prices is inevitable unless prevented by market manipulation. The law of supply and demand, temporarily obstructed by artificial means, is again making itself felt, and the consumer, long the victim of profiteering, speculation and hoarding, is reaping the benefit.

There is not only no shortage of sugar in the United States, but, according to estimates of the department, there is actually a larger supply on hand than ever before. The total amount of sugar grown in the United States and imported during the year ended June 30 was 11,173,000,000 pounds. Of this, 1,444,000,000 pounds was exported, leaving available for domestic consumption 9,729,000,000 pounds. During the three preceding years the net amount available for domestic consumption averaged 8,428,000,000. In other words, these figures show that while the cry of shortage was going up from dealers all over the country and prices were shooting to unprecedented levels, there was actually a margin of 17 per cent above the average supply of the three preceding years.

"On the basis of supply and demand," said L. M. Estabrook, chief of the Bureau of Crop Estimates, "there was never any justification for the high prices of sugar. There is an old economic law that a 10 per cent increase in production means a 30 per cent decrease in price. Yet, in face of the 17 per cent increase in the supply of sugar, we paid prices ranging up to 30 cents a pound."

"In the panicky conditions growing out of the sugar shortage, speculation, too, contributed to the rise in prices, and as everybody knows, there was profiteering."

"Sugar has been coming in from countries all over the globe. Just the other day I saw a truck here in Washington loaded with sugar from Java, a country that never used to ship sugar to the United States. There may be in the future local shortage here and there in the United States, due to crop failures, but they are bound to be temporary. The supply is here."

ST. LOUIS MAN KILLS SHARK AFTER FIGHT OF TWO HOURS

H. W. Geller Has Thrilling Battle While Fishing Off Catalina Island.

SPECIAL TO THE POST-DISPATCH.
LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 21.—H. W. Geller of St. Louis, a Catalina Island tourist, today is convalescing from excitement and receiving congratulations at St. Catherine's Hotel following his adventure yesterday afternoon when he fought two hours with a shark weighing more than 100 pounds.

More than once, as Geller tried to gaff the fish, it seemed the boat would be upset, but the fight finally was won with fish, fisherman and boat drenched with blood and salt water.

The shark will be mounted and sent to St. Louis.

At the office of the Geller, Ward & Hasner Hardware Co., 412 North Fourth street, it was said yesterday that Henry W. Geller, president of the company, is in California.

AGED WOMAN RUN DOWN AND KILLED BY LAWYER'S AUTO

Sixty-Eighth Motor Fatality of Year Occurs on Delmar Boulevard in Front of St. Luke's Hospital.

PAY ENVELOPE ONLY CLEW TO IDENTITY

Victim, White-Haired and Dressed in Black, More Than 60 Years Old—Skull and Arm Fractured.

A white-haired woman, apparently more than 60 years old, was struck and killed last night, on Delmar boulevard west of Belt avenue, in front of St. Luke's Hospital, by an automobile driven by Max F. Ruler of 4231 Washington boulevard. A pay envelope in her stocking bore the name "Ellen Dolan."

This was the sixty-eighth motor vehicle fatality recorded in St. Louis for the year 1920.

Ruler was arrested and taken to the St. Louis Police Station. He was later released on $3000 bond. He said his wife and son were in the car with him, and that he was driving west at about 12 miles an hour. He said the woman was walking in the space between the westbound street car track and the stone curb which separates the street car space from the pavement.

She stepped over the curb suddenly, in front of his machine, he said. The woman's skull was fractured at the base, and her right arm was broken. She was dead when physicians came out of the hospital to make an examination. The body was taken to the morgue.

The pay envelope, with the name of Dolan, contained a $20 bill. The woman was dressed in black, even her shirt waist being of that color. She had a bundle containing a nightgown, marked with the letters "D. D. D." and a few other articles.

Policemen, canvassing the neighborhood, learned that an Ellen Dolan had been employed recently in the Jewish Hospital for a short time. Her address was not known.

Charles Blakely, 15 years old, of 1237 Chouteau avenue, suffered a fractured skull and scalp wounds caught between a tandem motorcycle on the rear seat of which she was riding, and an automobile, on Eighteenth street, between Wash street and Franklin avenue, last evening. Her left leg was fractured. She is in the city hospital.

The motorcycle was driven by Gus Meyers of 1224 Hickory street. It was trailing an automobile, and when the automobile suddenly turned to the left, to run into an alley, Meyers tried unsuccessfully to swerve the cycle to avoid a collision.

SOLDIERS TO USE PARLOR CAR IN LIEU OF RECEPTION HALL

Twelfth Engineers Will Entertain Former Chaplain in U. R.

A United Railways parlor car, standing on a sidetrack at Grand and Cook avenues, will be the scene of a reception to be given by members of the Twelfth Engineers' Regiment tomorrow night, in honor of the Rev. Father Charles S. Gorman, former chaplain of the regiment in France. The car was obtained when there was difficulty in finding a convenient hall.

Father Gorman, who was chaplain of the Twelfth during its entire period of service overseas, is now assistant pastor of a church in Philadelphia.

STRIKING MINERS AND GUARDS FIGHTING IN WEST VIRGINIA

Telephone Message From State Policeman Tells of Use of Machine Guns Against Strikers.

By the Associated Press.
CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 21.—Striking miners and private mine guards were tonight fighting at Clarksburg, Raleigh County, W. Va., according to advices received here tonight by Col. Jackson Arnold, commander of the State police, from Corp. Roads, who is stationed in that region.

The corporal telephoned the report, Col. Arnold announced. He added that, according to the message, strikers of Weirwood Coal Co. at Clarksburg were engaged in battle with the guards, and that miners of the Willis Branch Coal Co. had joined forces with the guards and were using machine guns. The corporal made no mention of casualties. Dr. C. C. Lee, secretary of the Willis Branch Coal Co., told the Charleston Gazette by telephone tonight that the shooting could be heard in Glen Jean, 10 miles from Clarksburg. He said he had been informed that "the wires have been cut."

The telephone operator at Pax, two miles from the scene, said "it appears that the lines are down." She added that the shooting could be heard plainly at Pax.

Two members of the State constabulary are in Clarksburg at the present time, and several detachments of troops have been ordered to proceed there immediately, Col. Arnold said tonight.

There has been a strike of miners in progress in the New River district, including employees of the Weirwood operations, since last November.

$1100 IS REPORTED STOLEN FROM HOME

$3016 of Clothing and Other Valuables Also Taken, Man Tells Police.

The theft of $1100 in currency and of clothing, table linen and silverware which he valued at $2016, was reported to the police last night by Frank Temple, 3628 De Tonty street.

Temple said that during the absence of himself and family between 6:30 and 10:30 o'clock, a rear bedroom door of his residence was jammed and the entire house ransacked. The money, which was in $1, $2, $5 and $10 bills, he said, was locked in a dresser drawer. Three women's sealskin coats, valued at $1200, were taken, he said. Other items of the loot he gave were 11 silk shirts valued at $100, 18 silk waists valued at $216, table linen valued at $300 and silverware, $300.

Temple said that frequently he has large sums of money in his home. He said he had a printing and binding business at 21 South Ninth street and from an insurance business which he also conducts.

He told a Post-Dispatch reporter that his report of loss was only such as he could determine in a hasty examination and that perhaps it would prove incomplete.

WANTS BURGLARS TO KNOW THERE'S NO MONEY IN HIS SAFE

Robbers Fail to Open Strong Box On Third Floor of Hotel, Men $15 for Repairs.

J. Schreiber, president of the General Engineering and Manufacturing Co., 1519 South Tenth street, wants the burglars who have been systematically trying to crack his office safe to know that he does not keep any money there. It is useless for them to go around there any more, Schreiber says, and, besides, it has cost him $15 for repairs each time they called, so he believes he is not asking too much in requesting them to stay away.

Schreiber made his complaint yesterday to a Post-Dispatch reporter, following a third attempt in as many months to open the safe in his office. The last was Friday night when the burglars hammered off the combination and hinges but failed to budge the outer door.

Saturday is payday at the plant, and Schreiber, in view of the fact that the burglars always called on Friday night, believes they were after the payroll money, but he does not keep it in the safe, and he wishes the burglars to know that.

KOREANS TELL U. S. SENATOR OF GRIEVANCES AGAINST JAPAN

Group of Leaders Follow American Congressman to Seoul.

PEKIN, China, Aug. 21.—A group of Korean leaders conferred with Senator William J. Harris of Georgia and Representative Stephen B. Porter of Pennsylvania here Friday. They presented documents and oral statements concerning Korean grievances against Japanese rule in that country and urged assistance from the Americans.

The Koreans followed the American Congressional party now touring the East here from Shanghai. The fact that the Japanese Legation here warned the Americans of prevalence of cholera in Korea failed to cause any change in the party's itinerary through Korea to Japan.

SEARCH FOR MISSING CREW OF LOST STEAMER

Life Savers Search Lake Where Superior City Sunk With 29 Persons.

SAULT STE MARIE, Mich., Aug. 21.—Coast guards and life savers conducted a futile search tonight for survivors of the steamer Superior City which went down off White Fish Point late Friday night after a collision with the Willis L. King, according to meager reports reaching here.

Twenty-eight members of the crew and one woman were missing and the four survivors who were brought here after being picked up from the wreckage had all but abandoned hope for their rescue, owing to the short time that elapsed between the collision and an explosion in the boiler room which completely wrecked the stern of the steel ore carrier.

The survivors, Captain Edward Sawyer of Almont, Mich.; Walter Richter of Lorain, O.; a boatwain; Cal Leube, Chicago, second mate and Peter Jacobson, Cleveland, a wheelman left here tonight for their homes, after receiving treatment for injuries sustained when they were thrown with the wreckage into Lake Superior.

Belief that a number of the missing were killed or severely injured by the explosion was expressed by Captain Sawyer. The majority of them were in staterooms directly over the boiler room, he said, and undoubtedly that section of the vessel was entirely ripped up for wreckage was strewn over the waters for yards around before the vessel took her final plunge, less than five minutes after the collision.

Captain Sawyer attributed the sudden sinking of the vessel, notwithstanding her six water tight compartments, to her heavy cargo of iron ore.

Neither Capt. Edward Sawyer of the ill-fated steamer, nor Capt. Herman Nelson of the Willis L. King would supplement their statements, made early today, as to weather conditions at the time of the tragedy. Capt. Nelson declares the weather was fair, but was developed in a heavy fog. Capt. Sawyer denied this, stating the night was clear.

AMERICAN SOCIALISTS OPPOSE DICTATORSHIP OF PROLETARIAT

Third Internationale Is Indorsed With Reservations in Referendum Votes.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 21.—Indorsement of the third international with certain reservations, by the Socialist party of the United States, was announced here today by the executive committee as the outcome of a referendum vote taken under instructions of the national convention held in New York last May.

It was also announced that the party, in another referendum, had declared against the adoption of the "dictatorship of the proletariat," as practiced in Russia.

The committee gathered here at the call of Otto Branstetter, executive secretary, of Chicago, to plan for the presidential campaign and hear reports of subcommittees in charge of the referendums.

Army Lieutenant Makes Safe Landing With Two Parachutes.

By the Associated Press.
ARCADIA, Fla., Aug. 21.—Lieut. Arthur G. Hamilton of the Army dropped 20,900 feet by parachute today at Carlstrom Field, landing safely and established what officers said was a new world's record. He carried two parachutes when he jumped from the airplane, the second being released as he neared the ground to slow up for the landing.

DANIELS RECEIVES WIRELESS FROM BORDEAUX, FRANCE

First Message From Lafayette Station, Largest in World, Just Completed by U. S. Navy.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—The first wireless message "to be heard around the world" was received by Secretary Daniels from the Lafayette Radio Station at Bordeaux, France.

The message was the first to be sent from the Lafayette Station, Bordeaux, the world's largest, has just been completed by the United States Navy and is undergoing official test before being turned over to the French Government for operation. The message received by Secretary Daniels follows:

"This is the first wireless message to be heard around the world, and marks a milestone on the road to scientific achievement."

In a radio message of reply the Secretary said:

"Congratulations upon the successful completion of the gigantic radio station named for that distinguished Frenchman whom all Americans honor. Designed to serve a military purpose, it will now serve to bind closer the cordial relations which have always existed between France and the United States."

"On behalf of the United States Navy, I desire to express my pleasure upon the achievement of the Lafayette Radio Station in transmitting the first message to be heard around the world. We are happy to recognize in this powerful signal a symbol of that force and sympathetic understanding with which the voice of France shall be heard by its sister Republic."

BOSTON, Aug. 21.—Signals from the new Lafayette wireless station in France were received today at the Otter Cliffs Naval Radio Station, Bar Harbor. It was the first trans-Atlantic test of the French station, which is one of the most powerful in the world, with a sending radius of 12,000 miles. Operators at Otter Cliffs said the signals were excellent.

WOMAN OFFERS $2.11 IN BAG TO PURSE-SNATCHER ON HIS ARREST

Man, Caught After Chase Downtown, Says He Grabbed Money for Family, in Need.

A man who snatched a handbag from Miss Sarah Lenz, 5192 Enright avenue, in front of 917 Locust street at 6:30 o'clock last night was captured by policemen at Eighth street and Lucas avenue, after a chase in which several shots were fired by the policemen.

The purse, containing $2.11, was taken from the man and returned to the owner. Miss Lenz said that if the prisoner really needed money badly she would let him have "the $2.11. She wanted the bag, however, she said, because she had made it herself of beads and valued it highly. The prisoner had $1 of his own and the police would not permit him to accept Miss Lenz's offer.

The man said he was Duncan A. Blaine, 27 years old, of 2512 State street, East St. Louis, a railroad yardman, out of work. He said he needed money to support his wife and two children. He asked the police not to tell the news of his arrest reach East St. Louis as he had a brother-in-law living there whom he did not want to learn of his act.

AUTO BREAKS FIRE PLUG; WATER FLOODS OLIVE STREET

Machine, Swerving to Avoid Another, Causes Damage at Spring Avenue.

There was a rush of water at Spring avenue and Olive street half an hour yesterday, beginning at 3:50 p. m., when an automobile struck and broke a fire plug in front of 3693 Olive street. Water ran for two blocks down Olive street to Vandeventer avenue, until Street Department employees made hasty repairs. Several passengers had difficulty alighting.

William J. McClean, 5101 Cabanne avenue, was driving north on Spring avenue towards Olive street when he had to swerve sharply to avoid a speeding eastbound automobile truck on Olive street. He hit the plug with his machine and said he would pay the damages. The truck driver was not traced. "The accident caused the waste of many gallons of water," said the police report.

POLES TAKE 19,000 MEN; ENEMY GUNS ABANDONED

POLISH CLAIMS AT MINSK CONFERENCE

Warsaw Papers Say Demand Will Be Made That Territories Inhabited by Majority of Polish Population Be Included in Boundaries.

By the Associated Press.
WARSAW, Aug. 20.—A communication, issued today says that Czechoslovakia, northwest of Warsaw, again is in Polish hands, and the situation of Bolshevik groups operating between the Vistula and the Prussian frontier is becoming more and more critical, with the Poles in pursuit of some of the enemy detachments which are retreating in disorder in the direction of Ostrow.

Brest-Litovsk has been occupied and the eastern forts garrisoned. Near Droiczyn the Poles captured the staff of the 17th Bolshevik division and also part of one staff and detachments of the 18th and 27th divisions.

On the southern front the Bolshevik Gen. Budenny is attempting an encircling movement against Lemberg. The Poles defending Lemberg again have inflicted a serious defeat on Budenny's cavalry. The report says a battle is in progress to prevent the Reds from crossing the Dniester at Mikolajow as part of the Bolshevik maneuvers against Lemberg.

The communication further announces Polish successes on various parts of the front. In one battle 400 Reds were killed. Since the offensive started more than 18,000 prisoners have been taken.

The Polish counter action designed to rid the Danzig corridor of Bolsheviks has resulted in the Poles retaking Brodnica and Nowomost. In the battle in the region of Brodnica the enemy lost 400 men killed. Eight German civilians who were alleged to have co-operated with the Bolsheviks were shot by orders of the Polish military authorities.

Guns Abandoned by Bolsheviks; Poles Capture 19,000 Men.
By the Associated Press.
PARIS, Aug. 21.—In the principal theater of operations on the Polish front the Poles are debouching from Demblin and advancing in the direction of Brest-Litovsk. They have reached the valley of the middle Bug. The prisoners taken by the Poles in the last few days aggregate 19,000. The large amount of war material has not been estimated. Many guns, with their carriages, have been abandoned by the Bolsheviks.

The chief operations are now going on in the fork of the narrow Bug River, from which the Bolshevik troops defeated before Warsaw are retreating. The Polish army advancing against the Ostralenka has as its objective the cutting of communications between the Bolshevik center and right. Thus it is between Ostralenka and Lomza on the marshy land bathed by the Narew that the enemy probably will make his last effort before the fate of the red army in the North, the situation of which is extremely grave, is decided.

In imitation of the maneuver executed in 1831 by Nicholas I, the Bolsheviks have withdrawn a strong section of their forces to attack Thorn and Wloclawek, across the Vistula, and cut communications between Danzig and Warsaw. These troops have encountered a fresh Polish army, which debouched from Graudenz and Thorn. Meanwhile, another section, under direction of Gen. Biliotte, advancing from Ostralenka, has attacked them from the south. Finally a third army, under Gen. Hosiak, is defending the Narew River, endeavoring to cut off these troops from their single road of retreat in the north.

Scattered over nearly 150 miles along the frontier of East Prussia, between Strasburg and Ostralenka, these Red forces seem condemned to annihilation unless they take refuge on Prussian territory. In order to diminish the pressure in the main theater of operations between the Narew and the Bug, the Bolsheviks

COX WOULD SEND MEN OVERSEA ONLY AT CONGRESS' OK

Makes Definite Pledge in Speech at Canton—Declares Treaty Cannot Change U. S. Constitution.

CHARGES G. O. P. IS USING "SLUSH" FUND

Organizations Formed for Patriotic Purposes Are Being Made Political Machines, He Asserts.

By the Associated Press. CANTON, O., Aug. 21.—Labor problems, the League of Nations, and Republican campaign contributions were featured by Gov. Cox in an address here tonight, and also at an afternoon meeting at Orrville, where he spoke to a street crowd from a motor truck.

Settlement of industrial controversies by force of public opinion instead of the bayonet, while order is maintained, and neither side to a controversy aided by the Government, was urged by the Democratic presidential candidate here. The labor issue was emphasized in this industrial community, in which Gov. Cox figured during the steel strike last fall, he refusing to send troops and also by removing a Democrat Mayor.

"Large interests are contributing to the Republican campaign fund," Gov. Cox declared, "because they want to buy an administration under which soldiers and the bayonet will be used to settle difficulties."

"That $15,000,000 will be the 'low mark' of the Republican campaign fund, while the Democrats will be as 'poor as Job's turkey,' was asserted by Gov. Cox, who said that his campaign fund charge had not been denied. He challenged denial and promised to present evidence of his charges.

On the league issue, Gov. Cox declared that "there cannot be an economical readjustment in America until things are tied together in other parts of the world," and reiterated arguments that America should enter the league to "keep faith" with American soldiers and the allies. He denounced a separate peace with Germany as "bad faith, base dishonor and desertion of the allies."

Must Maintain Order. In discussing the labor question, Gov. Cox declared that the Government "must preserve person and property."

"It must maintain law and order," he said, "being careful that neither side to the dispute procures the advantage of its favor."

"Both labor and capital should understand that the forces must understand its place to calm reason. The future of the country demands it, in fact, and the future of the world as well. "Industrial controversies are merely human affairs. Experience tells us that the bitterness which ordinarily is engendered grows out of two circumstances: First, the belief that a sharp bargain is being sought either through attempted oppression or the favoring conditions of financial strength; second, the attempt which is too often successful, to bring into the dispute the force of Government, not for the purpose of maintaining order, but to bring an end to the strike."

"There is no symptom of present tendencies more dangerous than the eagerness of some industrial captains to entrench themselves in the favor and gratitude of public officers, with the very definite idea that force can be invoked, if occasion arises, to compel settlements. Such a policy is the mere manufacturing plan of Bolshevism."

Gov. Cox emphasized the fact that during his six years as Governor no soldiers' bullet had been fired in an industrial dispute.

Charges Use of Funds. Turning to the Republican campaign fund, the Democratic nominee said that it was "apparent that those who believe in force are represented in the list of contributors."

"Camp followers are gathering by hundreds," the Governor declared. "Whole armies of them are being massed in pivotal States, where the slush fund will make the Mark Hanna days suffer by comparison. Many organizations formed during the war, doubtless—certainly allegedly—for patriotic purposes, are being taken over, in so far as the officers are able to do so. The American Defense Society has now been turned by some of its officers into a political affair and a part of the campaign fund will be used to render it but another agency of hypocrisy and deceit."

Gov. Cox pictured the League as an agency of peace, disarmament and reduced taxation, and the Republican position as one of war and dishonor.

"The plan of the League," he said, "is to apply the calm process of reason and discussion and arbitration for nine months. The Democratic position is one of definite action, to legally conclude the war with the allies, as we started it, giving to the states such additions as may be deemed necessary to protect every American interest, and reminding our associates in the League that under no circumstances will we enter into war or send our soldiers away from our shores without the

Ponzi Gives Up Remains of Investors' Millions

Checks and Securities Turned Over to Receivers Are Slightly in Excess of $1,000,000—Girl Managed Business.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Aug. 21.—Charles Ponzi turned over to Federal receivers today part of what remains of the millions of dollars he received from investors in his financial operations and went on the witness stand to tell about the rest. Little had been elicited as his assets, however, when the hearing was adjourned until next Tuesday.

The checks and securities which Ponzi handed over to the receivers, as announced in the courtroom today, did not greatly exceed $1,000,000. Edna L. F. Pro, the accountant who has been conducting an audit for the Federal authorities, again estimated Ponzi's liabilities at $7,000,000. Ponzi said he had additional assets, but did not indicate their amount.

The only business of which Ponzi could find any trace, the auditor testified, was the issuing of notes for the amount of the investment, plus 50 per cent, and the payment of early notes by the receipts from later ones. There was nothing in Ponzi's books, he said, to indicate any business in international postal reply coupons, such as Ponzi claimed to be the basis of tremendous profits.

Counsel Got Large Fees. It was brought out that Daniel V. McIsaac and Daniel H. Coakley, of Ponzi's counsel, had received fees of $25,000 each. McIsaac explained that the Hanover Trust Co., where Ponzi kept his principal account, consent of the people through their representatives in Congress.

No Overseas Campaigns. Gov. Cox made a definite pledge that he elected he would never send American soldiers overseas "unless directed by your representatives in Congress."

The Governor added that the question of good faith in observing the treaty might be raised. He said he would meet this argument by declaring: "It matters not in what good faith a treaty is made. No treaty can change the Constitution."

Gov. Cox also promised Federal regulation of cold-storage interests, including the "beef trust," which, he charged, controlled both buying and selling prices without regard to the cost of supply and demand. That bankers were "conspiring" to change the Federal reserve act by making bankers only eligible to membership on the Federal Reserve Board, again was charged by the Governor, who said that he favored the Federal board, and also on regional bank boards.

Election of Ohio Democratic congressional nominees was urged by Gov. Cox. Senator Proctor of Ohio introduced the Governor here, and John Mcweeney, Democratic candidate for Congress for this district, spoke with the Governor at Orrville. The Governor placed a large wreath at the tomb of former President McKinley.

Cox Again Criticizes Senate "Oligarchy" in Reply to Harding.

By the Associated Press. ORRVILLE, O., Aug. 21.—Another episode in the Senate "oligarchy" was made here today by Gov. Cox in an address replying to that delivered recently by Senator Harding, his Republican opponent, which Harding commended the Senate as a forum of popular government.

"The Republican candidate," said Gov. Cox, "has devoted a front porch session to the defense of the United States Senate. With characteristic reactionary isolation from the current of public thought, he fails to distinguish between the United States Senate as an institution and the list of United States Senators who have taken charge of an important part of the Government."

"It is our contention that a group of men have formed a domineering, oligarchy in the Senate, and that they have deliberately interfered with the welfare of the world, delayed readjustment in this country, all to the distinct injury and disadvantage of the people."

Tackled Called Obsolete. "The feeling against the Senate," Gov. Cox declared, "grows specifically out of the abuses by the oligarchy. Prompted by its successes in this country, it has moved into an entirely new undertaking, and it seeks now to annex the presidency."

Continuing his attack upon Republican campaign contributions, Gov. Cox also charged that "the greedy interests which are making the contributions have been in no dishonorable consort with the senatorial oligarchy."

Senator Harding, in his address defending the Senate, Gov. Cox declared, "stripped his discussions of the personal equation and elaborated on the wisdom of the fathers in creating two parts of the legislative branch of government, the Senate and the House."

"If presidential responsibility is to be shared, it will be with the counselors of the leaders," said Gov. Cox. "He owes his nomination to them. His gratitude is naturally to them. There is scarcely a day that some member of the group is not in conference with him. The public prints announced not 48 hours ago that a part of the oligarchy has elected Marion and had discussed with the presidential candidate the subject matters which would be treated in front porch speeches of the next two or three weeks."

"The relation between the President and Congress should be cordial and co-operative, but independent should be supreme."

of circumstances that has developed since the early hours of the morning when the choice of the Republican leaders was made in the hotel, and not in the convention hall at Chicago. Not the least disquieting phase of the situation is the unblinking continuance of the gathering together of millions of dollars for campaign purposes. "It was not the greedy interests which are making the contributions have been in no dishonorable consort with the senatorial oligarchy which is now attempting to gather unto itself the power of that law-making branch and the presidency as well."

"It was never the intention of the men who wrote the Constitution that a dominating group in the Senate should obstruct the treaty making agencies of government on conscientious pretext, while moving by the hidden purpose of promoting party advantage. It was never intended that the Senate should have any control over the President except to share with him by its power of confirmation, responsibility for efficient public service. This, of course, is in addition to its authority in the ratification of treaties."

"The three branches of government were intended to be separate and distinct. Nothing could be more clearly subversive of that arrangement than the carefully thought out plan of having the leaders of the Senate dominate a political convention and make the choice of the party for the presidency."

"The very argument which Senator Harding advocates in support of the senatorial individuality, certainly holds with equal logic to the preservation of senatorial individuality. Not only will the people at all times regard any departure from this principle as dangerous, but they resent the attempt now being made to single out the Senate and presidency into a single unit of government."

Men Charged With Creating Disturbance on Street Car

Three men who were alleged to have created a disturbance on a Meramec Highlands car yesterday evening last night by a Webster Groves policeman at Gore and Lockwood avenues, Webster Groves, where the motorcar, J. H. Skaggs, 3457 Shenandoah, was stopped and attempted to eject the men, who were charged with the disturbance and used obscene language while on the car.

The men gave their names as Joe Brown, 445 South Vandewater avenue; Thomas Porter, 428 McPherson avenue; and Claude Wilson, 4339 Norfolk avenue. They were going to Meramec Highlands to dance. A fourth man escaped arrest by jumping through a car window and attempted to flee. Skaggs said he was told by the men that they were going to the Meramec Highlands and were not infrequent affairs on Saturday nights, according to Probate Judge Hodgdon, who lives in Webster Groves.

HARDING TO HAVE FRONT PORCH JAZZ SHOW THIS WEEK

Stage and Screen Stars to Journey to Marion to Give Entertainment for Nominee and Staff.

FOUR SPEECHES ARE SCHEDULED

Three at Home and One at Galion, Ohio, on Program—Candidate Confers With Col. Harvey.

By the Associated Press.

MARION, O., Aug. 21.—Three front porch speeches and one at Galion, O., during the coming week, are on a speaking schedule for Senator Harding, made public tonight at his headquarters here.

The Galion address, which will be delivered Friday to a gathering of railway employes, and the one to be made on Sept. 8, at the Minnesota State Fair, are the only engagements away from Marion that appear on the list of 10 speeches. It was said these 10, the last of which is on Sept. 17, were the only ones definitely scheduled, though a number of others had been promised tentatively.

A feature of the next week will be a speech Tuesday to a delegation of stage and screen stars representing the Harding and Coolidge Theatrical League. The actors plan to put on a front porch entertainment for the nominee and his headquarters staff.

Most of today Senator Harding spent in conference with Col. George Harvey, the New York editor. It is understood they talked principally about the League of Nations, of which Col. Harvey is an irreconcilable opponent, and that the new plan for international justice in progress of formation by Elihu Root and European statesmen had a large part in their discussion.

Col. Harvey declined to express any opinion publicly about the Root plan or other elements in the League fight, but added he might have something to say on the subject after he had finished his talk with the nominee.

Speaking Dates Announced. The schedule of Harding's speaking dates, as made public tonight, follows: Tuesday, Aug. 24.—Delegation of Harding and Coolidge Theatrical League, at Marion.

Wednesday, Aug. 25.—Wyandot County, O., Republicans at Marion.

Thursday, Aug. 26.—Picnic of Erie railroad men at Galion.

Saturday, Aug. 28.—Delegation from Indianapolis and vicinity, at Marion.

Sunday, Sept. 4.—Gathering of Republican State Ways and Means Committee chairmen at Marion.

Monday, Sept. 6.—Marion Labor day celebration.

Wednesday, Sept. 8.—Minnesota State Fair Grounds.

Friday, Sept. 10.—Delegation of Republicans from Detroit, Mich., at Marion.

Saturday, Sept. 11.—Delegation from several congressional districts of Northern Indiana, at Marion.

Friday, Sept. 17.—Speech at Marion to delegations of citizens of foreign birth who will come under the auspices of the New York Republican League.

RUSSIANS NOT YET AT CANNIBAL STAGE, MAXIM GORKY SAYS

Declares Europe, Represented by Great Britain and France, Is Trying to Strangle Nation.

Copyright, 1920, by the Press Publishing Co., New York City.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—"Believe me, my dear Wells, we Russians have not yet reached the stage of cannibalism, and it is my belief that we shall not reach it, despite the endeavors of the highly civilized Western Powers to bring about conditions which would force the Russians to savagery and degeneration."

So writes Maxim Gorky to H. G. Wells, in a letter in which he answers certain charges made by an Englishman about the present condition in Russia.

"We are living in times when even the most perverted and wicked imagination could not manufacture a lie or calumny which could be more false and more degrading than the actual truth," Gorky writes.

"One of these revolting truths is the hunting down of Russia, a country which is putting the whole of its creative power into a social experiment of the greatest significance and importance to humanity at large."

"We Russians should have been left alone to our own wishes or to our own folly. In either case we should have provided the rest of Europe with the most instructive spectacle. However, Europe, as represented by Great Britain and France, is endeavoring to strangle us. I do not think Europe will succeed in this, but it is just possible that her policy toward Russia will drive the Russians in the direction of Asia."

"Do you not foresee in this possible disunion with the European nationalities a terrible threat to the birth of a new world? As far as I am concerned, this question obsesses me like a nightmare. Believe me, I do not shut my eyes to the negative manifestation produced by war and revolution. But at the same time I believe that the Russian Revolution is the birth of a new world, which, step by step, transforms our people into an actual civilization power. And, to me, action is the beginning of all beginnings as at the beginning there was action."

BURGULARS HAVE "HERE'S HOW" PARTY IN HOME OF LAWYER

Policeman Finds Whisky Cases and Used Glasses on Dining Room Table.

Burglars had a "here's how" party at 5935 Waterman avenue, the home of David A. Evans, general counsel for the Bell Telephone Co., yesterday afternoon. Evidence indicated that three attended the party.

A policeman making his rounds at 5 p. m., found the kitchen door and dining room open, and, knowing that the family was out of the city, investigated. He reported that every room in the house appeared to have been ransacked.

In the dining room he found a whisky bottle and three glasses on the table. The bottle contained about an inch of whisky. The glasses bore an odor which convinced the policeman that they had been used in connection with the bottle. On the dining room table were several whisky cases. All were empty but one and that contained a quart bottle of whisky.

ARMY PLANES REACH RUBY, LAST STOP BEFORE NOME

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—The army aviators flying from New York to Nome, Alaska, are expected to reach their destination today. The War Department announced that the four machines had arrived at Ruby, Alaska, yesterday in perfect condition after a flight from Fairbanks.

By the Associated Press. FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Aug. 21.—Four army airplanes flying from Fairbanks, Alaska, left here at noon yesterday for Ruby, their next scheduled stop. With favorable weather conditions the aviators believed the flight might be continued with the possibility of reaching Nome today.

Lions had "gone into the Republic" and a treasury "from certain interests banded together to buy the presidency," a statement which he credited to Gov. Cox.

Referring to the Republican plan to limit individual campaign contributions to $1000, Hays said: "If this attempt fails to produce the requisite sums, we shall so state publicly, increase the maximum, and seek additional contributions."

Declaring that the party needed about $3,000,000, Hays said that no criticism of the Democrats for seeking the largest obtainable contributions would be offered. "Nor shall we, recently, the party of the positive charges of the Democratic candidates, so much as intimate that their responsible officers will use any part of their funds corruptly," he said. "Frankly and squarely, as between mutual respecting citizens, we don't believe they will, or would, if they could."

G. O. P. COMMITTEE DENIES APPROVAL OF BARNES' BOOK

Uneasiness at National Headquarters Caused by Revelation of Contributions by Big Interests.

ENTERPRISE CALLED "HIS OWN AFFAIR"

Estimates of Sum Raised to "Publish and Distribute" Work Range From $200,000 to $600,000.

By Leased Wire from the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—The story revealing former Republican State Chairman William Barnes as author of "Republicanism of Nineteen-Twenty," a campaign reference book, for which solicitors obtained large contributions from the Rockefeller and other financiers and captains of industry, has moved the Republican National Committee to disclaim any connection with the enterprise.

The Democratic National Committee telegraphed excerpts to Gov. Cox at Dayton. Emphasis was laid upon the long list of multi-millionaire contributors to the book.

The Democratic manager declared this to be entirely confirmatory of the Democratic charges that big business, Wall street and the moneyed allies of both are only too anxious to support with their dollars any undertaking designed to prevent the election of a Democratic President.

If Barnes, able to obtain $1000 subscriptions—the exact minimum limit fixed for contributions to the Republican national campaign fund—from millionaires in behalf of a campaign book, how much easier would be for the big men of the party to get donations for a fund to be expended in a more practical way.

The revelations about the Barnes book and the manner in which it was financed have caused uneasiness at Republican national headquarters. The fact that many of the contributors say they intended their money to be used for the big men of the party to get donations for a fund to be expended in a more practical way.

In the absence of National Chairman Hays in Maine, the issue in charge asserted that the National Committee had "no connection whatever with the publication, either directly or indirectly." Barnes' method of raising funds by means of a book, it was added, was entirely his own affair.

When the committee officials were reminded that agents who solicited subscriptions for "Republicanism of Nineteen-Twenty," carried their prospectuses to a familiar simile of a letter from Hays pointing out that Hays' letter was dated March 20, 1919, or 17 months ago.

The letter, it was well known, was a forgery. Hays' intention to publish a book and contained no word of either personal or official endorsement.

Effect on Regular Campaign Fund. How far the addition of Barnes' agents in obtaining donations for his book have embarrassed representatives of the National Committee in their endeavor to obtain campaign contributions from individuals who assisted the enterprise, is a matter the Republicans would not discuss. They merely emphasized that persons who contributed to "Republicanism of Nineteen-Twenty" were assisting a private undertaking, not the National Committee.

Several persons familiar with the operations of canvassers employed by Edgar Pennington Young, agent for Barnes, with offices in the Tribune building, said that the enterprise had grossed considerably more than $200,000 was collected to "publish and distribute" Barnes' volume. One man said $500,000 would be more for the correct figure. Young, who styled himself "assistant to the president" of Barnes' Albany Journal Publishing Co., was described by an acquaintance of several years as a promoter who has been engaged for many years in bringing propositions like the Barnes' book, Young's specialty has been advertising promotion. He is said to have handled many advertising and special edition schemes in cities throughout the country. Since 1918, however, he has devoted most of his time and energies to projects connected with Barnes' Albany newspaper. In January, 1917, Young, whose address then was Montclair, N. J., sued Alexander P. Moore, husband of Lillian Russell, and owner of the Pittsburgh Leader. He claimed $50,000 in commissions on advertising he alleged he obtained for an anniversary edition of the Leader. The suit was dismissed by Federal Judge Julius Mayer.

300,000 Fresh Poles Ready in Month, It Is Said.

POSEN, Aug. 20.—Heavy fighting is going on around Ciechanow, northwest of Warsaw, due to the efforts of the Poles to cut off two Russian divisions that entered the Danzig corridor.

All the civilians in the Posen district from the age of 17 to 50 years are mobilizing. It is stated officially that 300,000 fresh Poles will be ready to take the field within a month. Women are drilling with the men.

The Poles have just equipped three squadrons of bombing air planes of 10 machines to each squadron. They have received a number of two-seater fighting planes which are being tested.

Dissatisfaction here with the military and political situation resulted in opponents of the Warsaw Government, including a priest named Adamski, drawing up a proclamation declaring Poland's independence of Russia and Austria. Poland. The date of the issue of the document had been fixed, when a member of the Government arrived and secretly conferred with those who drafted the proclamation and reached some compromise which had not been announced.

ANTI-SUFFRAGISTS LEAVE TENNESSEE TO STOP ACTION

ADVOCATES HOLD SESSION ANYHOW

Defeat Reconsideration Resolution—Injunction Prevents Certification to Secretary of State Colby.

By the Associated Press.
NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 21.—Although Tennessee's ratification of the Federal woman suffrage amendment stood on the legislative record of the lower House of the Legislature tonight as finally confirmed, a snarl of legal and legislative technicalities remained to be disposed of before the action can be certified.

Suffrage supporters, who had ridden rough-shod in the House during the day over every obstacle thrown in their way, claimed full legislative triumph. They declared that only a temporary injunction secured by the anti-suffragists prevented immediate certification to Secretary Colby at Washington.

On the other hand, Speaker Walker, leader of the opposition, and scores of his lieutenants said the suffragists had ruined their cause and that, even should the courts eventually hold ratification legal, the litigation would so delay a final decision that the amendment would not figure in the November election unless some other State ratified it.

Meanwhile, 25 members of the House opposed to suffrage were in Decatur, Ala., evading service in the House for the avowed purpose of preventing any legislative action in the State until a new Legislature shall have been elected in November. They hurried across the State line in a body early today before the House convened.

The restraining order, granted by Judge Langford of the Chancery Court, is returnable in five days. It was issued on an application contending that under the State Constitution the Legislature has no power to pass on the suffrage amendment. Gov. Roberts and other officials were forbidden to certify to Washington that ratification had been completed and speakers of the Senate and House restrained from taking any action toward ratification until the matter is heard by the court.

No Quorum at Session.
When the House met this morning all the suffragists and a sprinkling of the opposition members were in their seats. A roll call showed 59 members were present, seven short of a quorum. Speaker Walker declared a recess and ordered the sergeant-at-arms to arrest absentees. The official reported that none of the missing members appeared to be in the city.

T. K. Riddick, suffragist floor leader, declaring that action on the suffrage amendment was a State matter, and that the State laws as regards a quorum of the House did not apply, moved that the Walker motion for reconsideration be called from the journal and read upon. Speaker Walker requested him to put the motion in writing that it might be spread on the journal. A recess of a few minutes followed, while Riddick was transcribing his motion and, in the meantime, the injunction prohibiting certification was served on the speaker.

Riddick finally offered the motion as amended as to provide that the House reconsider its ratification of the suffrage measure. He declared that on a Federal question a constitutional quorum was not necessary and that the members present had a right to act. Walker ruled the motion out of order for lack of a quorum and added that the injunction just served upon him also stood in the way. On an appeal the House failed to sustain the ruling and Walker called Representative Joe Odle, Suffragist, to the chair.

Point of Order Ignored.
Odle ordered a roll call on Riddick's motion for reconsideration. Walker made a point of order that there was no quorum but was ignored and the suffragists defeated the motion to reconsider by a vote of 50 to 9.

Riddick then moved that the House transmit to the Senate in the usual manner the Senate joint resolution ratifying the amendment. Again Walker made a point of no quorum and also challenged the right of the speaker to put to any motion relating to the amendment in view of the injunction restraining the speaker of the House.

Again Odle ignored Walker, ordered the roll call and the motion carried 50 to 9. The opponents of ratification not voting. Adjournment until Monday afternoon then was taken.

Anti-Suffrage Leaders Declared That the procedure of the Suffragists in majority today in killing the Walker motion for reconsideration could not be held legal.

No power on earth would force him to sign the ratification resolution under the present circumstances, Walker said. Speaker Todd, of the Senate, said the resolution needed no signatures and on this point the two speakers sharply disagreed. The suffragists expressed pride in what they termed their "steam roller" tactics. They declared the legislative battle was over. This belief was shared by Gov. Roberts and Attorney-General Thompson.

"Walkouts" by State Legislators Common in Tennessee.
By the Associated Press.
NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 21.—Since the days when Andrew Johnson was merely a State figure in politics, a legislative "walkout" in connection with a filibuster has been a weapon invoked in the Tennessee Legislature as a last resort and all factions have resorted to it. The first "walkout" was recorded in 1841 when Democratic Senators, one of whom was Andrew Johnson, broke a quorum to prevent the election of two Whigs to the United States Senate, the result being that Tennessee was without representation in the United States Senate for the ensuing two years. The 13 Senators figuring in the incident are known in Tennessee political tradition as "The Immortal Thirteen."

In 1885, to defeat a registration bill, Republican members of the State Senate barricaded themselves in rooms in a hotel here. They were fed for three days by hauling baskets of provisions across the street on a rope trolley. In 1909, to invalidate new election laws, Democratic Senators broke a quorum by leaving the Capitol building, remaining out for four days. The House of the State for the next week, this filibuster failed of its purpose, under the holding of the Supreme Court.

When the fifty-seventh General Assembly met on Jan. 2, 1911, 37 members, "regular" Democrats, refused to take the oath and tied up the legislative wheels until Jan. 7, when an agreement was reached providing for the withdrawal of all contests over seats. On April 13, 1911, during the same session, "Independent" Democrats and Republicans of the House broke a quorum, going to Decatur, Ala., as a result of the capture of the House by "regular" Democrats and the jeopardizing of the election laws and the prohibition laws. This "walkout" lasted a month, the absence of the House being a record. Deliberations finally were resumed June 23.

In 1913 Republicans and Independent Democrats of the House on April 1 filibustered, 29 going to Middleboro, Ky., and half a dozen others to Florence, Ala., the purpose being to prevent a change in the election laws.

Attorney-Generals of Various States Believe Woman Can Vote.
Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—That women will be permitted to vote in the November elections is the opinion unanimously expressed by the Attorney-Generals of various States which have answered the question as to whether additional legislation is necessary. The view taken is that suffrage automatically becomes operative after being proclaimed by the United States Secretary of State and women become invested with all the rights and privileges exercised by men.

Replies to the request for opinions on this point were received today from the Attorney-Generals of Minnesota, Florida, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, Iowa, Ohio, Missouri, Rhode Island, Washington, New Hampshire, Arkansas, South Dakota, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Illinois and North Carolina. "One hundred and fifty thousand dollars have been raised and spent by the National Woman's Party in its successful campaign for ratification of the Federal suffrage amendment," says a formal statement issued this evening. "At least $50,000 was spent in the effort to get the thirty-sixth State."

"From June 4, 1919, when the amendment passed the Senate, to Aug. 18, 1920, when Tennessee's ratification completed the long suffrage struggle, expenditures by the Woman's Party are totaled at $149,599.36, according to the report of the treasurer's department, issued today.

"Since March 22, when Delaware, which suffragists hoped to make the thirty-sixth state, called her legislature in special session, $65,519.26 has been raised and spent by the party."

16 OLD WORKERS IN FEDERAL BUILDING ELIGIBLE TO RETIRE

Veteran Employees of Government Agencies Allowed $180 to $720 Annuities Under New Bill.

ALL MORE THAN 70 YEARS OF AGE

$60-a-Month Watchman, Who Guarded $100,000,000, Can Get $33-Cashier 25 Years to Lose Job.

Sixteen employees of Government agencies housed in the St. Louis Federal building are eligible to retirement under the civil service retirement bill which became effective yesterday.

Employees who have reached an age varying between 60 and 70, according to the nature of their work, or who have served 30 years, can retire on annuities ranging from $180 to $720, based on their length of service. Retirement is not compulsory, employees being certified in two-year periods as physically able to continue service.

All Over 70 Years.
All of those eligible to retirement in St. Louis are past 70 years. John O'Hearn, a watchman in the sub-treasury, has at times watched as great a sum as $100,000,000 during 25 years, and never has received an increase in pay from $60 a month. He will receive $33 a month at retirement.

Francis Maginn, cashier of the sub-treasury, has asked for continuation of service for O'Hearn. Maginn himself is not eligible to retirement and will lose his position next July 1, when the sub-treasury here will be abolished. He has served 25 years and is 61 years old. He is just a little short of the length of service and has qualifications to receive a pension. Being 61, he cannot take the examination for transfer to another department of civil service, 45 years being the maximum age for transfer. Nor can he take the initial examination for service in another department, 55 being the age limit.

One in Service 50 Years.

Employees in the engineering department eligible to retirement here are Bernard Frie, who has served on Mississippi River snagsboats for 50 years; William Howard, mate and diver on snagsboats, who has served for 36 years; John J. Donohue and Benjamin H. Berry, pilots, and the following employees at the engineering depot at the foot of Arsenal street: Christ Schmitt, Joe Wagner, William H. Glover, Jacob Eberle, Isaac C. Richardson and Joseph Lenhart. The superiors have made application for continuation of service for many of these employees. The employees of the Custodian of the Federal building are eligible to retirement. Custodian Fountain Rothwell has applied for their retention.

THREE MEN HELD ON CHARGE OF STEALING 20,000 CARTRIDGES

Two Cases of Rifle Ammunition Taken From Railway Shipment; Federal Warrants Issued.

Two cases, containing 20,000 cartridges for rifles of small caliber were recovered by Schmitt, yesterday following the arrest of John Boswell, 24 years old, of 2831 North Fourteenth street, a chauffeur for a hardware company; Nick Serb, 19, of 2014 Minkrodt street, his friend, and David McNamee, 4412 Cottage avenue, a negro employed as a trucker at the railroad freight house at Main and O'Fallon streets, from where the cases were stolen last week.

Boswell, in a statement to the detectives, said he had driven to the platform to get some hardware for which he had bills of lading, and that McNamee had caused the cartridges to be loaded on his truck, telling him to sell them as he would divide the proceeds of the sale "fifty-fifty."

Serb, Boswell said, was riding with him and offered to take charge of the cartridges until Boswell could find a sale for them. Serb is said to have admitted his share in the affair and led the detectives to a cellar at 1425 Minkrodt street, where the cases had been secreted by him in the rafters.

The cartridges had been shipped by the Winchester Arms Co. of New Haven, Conn., to a firm in Waterloo, N. Y., and were valued at $100 a case. Federal warrants charging the trio with larceny from an interstate shipment were issued.

A rifle and a pistol found in McNamee's home were also taken in charging by the detectives and are held awaiting identification.

Law Requiring Markings on Obstructions to Be More Strictly Enforced.

Police were ordered yesterday by Acting Chief Gillaspay to see that the law governing the proper placing of danger signals on coal piles and other obstructions left in the streets overnight was rigidly enforced and ordered prosecutions in cases where there is a failure to comply with the regulations. The order resulted from reports of several accidents in the last week due to automobiles running into unmarked coal piles. The Chief said he did not believe the public generally was posted on this ordinance and he instructed the policemen to at first warn the owners, and if an offense is repeated to place and other obstructions left in the streets overnight was rigidly enforced and ordered prosecutions in cases where there is a failure to comply with the regulations.

RECEIVERSHIP ASKED FOR TRAINMEN'S BROTHERHOOD

Accounting and Distribution of $10,000,000 Trust Fund Demanded in Suit by Yardman.

By the Associated Press.
COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 21.—Appointment of a receiver for the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, and an accounting and distribution of the Brotherhood's trust fund, estimated at $10,000,000, is asked for in a suit filed here today by Benjamin Callahan, head of the Columbus Yardmen's Association.

The suit was filed by Callahan as an individual policy holder, but in effect is said to be action on the part of the Chicago Yardmen's Association, the "insurgent" association which precipitated the recent "outlaw" strike of yardmen. The petition says there are 145,000 members of the "outlaw" organization, and estimates their share of the trust fund at $5,000,000. It asserts that all members of the Brotherhood expelled for participation in the alleged unauthorized strike have been deprived of a share in the trust fund which they helped to create.

2 CHILDREN ABANDONED AT HOME OF AN AUNT

She Is Unwilling to Take Them In, and They Are Held by Police.

Esther Heins, 4 years old, and her brother, Clifford, 2, were abandoned yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock on the back porch of the home of Roy Recker, 3742A South Compton avenue. Mrs. Recker, a sister of the children's mother, told the police that the children were left on the porch by a man she recognized as a brother of their father. She said she believed that the children's parents had left $11 Erskine avenue, St. Louis county, where they resided, for a town in Illinois she could not name.

Mrs. Recker was unwilling to take the children into her home. The police found them at the home of Mrs. Frances Berg, 3727 Pennsylvania avenue, who had given them supper. The children were dressed as for a journey. The brown hair of each was freshly bobbed. Both had new hats—black straws. Esther had a band under the chin, but Clifford's would fall off, which gave concern to Esther. Clifford wore a white romper embroidered in brown and blue. Esther wore a pink dress. A small locket was about her neck and a bracelet on her arm. Both wore former marriage lives with Eugene Wahler, 4534 Virginia avenue. He is 7 years old.

A man who claimed to see the children at the Wyoming street station asked to be permitted to take them home. He said they looked as nice or nicer than the children in his neighborhood and he had none of his own. They were sent to the House of Detention, however. The police remarked the fact that neither cried during the several hours they spent at the station.

The police understand that another son of the Heins woman by a former marriage lives with Eugene Wahler, 4534 Virginia avenue. He is 7 years old.

TESTIMONY ENDS IN NOLKER DIVORCE CASE

Wife, in Final Appearance, Denies Drinking to Excess, as Told by Chauffeur.

Testimony in the divorce suit of Mrs. Pearl Hyman Nolker against Robert E. Nolker, vice president of the Commercial Electrical Supply Co. and member of a wealthy family, ended yesterday afternoon after a hearing lasting 11 days in Judge McElhinney's court in Clayton. Arguments will be made tomorrow and the Judge will then take the case under advisement.

Nolker failed to obtain a divorce in his suit, tried in St. Louis in 1917. Mrs. Nolker, in her final appearance as a witness, denied the testimony of a chauffeur, given in the former trial and read in this trial, that she had drunk to excess and had conducted herself boisterously while visiting friends at Kirkwood. Her sister, Mrs. Mabel Flynn, testified that Mrs. Nolker did not smoke or drink.

Mrs. Flynn also testified as to McElhinney's pianist and composer, saying the family had known him for years; that he was considered exceptionally gifted in music and played accompaniments for a number of well-known society women. She said Noly had at one time invited Igenfritz to visit the Nolkers at their apartment in the St. Regis.

Letters from Nolker to his wife, written during her stay in Paris and in New York, were introduced in evidence over a protest of Nolker's attorney. They were introduced to show that Nolker desired his wife to remain in Paris and study music. The letters began "Dear Betty," and were signed, "Pink-eared Baby Bob." In one letter, while the wife was in New York, Nolker advised that she get Igenfritz, who was then in New York, to aid her in selecting a piano. Louis Olmstead, manager of the Pendleton Club from 1911 to 1914, testified to Nolker's visits there, and said Nolker conducted himself properly, and that the club was a respectable place.

SWING TO COX SEEN BY CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE HEAD

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—"A ready swing toward Cox and Roosevelt is under way in all the states, reports to our committee assets," said Chairman Flood, Representative of Illinois, in a flood of the Democratic National Congressional Committee tonight.

The Democratic National Congressional Committee will open headquarters in a few days at Chicago and San Francisco to give particular attention to the Democratic campaign for Congressmen, it was announced by Chairman Flood. Representative of Illinois will be in charge of the Chicago office and Representative Clarence F. Lea of California probably will have charge of the San Francisco office.

JEWELS SMUGGLED BY MISSION

Czar's Valuables Being Sold in Sweden—Some to Be Disposed of in U. S.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
PARIS, Aug. 21.—Dispatches received here from Stockholm report that the Russian crown jewels were smuggled out of Russia by the Krasin Mission when it returned to London. Smaller stones, particularly the diamonds, are being sold in Sweden, while the bigger ones and the bulk of the Czar's jewelry is to be smuggled into America.

Hugo stocks of precious stones, among them valuable pearls, are kept at Reval, where the Bolshevik agents are trying to sell them to raise money for propaganda purposes.

FEWER LIQUOR PERMITS TO BE GRANTED NEXT YEAR

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—One result of failure of Congress to appropriate enough money for the prohibition commissioner will be curtailment of permits to sell liquor next year. The number of investigators required to keep track of the sales is too small to look after all who would like to handle stocks. The permits issued since last January are said to be greater in number than were issued in July alone.

Application for permits to do business next year must be filed before October 1. The licenses or permits will not be issued until January 1. In the meantime, investigations will be made of the applicants.

DETECTIVES IN AUTO AFTER 5 HOLDUPS CAPTURE TWO MEN

Shots Fired by Pursuers in Chase Through Streets; Fugitives Badly Beaten Being Arrested.

FOUR HIGHWAYMEN ROB BUTCHER SHOP

Grocery, Proprietor of Another, Tailor and Pedestrian Held Up Within Short Time During Evening.

Following a series of five holdups, in widely scattered parts of the city, detectives in an automobile at 11:30 o'clock last night pursued two men in another automobile east on Cass avenue. From Twenty-second street to Eighth street. The detectives fired several shots and finally overtook the other car when it skidded in making a turn from Cass avenue into Eighth street.

The pursued men jumped from their automobile and tried to escape but were beaten about the head and face by the detectives until they submitted to arrest. After treatment at the central dispensary for several scalp wounds and cuts on the faces the men were taken to Central Police Station.

One was recognized as Arthur Wilson, 22 years old, of 4214 Westminister place, who, the police say, is an ex-convict. The other said that he was John Britt, 25 years old, of 2832 Olive street. Neither had any weapons. Wilson had $138 and Britt had $50.

Chased Wednesday Night.
The detectives reported that they chased the same two men Wednesday night from Twenty-eighth street and Franklin avenue to Thirteenth and Biddle streets, after several highway robberies had been reported, but that they escaped at that time.

Detective Sergeant Walton, who was in charge of the detective squad in last night's chase, said that he had seen Wilson several times in the past week, and that on each occasion Wilson had run away from him.

The prisoners declined to make any statement.

Meat Market Held Up.
Four men wearing masks stepped from a touring car and entered the meat market of Charles Grant, 3839 Garfield avenue, at 9 o'clock last night. They drew revolvers and ordered Grant and his butcher, Theodore Schreck, 4260A John avenue, to throw up their hands. After taking $150 from Grant and $31 from Schreck the robbers jumped into the automobile and drove west on Garfield avenue.

Five men in an automobile held up Albert Faber of 6439 Ridge avenue, at 9:15 last night, at the grocery of August Klein, 1501 Walnut street, which he manages, and took $300. Faber's wife and son, who were waiting for him, also were held up. The money was taken from the safe, which Faber was preparing to lock.

Three of the men, wearing white handkerchief masks and carrying revolvers, entered the store, while one served as lookout, and another stayed at the wheel. They disappeared west on Walnut street and were traced over Sixteenth street, west on Clark avenue, and as far as the Eighteenth street viaduct, where they turned south and the trail was lost.

Tailor Shop Robbed.
Two men entered the tailor shop of Sam Katopsky, 2853 North Union avenue, at 9:40 o'clock last night, and, at the point of revolvers, robbed him of $150 in cash and a diamond ring which he valued at $200.

Two men got out of an automobile in front of the grocery of Albert Leimbach, 4201 McKee avenue, at 9:50 p. m., and held up the proprietor as he was closing his store. He resisted and they hit him on the head with their revolvers and fled without taking anything.

At 10:30 o'clock, Samuel Levin, 2907 Thomas street, walking from the Jefferson Memorial to the Lindell Pavilion in Forest Park, was held up by a man with a revolver and robbed of $3.

A short time after the arrest of Wilson and Britt, another holdup was committed by robbers who escaped in an automobile. Two men, wearing handkerchiefs over their faces, held up August Schneider in his father's saloon at 4069 Easton avenue and took $12 from him. While they were searching Edward Boles, 2416 Belle Glade avenue, a customer, a third man entered and he was directed by the other robbers to take the contents of the cash register. He took $40. Boles lost $1.75. The three robbers then got into an automobile which was waiting around the corner.

A negro entered the grocery of Louis and Sam Horwitz, 1734 Pennington avenue, at 10:30 p. m., and pointing a revolver at the two proprietors ordered them to throw up their hands. When they failed to comply the negro fired two shots at the ceiling and fled without taking anything.

ROOSEVELT, SHAKING HANDS, NEARLY MISSES HIS TRAIN

Tells Washington Residents "No Democratic Plank Was Lost in Elevator Shaft."

TACOMA, Wash., Aug. 21.—Franklin D. Roosevelt shook hands so long with people in Montesano today that his special train nearly got away with him. He did a neat bit of sprinting to catch the rear end of the last car while the crowd cheered his efforts.

Speaking here this afternoon, Roosevelt said: "I was amused by two Republican newspapers in my home state. One of them came out the day after Harding was nominated and said 'Thank God, Harding's against the League of Nations.' The other, on the same day declared 'Thank God, Harding is for the League of Nations.'"

Later he said: "You people on the coast are close enough to San Francisco to know that no Democratic platform plank was mysteriously lost down an elevator shaft."

LIEDERKRANZ CLUB FACES SHRINKAGE, DUE TO DRY LAW

Members Summoned to Special Meeting Sept. 2, to Vote on Proposal to Sell Clubhouse.

ORGANIZATION WILL BE MAINTAINED

Extra Assessments to Cover Revenue Loss as Result of Prohibition Forces Many Young Members Out.

Members of the Liederkranz Club, Grand and Magnolia avenues, will vote Sept. 2 on a proposal to sell the clubhouse, which was built and furnished 12 years ago at a cost said to have been about $150,000.

Otto J. Gossrau, secretary-treasurer of the South Side Trust Co., who is president of the club, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday that the sale, if voted, would not mean the dissolution of the club, but that it would be continued in less pretentious quarters. At present, he said, the maintenance of the Grand avenue clubhouse is beyond the means or the requirements of the organization.

The present membership is about 300. About 120 members were lost within the last six months, Gossrau said, because of two assessments made on members during that time, amounting to $50 a member. Most of those who withdrew were the younger members, who felt that they could not afford to pay the assessments.

Dry Law Chief Factor.

Prohibition, decreasing the club's revenue and lessening the business club's restaurant, was the chief factor in making the assessments necessary, Gossrau stated. He said the organization has observed the law strictly, and that the nightly attendance at the club and the attendance at special gatherings, has fallen off.

"We shall maintain our organization," Gossrau said, "and my idea is that, if we leave the clubhouse, we will find smaller quarters—some large residence might answer our purpose. There have been several offers for the property, and it seemed to be a good plan to let the members pass on them. The prospective buyers want the property for lodge purposes, I understand."

"The fiftieth anniversary of the club will be celebrated in November, whether we are then in the present quarters or not."

Has Had Limit Membership. Only five or six members were in the large social room of the club yesterday afternoon. These were mostly the older members. One of them, Frank W. Feuerbacher, president of the Southern Commercial and Savings Bank, has been a member of the club nearly 40 years. He told of its early history as a singing club, its union with the Arion des Westens, and its successive homes at Fourth and Elm streets, Sixth street and Chouteau avenue, Thirteenth street and Chouteau avenue, and the present location. At times, he said, the membership limit of 1000 has been reached, and there has been a waiting list of 100 or more.

It was said that the club is still in fairly good shape financially. The meeting of Sept. 2, a legal notice of which has been published, will be from 9 a. m. to noon, and at night from 8 o'clock on, to give all members an opportunity to vote. Should it be decided to retain the clubhouse, Gossrau said he believes further assessments will become necessary.

BILL BEFORE FRENCH CHAMBER TO END CLANDESTINE BETTING

Secret Wagers Now Estimated at 10,000,000 Francs Daily—Tax Is Proposed.

By the Associated Press. PARIS, Aug. 20.—Clandestine betting would be suppressed in France under bills just introduced in the Chamber of Deputies by Baron Maurice de Rothschild and Leo Bouysse.

Secret betting in France is estimated by Baron de Rothschild to amount to 10,000,000 francs daily. Under the Rothschild bill establishments where the illegal betting occurred would be closed for certain periods.

Deputy Bouysse proposes that illegal betting be suppressed by the creation of a State organization of control and the imposition of a tax at racetracks and other places. A tax of 6 per cent on the estimated 10,000,000 francs illegally bet daily would bring the French Government a revenue of 600,000 francs daily, or for the 330 racing days, an annual revenue from this source of 200,000,000 francs.

To this would be added 40,000,000 or 50,000,000 francs from a tax on book betting, which would be re-established and allowed in a special enclosure under the Bouysse measure. This bill also proposes the creation of free betting offices in Paris and all cities of more than 100,000 inhabitants.

OLD BIBLE TRACES HARDING FAMILY BACK TO 1780

By the Associated Press. EAST HAMPTON, Conn., Aug. 21.—A Bible now owned by A. W. Sexton of this town, and which once was the Amos Clark family Bible, shows by its birth, marriage and death record pages that Senator Warren G. Harding, the Republican presidential nominee, is a direct descendant of Nathan Harding, born Jan. 10, 1780, in the Harding home on the old Harding road in Middle Haddam, Conn.

Nathan Harding married Phileas Clark in Middle Haddam on Aug. 11, 1802. They had 12 children, of whom one was Abner Clark Harding, born Feb. 10, 1807. Abner became a physician, served in the Civil War, and attained the rank of General. Afterward, he assisted in the building of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad. A son, George, settled in Ohio after marrying a Miss Warren. His son is the father of Senator Warren G. Harding.

Daughter of Villa Dies. By the Associated Press. SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Aug. 21.—Raynolds Villa, daughter of Francisco "Pancho" Villa, former revolutionary General of Mexico, died here last night from tuberculosis. She was 19 years old, and a native of Mexico, coming here with her mother when Villa took to the bandit life in Mexico. The funeral was held here today and interment made at this place.

It is realized that Hamburg faces a long, up-hill struggle to regain its pre-war prestige. A well-known banker told the correspondent he believed Hamburg had irretrievably lost its financial power and would never again enjoy the independent position it had in the past.

HAMBURG LITERALLY UNDER FOREIGN COLORS

Shipping Companies of All Principal Nations Have Opened Offices There.

By the Associated Press. HAMBURG, Aug. 21.—In one day recently 22 steamers passed Cuxhaven on the way to Hamburg or to enter the Kiel Canal. This was the largest number of ships to come into the Elbe in 24 hours since the early days of the war, and the event was hailed with intense satisfaction here as a sign of better times. Five years ago it was a dull day when only a score of vessels arrived. The Hamburg-American line alone usually had from 25 to 30 big ships in port and the harbor was so crowded with shipping that the problem of docking often became acute.

In those days few flags other than those of the German companies were seen in the harbor. Today Hamburg is literally under foreign colors. Shipping companies of all the principal nations have set up offices here and the formerly powerful German lines, having lost their ships, are acting now only as agents. American, British, Japanese, French, Italian, Spanish, Dutch, and Brazilian companies display their advertisements in the shipping papers. Advertisements of German concerns are so few that one must search for them.

There is some life again in the harbor but the ships are nearly all foreign. One passes long rows of splendidly equipped docks and warehouses, once a hive of industry but now empty and still. And in the absence of the many ships that used to make Hamburg a thriving commercial center, trade has died away and the great market places on the waterfront are practically deserted.

Before the war Hamburg had become one of Europe's chief coffee markets. Now only a few sacks of that staple find their way here. While Hamburg was losing its glory as a port, death was taking a heavy toll of the so-called "royal heads" of the big German companies, including Albert Ballin, president of the Hamburg-American line and the brothers Adolph and Edward Woermann, who guided the affairs of the great Woermann Indian and African lines, "Africa House," the scene of their labors, was the nerve center of Germany's west colonial trade. It stands today a silent memorial of German imperialism.

It is realized that Hamburg faces a long, up-hill struggle to regain its pre-war prestige. A well-known banker told the correspondent he believed Hamburg had irretrievably lost its financial power and would never again enjoy the independent position it had in the past.

LEAGUE REPORT ON SOVIET LABOR READY

Result of International Investigation to Be Made Public Soon.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—The inquiry into labor conditions in Russia undertaken by the International Labor Office of the League of Nations has been completed, according to an announcement today by the Department of Labor. The findings, prepared under the direction of Dr. G. Pardo, head of the Russian inquiry section of the International Labor Office, are expected to be made public soon.

The report is said to have grown out of the suggestion of M. Sokol, Polish Government delegate on the governing body of the International Labor Office, at its meeting in January, 1920.

"The proposal was not received with enthusiasm," according to the Labor Department's statement, "the governing body shrinking from the idea that the International Labor Office should at the very beginning of its existence, embark on an enterprise which was not without inconvenience and danger."

"The workers' representatives, however, urged that it be adopted, laying particular stress on the consideration that a large portion of the unrest among the working classes was, perhaps, due to complete ignorance of what had happened in Russia. They called attention to the fact that some people claimed that everything was perfect, and that workers who were suffering more and more from economic and social disorder caused by the war were fascinated by the mirage of a Bolshevik paradise."

"In the opinion of the workers' delegates, much of this unrest would vanish if the truth about labor conditions in Russia and the situation of the working classes in Russia could be discovered."

Composed of five employers, five workers and two Government delegates, the commission undertook systematic research work in Paris and London, with supplementary investigations in Switzerland, Sweden, Italy and Germany.

In addition to setting forth the early legislation of the Soviet Government on subjects relating to conditions of employment, including hours of work, wages, compulsory labor, employment of women, child labor, unhealthy and dangerous oc-

HOME RULE ADVOCATES TO UNITE IN OUTLINE OF OPINIONS

Sinn Fein Founder Criticizes Plan for Meeting of Factions Next Tuesday.

DUBLIN, Aug. 21.—All people of moderate opinions are greatly interested in next Tuesday's conference, called to enable every shade of home-rule sentiment to unite in a statement to Premier Lloyd George, relative to the future government of the island. This statement will, in particular, detail what measures short of a republic will keep Ireland within the empire and which, though possibly opposed by the Sinn Fein, may satisfy the general body of Irish opinion. The meeting, while suggested by the Dominion home rulers, will be open to every section and group.

The Sinn Fein attitude toward the conference is put in a few words by Arthur Griffith, founder of the Sinn Fein organization. In the leading article of this week's Young Ireland, "England's policy toward Ireland," he says, "was disclosed this week. The republic is to be ravaged while dupes are to be set clamoring for the restoration of the old order. The attention of the world may be distracted and the minds of other nations confused."

WOOD INSISTS LACK OF ORDERS CAUSED CLOSE OF WOOLEN MILLS

President of Company Calls Contrary Statement by Gov. Cox Too Ridiculous for Attention.

BOSTON, Aug. 21.—William M. Wood, president of the American Woolen Co., issued a statement today regarding the announcement that Gov. Cox of Ohio was to investigate the laying off of workmen by various large corporations, including the American Woolen Co. Wood said: "For Gov. Cox or any one else to say that the mills of the American Woolen Co. were shut down for any other reason than for want of orders is too ridiculous to pay any attention to."

A dispatch from Columbus, O., yesterday said the proposed investigation was based on alleged information that Republican leaders were planning to use unemployment as an argument in persuading workmen to vote against the Democratic party.

Occupations, strikes, trade unions, nationalization of industries and workers' control, the report presents the problems involved in the application of this legislation and the modifying decrees.

75,000 INDEPENDENT VOTERS IN MISSOURI

Estimate Does Not Take Into Account Women, as Yet an Unknown Quantity.

Political prognosticators, who since the official primary vote was announced Wednesday, have been attempting to figure the November election result in Missouri, have encountered in their research into Missouri political statistics an interesting collection of figures, but little to furnish a basis on which to estimate the election.

The showing that there had been a marked reduction—18,313—on the office of Senator, and 56,481 on the office of Governor—in the Democratic vote when compared with the 1916 primary, and an increase—3194 for Senator and 6065 for Governor—in the Republican vote, led to first impressions that it forecast an overwhelming Republican victory in Missouri in November.

Whether it does or does not is purely a matter of conjecture with out any real basis from which to figure. About all a study of Missouri political statistics reveals is that there are approximately 75,000 Missouri voters who do not follow party lines and may vote either ticket. And this is without considering the new women voters who enter politics in this State, an entirely unknown quantity. There is nothing on which to base an estimate as to how they will vote.

The 1920 primary returns compared with the 1916 primary returns show the following:

On the office of Senator the total Democratic vote decreased 18,313, or 9 per cent.

On the office of Governor the Democratic vote decreased 56,481, or 24 per cent.

The Republican vote on the office of Senator increased 3194, or a little less than 2 per cent.

The Republican vote on the office of Governor increased 6065, or slightly more than 3 per cent.

From this it would appear that a large number of Democratic voters, who voted in the 1916 primary did not vote in the primary this year, while the Republican increase would appear to be little if any more than the natural increase in party strength through increased population.

Other Elements to Consider. However, there are other elements to take into consideration. For instance, in 1916 there were 40,557 more votes cast for the Democratic candidates for Governor than were cast for the Democratic candidates for Senator. The explanation for this would seem to be simple—merely that through the fact that there were seven active candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor, there was unusual interest in that race, while there was no serious contest for Senator and little interest among the voters.

There unquestionably was much greater interest in the senatorial contest this year than four years ago, yet the vote fell off 9 per cent. There was less interest in the governorship nomination and the vote fell off a much larger amount.

Without attempting to apply the figures for any other purpose than to present the information, the following statistics of the 1916 primary are given:

In that year the Democratic primary vote for Governor was 234,812, and the general election vote for Governor, 322,255. The primary vote thus was 61 per cent of the general election vote. For Senator the primary vote was 194,255, and the general election vote, 396,166. The primary vote thus was 49 per cent of the general election vote.

Republican Vote in 1916.

The Republican vote in the primary was about half the Republican general election vote on both offices. On Governor the primary vote was 191,654, and the general election vote 380,092, the primary vote being 50 per cent of the general election vote. On Senator the primary vote was 189,555, and the general election vote, 371,710, the primary vote being 51 per cent of the general election vote.

It is the custom of politicians who like to figure election estimates to make such percentages as these apply to the election they are figuring. The absurdity of the plan will be apparent when it is shown what such application would mean this year.

Using those percentages as applied to this year's primary vote, the Democratic candidate for Governor, it would be shown, would receive 292,300, while the Republican candidate would receive 395,400, or a majority of 103,100, which any Republican would admit is far beyond their fondest hopes.

For Senator the Democratic candidate would receive 359,100 and the Republican candidate would receive 377,900, or a majority of 18,800. But this would be a majority for the candidate for Governor $4,300 greater than for the candidate for Senator.

Survey of Ten-Year Period. Taking political statistics back to 1910, it is shown that from 1900 to 1916, four national political campaigns, the Democratic vote in Missouri increased 13 per cent, or an average of 3 1/4 per cent each four

ENCAMPMENT OF SPANISH WAR VETERANS IN ST. LOUIS SEPT. 13

5000 Veterans Expected to Attend Twenty-Second Annual National Gathering.

The twenty-second annual national encampment of the United Spanish War Veterans will be held in St. Louis Sept. 13 to 16. It is expected that more than 5000 veterans of the Spanish war will attend. Concurrently, the national encampment of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the United Spanish War Veterans will be held. The headquarters of both organizations will be at the Flanters Hotel.

On Sept. 15 there will be a parade by veterans of the Mexican War, Indian War, Grand Army of the Republic, Confederate Veterans, Naval Veterans and veterans of the World War, all escorted to the veterans of the Spanish War.

years, and the Republican vote increased 17 per cent, or an average of 4 1/4 per cent each four years.

However, with the 16 years there was much difference from one campaign to another.

From 1900 to 1904 the Democratic vote decreased 15 per cent, while the Republican vote increased 2 per cent.

From 1904 to 1908 the Democratic vote increased 17 per cent and the Republican vote increased 8 per cent.

From 1908 to 1912, the 1912 election not being figured because of the division in the Republican party that year owing to the candidacy of Theodore Roosevelt on the Progressive ticket, the Democratic vote increased 15 per cent and the Republican vote increased 6 per cent.

Viewpoints of Parties. On these statistics the Republican probably would prefer to figure from the decreased primary vote of the Democrats this year that there will be many thousands of Democrats who will not vote in November, and that the Republican ticket will win in Missouri by a large majority. The Democrat probably will prefer to take the average increase of vote for his purposes, which would show the Democratic vote in November to be 410,978 and the Republican vote 385,035.

MINERS' WAGE INCREASE NOT TO SEND COAL UP AT ONCE

Operators Expected to Grant $1.50 a Day More to "Day Men" Tomorrow.

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—The informal conference of Illinois coal operators yesterday resulted in the general expression that, while the State Mine Workers will receive a substantial wage increase, there will be no immediate increase in the price of coal.

Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois miners, will be asked to draw up a statement regarding the determination of the operators to break away from the Central Competitive District in making agreements with the miners' union, it was decided.

At Monday's wage conference, the operators will grant the miners an increase of $1.50 a day, 50 cents less than the increase demanded, it was predicted.

Discussion among the operators took a trend today toward the efficiency of day workers which, it was agreed, has fallen off. A condition of the wage increase demanded that miners return to the old standard of productivity and readjustment piece-work scales.

LETVIA ASKED TO RECALL NAGEL

Secretary of Legation Regarded as Undesirable Resident.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Letvia has been asked by the United States to recall Alfred Nagel, bearing credentials as Letvian Secretary of Legation, who is being detained at New York by the immigration authorities. It was stated officially today that Nagel was regarded by the American Government as an undesirable resident and would not be permitted to enter the country.

SOVIET IN PRUSSIAN TOWN

Communists Said to Have Confiscated Wealth at Velbert.

By the Associated Press.
BRUSSELS, Aug. 21.—A semi-official telegram from Dusseldorf says that an insurgent movement, allegedly originating in the German Communist party, has resulted in the proclamation of a Soviet republic, at Velbert, Rhineland Prussia. The dispatch stated that Communists seized the Town Hall, extorting money from the richer inhabitants and forced the local branch of the Reichsbank to hand over a million marks. Notices were posted inviting workers at Essen and Remscheid to join the movement.

Hudson Super-Six Cabriolet
With Patent Leather Top

Another New Hudson Model

The Cabriolet With Roadster Capacity and Finest Car Comfort and Distinction

For the owner-driver who must use his car in all seasons and who demands first-class transportation, we recommend the new Hudson Super-Six Cabriolet.

An earlier model of this type was one of the most popular cars that ever carried the Hudson name plate. But the new car has many advantages over it. There is greater efficiency and reliability—just as has marked the progress of the Super-Six with each succeeding year. And there is greater comfort and, of course, the newest and most advanced appointments. The smart lines and easy driving, comfortable riding qualities of the earlier model are retained.

It is as alert in action as a hare—a quality which accounts for much to those who must drive on congested highways, when the ability to weave in and out through traffic, without effort to driver or car, means much in time and motor satisfaction.

The Cabriolet answers every want of the roadster type and gives in addition full protection in all seasons, and a rich distinction possible only to the highest type enclosed car.

Dear Sirs:
Ever-Tyte Piston Rings are sure all that you claim them to be.

After trying several different kinds of Rings, I had concluded that a rebor-ing job was all that would stop the "Oil Pumping" in my Nash Sport. I finally gave Ever-Tytes a trial and stopped the trouble immediately. Besides saving the cost of rebor-ing, I now only use one-half as much cylinder oil and save at least twenty per cent on gasoline.

Yours very truly,
"DOC'S" MOTOR SERVICE,
R. Spallison Prop.

Cylinder Boring Unnecessary
Zelnicker Ever-Tyte Piston Rings are constructed to expand to every point of the cylinder wall. They fit slightly out-of-round cylinders as perfectly as new and absolutely prevent the leakage of gas and oil.

Save 10% to 25% in Fuel and Oil
Your automobile, truck or tractor will have more power than with any other piston ring. Every ounce of power is delivered to the piston. Carbon troubles are reduced to the minimum. You save 10% to 25% in fuel and oil.

Ever-Tytes show the same saving with greater compression in engines, pumps, compressors, etc.

SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE INDORES EXPOSITION PLAN

Annual Farm, Livestock and Industrial Show for St. Louis Approved by Meredith.

James A. Houchins, chairman of the Executive Committee of the St. Louis Empire Exposition, has received a letter from Secretary of Agriculture Meredith endorsing the idea of an annual agricultural, livestock and industrial exposition in St. Louis. Meredith predicted far-reaching success for the exposition if it is made sound and practical.

"One of the things most needed to stabilize and equalize American prosperity is better understanding and closer co-operation between cities and their surrounding farming country," he wrote. "Everybody realizes that large success for a farming community is contingent upon its accessibility to good city markets. Comparatively few realize, on the other hand, that practically every American city depends for its permanent prosperity upon the farming country around it. It is deeply gratifying to know that St. Louis does appreciate this basic important fact."

CHICAGO, Aug. 21.—The Senate committee appointed to investigate campaign expenditures will meet here Monday, Senator Kenyon, its chairman, announced today, to outline plans for investigation of the fall campaign.

MEXICAN WAR CHIEF ORDERS DISHONEST EMPLOYEES DISMISSED

Clean-Up Move Follows Failure to Prove Charge That Assistant Got Money Busted by Carranza.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 21.—Gen. P. Elias Calles, Secretary of War, has issued an order that all employees of his department who were found useless or dishonest be dismissed, "even if it is necessary to close up entire bureaus." The order was issued in the presence of five reporters of Mexico City newspapers and the correspondent of the Associated Press.

Accusations made against Gen. Francisco R. Serrano, Under Secretary of War, brought about this sweeping order from the head of the department. It was charged that Gen. Serrano had ordered a detachment to unearth 2,700,000 pesos, gold, which was buried during the flight of President Carranza from Mexico City. Gen. Calles declared this accusation implied that Gen. Serrano had appropriated the treasure, and the Secretary of War declared an investigation had proved the charge "absolutely false."

GERMAN POLITICIAN ADVOCATES AN ALLIANCE WITH ENGLAND

"Thought Is Nauseating." He Declares, "but Is Only Way Open to Us."

By the Associated Press.
BERLIN, Aug. 21.—An Anglo-German alliance is advocated by Arthur von Kemnitz, writing in the Tageliche Rundschau. Von Kemnitz, a Nationalist member of the Reichstag and author of the note dispatched to Mexico during Dr. Alfred Zimmermann's regime in the Foreign Office, in which Mexico was asked to join forces with Germany against the United States, rejects the idea of making Bolshevik Russia the "pivot for Germany's foreign policy." "I admit," he declared, "the very thought of an alliance with England is nauseating, but it is the only way open to us."

He is opposed to "rushing into the arms of France," and declares that, "as the United States has evidently concluded to dissociate herself from European affairs," Germany's future salvation is to be found in an organization in the direction of England. He says England would be impressed with the desirability of making Germany the "continental base for English politics and a bulwark against Bolshevism."

Man Washing Window Falls.
Raymond Day, 28 years old, employed at the Masonic Home, 5351 Delmar boulevard, when washing windows on the second floor of the building at 10 a. m. yesterday, lost his balance and fell to the ground. His right leg was fractured and he was cut on the face. He was taken to the city hospital.

CORK MAYOR, HUNGER STRIKER, GETTING LOW

He Reads Notification He Will Not Be Released, and Says He Is Ready to Die.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Aug. 21.—The Lord Mayor of Cork is reported to be in a very low state owing to his hunger strike. He was, however, able to read today communications from the Home Secretary, saying he would not be released. The Lord Mayor's reply was that he would not give in, and was prepared to die cheerfully.

It is understood that the Lord Mayor has been strongly advised by the Catholic clergy to desist from striking.

Homes of Sinn Feiners in Dublin Ransacked for Private Papers.
By the Associated Press.
DUBLIN, Aug. 21.—The homes of Arthur Griffith and other prominent Sinn Feiners were ransacked last night for private papers.

The executive of the Irish Labor party, in an appeal to British labor to stop the war with Ireland, as they did with Russia, and holding them responsible if it continues, says: "The military governors whom you have placed over us calculate that the death of the Lord Mayor of Cork will lead to an uprising which can be suppressed only by wholesale slaughter."

The appeal also declares that Home Secretary Shortt will be held personally responsible if the death of the Lord Mayor ensues. The feeling in Ireland is intense over the treatment of MacSwiney.

New Irish Act Ordered in Effect at Once.
LONDON, Aug. 21.—The London Gazette last night printed an order in Council putting the new Irish act into operation forthwith. It is a long document of six pages. It gives minute regulations to show the act will be enforced but does not stipulate localities where it will be enforced. The act has been termed a "coercion measure" for the enforcement of peace.

O'CONNELL WOULD HAVE GEDDES HELD DOWN TO LAW TALK HERE

Irish Freedom Supporter Wants No British Propaganda in Bar Association Speech.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—Daniel T. O'Connell, director of the bureau of information of the Friends of Irish Freedom, made public today a letter he has written to President H. L. Carson of Philadelphia, protesting against the action of the American Bar Association in arranging for Sir Auckland Geddes, British Ambassador, to address its convention in St. Louis, Aug. 25.

O'Connell, a member of the Bar Association, writes that Ambassador Geddes is a physician, and that there is no occasion for a physician to address a meeting of lawyers. "It is manifest," the letter says, "that the British Ambassador will utilize the occasion to expound pro-British views calculated to serve some British purpose."

Declaring that the recently passed Irish coercion act is contrary to fundamental justice, O'Connell asserts it is not right to give the British Ambassador an opportunity to talk of the advisability of a special comity of friendship between the peoples of England and the United States.

He does not ask that the invitation to the Ambassador be withdrawn, but says he should "be told to talk law to the extent possible, not British propaganda."

SUBWAY GARAGES IN CHICAGO

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—A plan to relieve congestion in Chicago's loop by parking cars in subway garages under Grant Park, on the lake front, has been revived. It was originally broached by Mayor Carter Harrison in 1913. Under the proposed plan, seven garages, each the size of a city block, would be constructed under the park. A four-foot layer of loam on the concrete roof would provide soil for grass, flowers and shrubs.

Each garage would have a capacity of 225 cars. Entering by an inclined driveway from one street, the motorist would stop at the garage office to receive the number of his stall and the key to a locker at the foot of his parking space. In the locker he could keep robes, coats, gloves and other loose luggage. All traffic in the garages would move in the same direction, with the exit on the side opposite the entrance. At the time the plans were prepared, seven years ago, it was estimated the garages would cost $125,000 each.

"LITTLE ENTENTE" IN BALKANS

VIENNA, Aug. 20.—A new grouping of the Balkan States on a defensive basis, is regarded as an accepted fact by the Vienna newspapers, which already have christened it "The Little Entente."

A treaty, described as principally defensive, was signed at Belgrade yesterday between Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia. It is expected here that this treaty soon will be followed by Rumania's entrance into the circle, and the departure of the Bulgarian Premier Stambulowski for Belgrade is believed to indicate that it is Bulgaria's intention to join the new combination.

BODIES OF MAN AND WOMAN FOUND IN BED IN NEW YORK

Police Believe Woman Turned on Gas After Man With Her Fell Asleep.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Did copper-haired Alice Deverall, after lulling her sweetheart to sleep, turn on the gas in their room in the Mohawk apartment hotel, Brooklyn, and lie down beside him to await oblivion as the only way out of her troubles?

This was the tenable police theory formulated up to late tonight to explain the discovery Friday of her body and that of Harold Eustis Ferry of Flatbush, war-battered air veteran.

Alice Deverall was 10 years older than her 32-year-old hero. She had been married twice, and was estranged from her second husband. Registered as Mr. and Mrs. Berry of Berlin, Germany, the pair were identified largely through Mrs. Deverall's Boston terrier, Dodo. In a trunk was a photograph of the woman and the dog.

Deverall, the woman's husband, it is said, was a photographer and a church soloist.

Rail Administration Official Quits.
By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—The resignation of Swagor Shogley, Louisville, Ky., as Director of Finance of the Railroad Administration, effective Sept. 1, was announced today by Secretary Payne. Shogley, it was understood, will return to the practice of law. D. C. Porteous, Assistant acting director, of C. S. Lake, staff officer in charge of labor matters for the Railroad Administration, was also announced.

Robbers Bind Chinese and Loot Laundry Cash Drawer

Sam Wah, proprietor of a Chinese laundry at 518 North Sarah street, told a policeman he saw passing the laundry yesterday noon that about 9:30 o'clock Friday night two men, one armed with a long butcher knife, and the other with two half bricks wrapped in newspapers, entered his place and ordered him to throw up his hands. One of the men, he said, held the knife at his throat while the other threatened him with the bricks.

When he lifted his arms, he said, the pair locked the door, turned out the lights and made him sit on a table while they tied his hands and feet with handkerchiefs. Then, he said, they searched the place and took his cigar box cash drawer containing $14 in dimes, pennies and bills.

He said he freed himself after a time and, not finding a policeman in the neighborhood, waited until one passed yesterday to report the robbery.

NORSE STAR WINS DECATILON TITLE; HAMILTON SECOND

Unofficial Count Gives Capt. Loveland of Norwegian Army Lead of 3,495 Points Over Missouri U. Star—McDonald Is Victor.

ANTWERP, Aug. 21.—The title of the world's best all-round athlete lies tonight between Brutus K. Hamilton, of the University of Missouri, and Capt. Helge Loveland of the Norwegian army, who were well ahead of the other competitors in the Olympic decathlon when the event was completed today. So few points separated the young American from the 27-year old officer that a recount of the points allotted by the complicated system will be necessary before the world officially knows which is the better man, but it appears that the Norwegian has a slight advantage in the contest, which consisted of 10 events designed to show best the measure of an athlete. The unofficial count gave Loveland a lead of 3,495 points.

Whichever of the two is awarded the cup donated by the late Russian Emperor for the decathlon, and which was forfeited to the United States by the Russian government in 1912 because of the charge of professionalism, there is so little difference between them that Hamilton and Loveland may be justly proud of their laurels.

Although Loveland failed to score a single first, he made equally good time with several others in the dash, and his performances in the high jump, pole vault, the 1500-meter run and the shot put and discus were so consistent that he obtained second, third or fourth. He thus apparently outpointed Hamilton, who won first in the shot put and the 100-meter dash and second in the broad jump, the javelin and discus, but got only seventh in the 1500-meter and eleventh in the high jump.

Hamilton "All In" at Finish. At the finish of the 1500-meter, the tenth event in the two days, Hamilton fairly staggered into the arms of friends and was assisted off the field. It was the same story with the other competitors who survived the preliminaries.

As a result of today's wins, America's points now total 179, not including the decathlon, which is more than twice the total of any of the three hundred athletes from England, Finland and Sweden.

"Big Pat" McDonald of the New York Athletic Club, retained his Olympic title when he won the final of the 56-pound weight event.

France, England, Sweden, Denmark and Luxembourg. In the team race America's five runners showed up as well as there is a fair chance of another victory being achieved in this event. Devaney ran an exceptionally good race and was able to hold his own in the final. The new New York "cop" outlasted his field, and on his second round he tossed the weight 11.25 meters. By the fourth round he had increased his lead to 1.25 meters. He was followed by the American team, which was 10.50 meters. Lind of Sweden was third, with 10.25; Archie McDermid of Canada, fourth, with 10.12; Stevenson of Sweden, fifth, with 9.25; and Petersen of Finland, sixth, with 9.27.

Dan Ahearn of the Illinois A. C. who holds the world's record for hop, step and jump, made a disappointing showing in the final and his best jump gave him sixth place. Ahearn, so American officials say, is not the jumper of old and in the heats just barely qualified for the final. Ahearn was suspended recently by the American committee for infraction of training rules, but was reinstated the next day. He has trained faithfully since then, but this afternoon he was outclassed by his foreign rivals.

The event was won by Timos of Finland with 14.50 meters, while Jansson of Sweden was second, with 14.45 meters. Sweden also won third and fourth places, when Amol jumped 14.77 meters and Sahling 14.74 meters. McDermid of the Chicago A. C. was fifth with 14.27.

Ahearn's best jump was only 14.03 meters, which plainly shows how far he has come back. In the final, he was 1.25 meters behind the winner. In 1911, Ahearn jumped 5.11 inches. The turf today was soft and soggy and prevented the jumpers from getting a good "take off."

Prigorio Captures Walk. Prigorio of Italy gained his second victory when he finished first in the 3000-meter walk. The Italian is one of the greatest heel and toe artists ever produced, and many compared him favorably with George Goulding, the famous Canadian walker. He led practically all of the way and his time for the distance was 13m. 14.58.

The veteran Remer kept up with him in the early part of the race, but lacking youth, his strength began to leave him as the finish neared. Parer of Australia managed to get home in second place, while Remer finished third in front of McMaster of South Africa. Then came Maroney.

America had no trouble qualifying in the 400-meter relay race and there is every likelihood that the boys from the States will score another victory in the final for this event, which will be held tomorrow. The members of the relay team are Loren Mitchell of the N. Y. C. Jaycees, Charles W. Padlock, Los Angeles, and two others from the Olympic Club of San Francisco.

Murchison Gets Early Lead. They ran in this order: Murchison quickly took the lead and was a few yards in front when he passed the yard to Scholz. Scholz increased the lead and today he did. Padlock Kirkey had the race at his mercy and near the finish eased up in his running. His time was 48 seconds and this is likely to be improved upon in the final.

Italy finished second, but was disqualified because the nation was not qualified properly. This gave second place to Luxembourg. Competing tomorrow in the final will be America,

Yesterday's Olympic Finals

Opening Olympic Swim Event Today

First Final Will Be 100-Metre for Women to Be Held Next Tuesday.

ANTWERP, Aug. 21.—Intricate judging of diving events on points will contribute practically as much toward the total standing of nations in the swimming events of the seventh Olympiad which begins Sunday, as the victories of the competitors in the various swimming races.

The swimming and water polo tournament which is being held at a new stadium built especially for the Olympic water games, will continue until Aug. 29.

The program has been arranged, as in the case with all Olympic events, to be open to women, and after the 100-meter race, which will be held in the evenings, the swimming stadium has seating and standing accommodations for approximately 10,000 spectators.

The swimming races and diving exhibitions are among the high diving events open to women, and there are female teams entered from many nations, including the United States. The American team, which is headed by K. C. Bartlett and R. Pope, qualified for the final in the discus.

The crowd again was small, and from a financial point the games have been a huge failure. The Belgian Olympic Committee has threatened to throw open nearly half of the seating capacity of the stadium to the people without charging admission.

The program of events will include: For men, 100-meter, free style; 400-meter, free style; 800-meter, free style; 1500-meter, free style; 5000-meter, free style; 10000-meter, free style; 100-meter, breast stroke; REALTORS GETTING READY FOR EARLY TRADING REVIVALS

Indications Said to Be That Movement Will Be Approaching Full Swing Not Long After Sept. 1.

EASING TREND IN CREDIT CONDITIONS

Decided Interest in Newly Constructed Apartments and Flats—Big Industrial Growth Forecast.

By Berry Moore.

Trading in realty in St. Louis and the suburbs is more or less in abeyance, owing to the absence of many agents, prospective buyers and other potential interests from the city.

Meantime, the work of revising price catalogues and putting property in condition is proceeding, in anticipation of an early resumption of activity, the probabilities being that the market will be approaching full again well before Sept. 1. It is not, however, expected that sales of houses or dwellings, which have been the mainstay of the real estate movement in St. Louis in 1920, will be so numerous in the future, for the reason that the supply of buildings of this type for sale has been brought to low ebb. Such are available as are held at present prices, but there are some bargains of the dwelling kind still to be had, real estate agents contend. This is supplemented by the declaration that still higher prices are destined to prevail.

Credit Conditions Easing.

The prospects are that there will be a broad demand for investment purposes the ensuing fall, especially with the amelioration of credit conditions, which is now in process. As a result of prevailing high interest rates at the banks, with 7 per cent as the minimum, transactions in real estate have been held at a standstill. The purchase price of the plant and equipment is reported as $60,000. This is the second East Side factory property sold by Bailey since his recent return from Washington, D. C., where he had charge during the past year of real estate purchases and leases for the Ordnance branch of the War Department.

RAILWAY REALTY EXPERT WILL JOIN FRANCISCO & KUNZ STAFF

H. E. Plack, former chief land appraiser for the Washburn Railway Co. is to become identified with the Francisco & Kunz Realty Co. in the past five years has taken advantage of opportunities to acquaint himself with conditions of real estate in various large cities, especially in manufacturing, industrial and switch properties, which branch he will take charge of.

High-Class Home Properties SOLD FOR MORE THAN $150,000

The Hewson Realty Co. reports sales aggregating more than $150,000, mostly in Parkway and University City. The "twin houses" at 7108-10 Kingsbury boulevard were sold for the Kompf estate to Dr. F. A. Albrecht and Walter J. Pattee. The home of Edw. C. Schmidt, 6181 Westminster place, was sold to David E. Keefe, and 6175 Westminster for P. A. Wines to R. A. Rainwater. For the Horton estate, 5710 and 5712 Columbia avenue were sold to John E. Terney and to Samuel Patis.

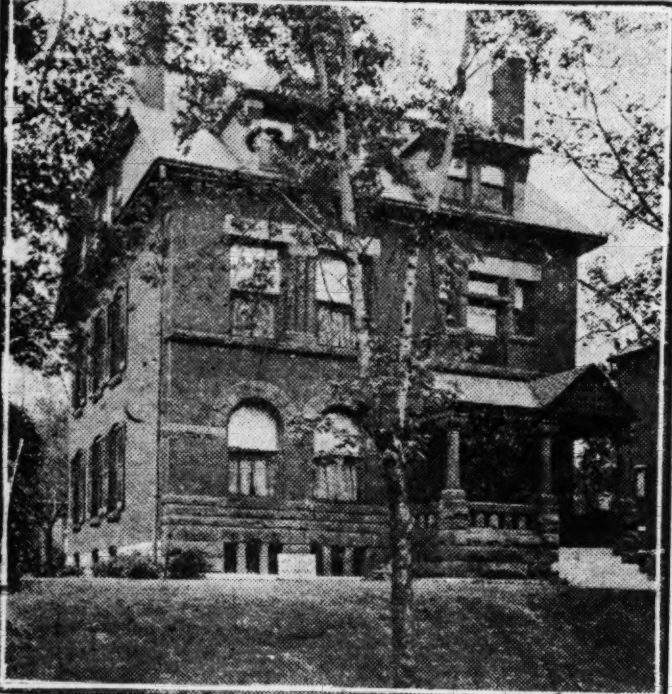

Laffer Returns From Vacation.

William P. Laffer, vice president and secretary of the Kollar Realty Co., has returned from a vacation of several weeks at Cave Lodge, on the Gasconade River.

Webster Bungalow Sold for $15,000.

The Korte-Rust Realty Co. has sold an eight-room bungalow at 522 Oakwood avenue, Webster Groves, on lot 50x200 feet. It has four rooms with sun-parlor and sleeping porch. The sale was to Mrs. Marie Loy for $15,000.

New Resident From Kansas City Buys Home on Maple Avenue

GEORGE W. MUCKLEY, who is removing from Kansas City to St. Louis, has purchased the residence of O. Perry Hoover at 5352 Maple avenue, through the John S. Blake & Bro. Realty Co. The residence is substantially constructed, and has 11 rooms, reception hall, hardwood floors and finish combination fixtures and granite basement. The premises also include a garage.

MACHINERY CONCERN BUYS EAST SIDE PLANT

St. Louis Spiral Machinery Co. Pays $60,000 for Property of Globe Motor Truck Co.

The East St. Louis plant of the Globe Motor Truck Syndicate has been sold by David Bailey, of Edward L. Bakewell's office, to the Spiral Machinery Co. of St. Louis. The plant is at Eighteenth and Brady avenues, and comprises about three acres, with a large shop building of steel-frame construction, also a separate office building. It has switch track connections.

Lytle & Adams, general manager of the Spiral Machinery Co., is the inventor of the "Adams Spiral Plow," for drawing which a 10-20 tractor or six horses are required. The plow is adapted for use on all types of soil, especially hard soils, thereby enabling plowing at any time during the year. Several sizes of motor trucks will also be produced by the company.

South Grand Av. Apartment Building Sold to Eldracher

Oreon E. and R. G. Scott report having closed a deal whereby Frank A. Eldracher became owner of the Carter Apartments at 3217 South Grand ave. The price paid was not stated.

This is a six-family building each suite containing five rooms and bath and sun-parlor. The annual rental exceeds $4000.

Added Story for Business Building.

The Schwartz Importing Co. at Fifteenth street and Washington avenue has arranged with Frank A. Ruf, owner of the building occupied by it, to erect an additional story. Contracts for the construction, totaling about $50,000, have been let through F. C. Bonasack, architect. Work will be started Sept. 4.

Corner Sold to Iron Works Company.

The Hannauer Real Estate Co. has sold to the Forster & Kaysing Iron Works the northeast corner of Twenty-fifth and Montgomery streets. This lot is 92x145 feet. Improved with a two-story office building and one-story shop. The purchase price was about $15,000.

PACKING CONCERN TO BUILD $500,000 PLANT

Sieloff Company Buys Two Blocks at Natural Bridge and Clarence Avenues.

As a site for an extensive plant to be a model of its kind, the Emil Sieloff Packing Co. has purchased from former Mayor Rolla Wells two vacant blocks of ground at the southwest corner of Natural Bridge and Clarence avenues, through the George J. Wanstath Real Estate Co. for $35,000.

The tract takes in the entire front from Natural Bridge avenue to Lexington avenue on the west line of Clarence avenue and the southwest corner of Lexington and Clarence, also the entire front on the west side of Clarence avenue up to the north-west corner of Ashland and Clarence.

TENANTS OBTAINED FOR LAST TWO LINELL BUILDING STORES

The West Side Buick Auto Co., a new corporation, has leased, through the Martin-Breit Real Estate Co., 5023-27 Delmar boulevard. The company was organized by W. S. Roberts, for many years manager of the J. I. Case Threshing Machine Co. The lease has a front of 100 feet and depth of 170 feet. The lease was made for the Delmar Garage Co.

The Martin-Breit company also leased for the Childs company, first floor storerooms at 503-5 North Third street, and second floor storerooms at 503-5 North Third street, and second floor storerooms at 503-5 North Third street.

FORMER ST. CLAIR COUNTY TREASURER DIES AT 75 YEARS

Paul W. Abt, 75 years old, 317 Linden place, Lansdowne, East St. Louis, died at his home at 2:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon from illness superinduced by old age.

He formerly was vice president of the Southern Illinois National Bank of East St. Louis, and at the time of his death was a member of the Board of Directors of that institution. He served as County Treasurer of St. Clair County from 1910 to 1912. He was born in Germany, and had been a resident of East St. Louis since 1875. He is survived by his widow and three children, Paul Jr., Ernest Abt and Mrs. R. R. Thomas.

Scientific Policy Needed to Solve U.S. Immigration Problem, Expert Asserts

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Although passenger ships from Europe are crowded with immigrants, America probably will not receive enough unskilled labor for mines, mills and factories seeking immigrant workers throughout the country, according to Miss Frances A. Kellor of New York, a leading authority on immigration. Miss Kellor is vice chairman of the Inter-Racial Council, an organization of committees from 20 of racial groups in this country which numbers more than 700 members among the large industrial establishments of the United States. She just returned from Europe where she studied immigration conditions.

After pointing out the loss through the virtual suspension of immigration during the war and the emigration from the United States of 424,000, mostly unskilled male workers, from July 1, 1919, to June 30, 1920, Miss Kellor said she believed the limited number of passengers now in service would not be able to carry, in the next two years, the numbers of male immigrants this country needs. But the real danger, she said, is in America's failure to keep abreast of foreign governments in the matter of constructive thinking on the subject of immigration.

"Foreign governments," said Miss Kellor, "have been studying immigration scientifically and evolving policies that will advance their countries economically, whereas we have been contenting ourselves with reading the statistics as to the volume of immigration without even determining whether the character of the immigration is adapted to our economic needs."

"At the present time," she continued, "much is being said about the increasing numbers of immigrants to America. But if we analyze the figures we will find, for instance, that during the five weeks beginning June 25 and ending July 30 last the total number of third class passengers landing at Ellis Island was 84,492, and the number of third class passengers departing was 63,219, indicating the net figures of 21,273 third class passengers arriving."

Immigration Policy Needed. "Data showing how these figures are distributed as to race, sex and occupation is not available but, taking the figures as they stand, it may be affirmed that after a careful estimate, approximately two-fifths of those arriving and one-third of those leaving are women and children. This would be equivalent to the arrival during this period of about 50,000 men and the departure of 42,146, a net immigration of men amounting to 8,259, or at the rate of about 1700 per week. When we determine the number of 'white collar' men and the number of unskilled workers among the estimated 1700 adult males arriving each week we very readily see that the present immigration is contributing in only a small way toward the relief of the present unskilled labor shortage."

"But the question of immigration volume at this time is of secondary importance. The real question is what is America going to do toward formulating national policies and developing international agreements and understanding on the immigration of the future?"

"Immigration during the intervening period of the war," said Miss Kellor, "has assumed new and puzzling aspects and unless the United States takes a broader interest in the subject and deals with it more scientifically the situation may not be without grave consequences. America continues to consider immigration an individual matter. Foreign governments have begun to look upon it as an affair of state and they are adopting consistent policies of distributing nationals to their own best advantage."

"Manhood in Europe looms as large and important as did manpower in the war. Europe knows that its manhood is the source of its wealth and foreign governments will see to it that their best national interests are served by emigration. Therefore, the spontaneous and uncontrolled exodus from Europe to any and all parts of the globe is a thing of the past. If a government considers it is to its best interest to keep its nationals at home, then there will be no emigration from that country. If it considers that a certain number of its people should emigrate to a certain country, then that number will go to the country designated. The foreign government itself will decide what countries offer the best opportunities for the emigrants."

America Gets Leavings. "The net result of this new plan seems to be that the more desirable classes of immigrants are being diverted to other countries, particularly those of South America. America Miss Kellor says, 'is getting the leavings.'"

The situation is so grave that Miss Kellor believes it can be met only by an international conference which will review the whole question. The United States must be strongly represented, she insists, and must enter the negotiations prepared to consider the immigration problem as one of statecraft of the highest order.

"It is not so much of the immediate future that I am thinking," she explained, "but of the time when the present food shortage in Europe will not be so acute as to drive people here in search of the bare means of existence. A great many people are on their way here now because they are anxious to get out of Europe and don't care where they go so long as they are sure to find bread."

"But I doubt that even these will be found as valuable to the United States as the immigration of normal times. We make a mistake in thinking, because we get numbers, we are getting what we need. In our outgoing emigration, we are losing 50 per cent in skilled workmen who are an asset to any country. To replace them we are getting 75 per cent of women, children and inexperienced laborers."

The lowered value of today's immigration, Miss Kellor went on, is due neither to chance nor the drainage upon European manpower because of the war. On the contrary, it can be traced to the fact that the foreign governments have awakened to a discovery that the labor surplusage is a tangible asset in the world's markets.

Immigration has already been made a subject for diplomatic activity in Hungary, the Balkans, Greece, Italy, Lithuania, Spain, Portugal and elsewhere. But while American diplomacy apparently neglects the subject, the rulers of other lands on this side of the Atlantic are not so passive.

"We continually overlook the fact," Miss Kellor said, "that most of the best immigration comes from people of the peasant type who are hungry for land. Individuals may have become artisans or miners or ditch-diggers from force of circumstances, but in the heart of each there is a yearning for land he may call his own."

Land Offered Immigrants. "Their own Governments understand this impulse and sympathize with it. Both Greece and Lithuania, for instance, are planning to distribute the land that has come to them from the war. Of course, neither will have enough to go around, but when they cannot find enough ground at home they seek land abroad for their people."

"That is why, in some of these countries, the national governments are persuading their nationals that better opportunities await them in South America than in the United States. Argentina is offering 100 acres of land and cash bonuses to all desirable immigrants who will come."

"It is obvious that a great deal of money is needed for the rehabilitation of these European countries. The Governments want their people to go where they can make the most money in the shortest time, because much of the money soon comes back home. Therefore, the Governments are ready to do a wholesale business in immigration with any other country that is prepared to talk quick profits."

"But they are going even further than that. Before the war the rulers of these overcrowded countries didn't care whether their sons went abroad because citizens of other lands or not. It is different now. Today they are so anxious to preserve the fealty and allegiance of their immigrants that they are taking amazing steps to do so."

"I know of one country which is considering a plan whereby its emigrants may not only retain their citizenship at home but may actually obtain political representation in Parliament."

"It is not difficult to see what this would mean. Its effect would simply be to create colonies of that Government in all foreign countries where enough of its nationals might settle."

The point I am trying to make in this connection is that, since the other Governments have gone systematically into the immigration business, the United States cannot remain out. It is the opinion that this country should send abroad a commission to study the whole matter from the beginning. This ought not to be a junket, but a serious investigation, empowered to get all the information necessary for wise legislation and for American participation in international conferences on the subject."

Question Is Economic. "In other words, this has become an economic, not a political, question. Already governmental policies abroad are being drawn with a view to restraining, directing, stimulating and diverting emigration in accordance with the national welfare."

"It would be inept for the United States to adhere to its obsolete attitude toward the question. We must get rid of the idea that to the oppressed of the world our shores loom as a safe refuge. The war has freed most of the oppressed with the exception of the Jews, and some of the most desirable of the Jewish immigrants already are being diverted to South America."

"We must do something toward a sensible distribution of the people who do reach our shores. Heretofore our care for the immigrant has been limited to that of a land. A good miner comes over here, but never gets to our mines because he meets a competitor at the Battery who has a hold-carrier's job and the miner becomes a hold-carrier, too. America loses by that arrangement, so does the miner, so does some hold-carrier whose job has been preempted, and so do the indigent relatives in the old country."

"Because of our carelessness in these matters we suffer in another way. In recent months almost half a million skilled workers have gone back to their native countries and not one of them is a 'booster' for American goods when he gets there. Yet, by a little effort, we could have made each one of them a salesman for American goods. Other countries are not so stupid."

"We have allowed foreign governments to establish here for their nationals, but agencies here for their nationals, but have done very little in that way ourselves. Poland, for instance, has a very active bureau looking after the interest of the Poles at all times. "We need to develop a scientific system of assimilating the immigrants, of distributing them, of giving them access to the land, of keeping in contact with them after they have left the ports of entry. Until we do so we shall have no right to complain if our resources are exploited for the benefit of other countries."

Miss Kellor declared that the congestion at foreign ports of immigrants holds for America is at present pitiable. It is necessary for American consular agents to visit every passport and this is a long, tedious process.

"In some stations," she said, "they are tied up for from two to three months waiting on passports, on steamship tickets and on sanitation formalities. Immigrants from the Balkans are required at Cherbourg to have $12 to pay their expenses for the time they are detained during the fumigation."

"Most of these immigrants are women and children who have been sent for by relatives over here."

CONDITIONS FOR PULITZER AIR RACE MAY BE REVISED

New Contest Committee of Aero Club to Discuss Proposed Plans.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Conditions governing the trans-continental air race for the Pulitzer Trophy will be discussed at a meeting of the new contest committee of the Aero Club of America, which absorbed the American Flying Club.

It had been intended to hold the coast-to-coast race much on the order of an auto touring race, but several members of the committee believe this move is impracticable. New members of the committee expect to draw up conditions which will enable the race to be held early in November. Another proposal which will be new in air racing annals, will be for each flyer to carry a log book in which he shall record the progress of his flight.

874 ACCIDENTS IN JUNE ON ST. LOUIS STREETS

10 Persons Killed and 117 Others Hurt in Auto Mishaps—Damage, $55,591.

There were 874 accidents on the streets of St. Louis during June, 10 of them being fatal automobile accidents, according to statistics compiled by W. L. Patterson, secretary of the National Safety Council, Mississippi Valley division, and forwarded to Acting Chief of Police Gillaspay yesterday.

In classifying the accidents, Patterson says the property damage was $55,591, and besides the 10 fatalities, 117 persons were injured in automobile accidents; 8 in motorcycle accidents; 23 in bicycle accidents; 45 in street car accidents; 20 in horse-drawn vehicle accidents, while there were 534 automobile accidents in which no person was injured.

In 340 of the accidents the cause was not determined, he says. The others resulted as follows:

Careless driving, 228; "unavoidable," 112; skidding, 21; driving on wrong side of the street, 2; parked too close to the street car tracks, 2; mechanical defects in automobiles, 27; jay-walking, 53; one machine trying to pass another, 12; failing to stop at crossing without giving signal, 7; automobiles passing street cars while discharging passengers, 3; backing auto without giving signal, 14; stopping without giving signal, 14; turning without giving signal, 31, and horses left unguarded, 3.

WORLD SOVIET REPUBLIC IS BOLSHIEVIM AIM, SAYS LENINE

Red Policy to Foment Revolutions in All Countries, Russian Premier Tells Moscow Audience.

BERLIN, Aug. 21.—Petrograd newspapers publish a speech by Nikolai Lenin, the Soviet Premier, in Moscow, in which he expressed an uncompromising policy towards foreign countries, according to advices received today.

Lenine declared Russia must continue to foment revolution in all countries until she achieves her aim, which is an international "proletarian Soviet Republic." Asia and the East are the chief present hope of Bolshevism, Lenine continued, and it is there that Russia must show her strength. He declared that in England the worst foe of Bolshevism was the opportunist, aristocratic working class, and Soviet Russia's aim should be to strengthen the Communist majority against this class.

LETTER IDENTIFIES BODY

Police Informed Torso Picked Up in River Is Canadian Woman's.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—The Jersey City police, who have been trying to identify the torso of a woman picked up in the Hudson River, today received an anonymous letter saying it was that of a "Mrs. Hostwick of Canada."

The writer asserted that the woman had not been murdered, but had died from natural causes after living with a man on a boat tied up on the Jersey shore. This man, according to the letter, was too poor to pay for a funeral and therefore dismembered the body and threw it into the river.

RAIN CUTS ATTENDANCE ON LAST DAYS OF STATE FAIR

Exhibits at Scholastic Exceeded Those in Any Previous Year—Centennial Queen Is Selected.

SEDALIA, Mo., Aug. 21.—With exhibits in almost every department far exceeding any previous year and attendance for the first five days the largest for corresponding days any previous year, rain for the week and greatly curtailed the size of the crowds at the Missouri State Fair here.

A contest for centennial queen next year aroused much interest during the week. Miss Leola Ernst, Washington, Mo., Franklin County, was elected for this honor, having a plurality of nearly 1000 votes. Each county of the State with the exception of Pettis, which eliminated itself, had a contestant. The fair closed today with exhibition automobile races.

BARCLAY URGED FOR LEGION HEAD

A delegation from the Barclay Club of Mexico, Mo., formed in the interest of the candidacy of John R. Barclay of Mexico to be State Commander of the American Legion, came to St. Louis yesterday to seek support for Barclay at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the American Legion in Hotel Statler last night.

Barclay served as a private in the Eighty-seventh Division. He now is commander of James Bledsoe Post in Mexico. His platform emphasizes that he will devote more attention to the letter, was too poor to pay for a funeral and therefore dismembered the body and threw it into the river. He is a real estate dealer.

Union Electric's 3800 Home Partners

Over 3800 St. Louis and Missouri holders of Union Electric Light & Power Company 7% preferred stock are drawing $200,000 a year in cash dividends—$50,000 every three months.

Their average holding is a fraction over seven shares; their average yearly dividend a fraction over $51.

More than 3000 of the 3800 are customers of the company. Several hundred more, nearly all customers, will own shares when they finish paying for stock bought on the installment plan.

Installment buyers pay $10.20 a share cash down, and $10.20 a share each month for nine months, with their electric service bills. They draw 5 per cent interest—better than the savings bank rate—on their installment payments. They can withdraw all payments, with interest, any time before final payment is made. When the last payment is made, they get their shares and begin drawing 7% dividends—$1.75 per share every three months.

Union Electric sells its 7% preferred stock, as and when authorized by the State, to finance the growth of this great branch of the public service. Financing our growth this way gives men and women of moderate means, here at home, opportunity to get a LIBERAL BUSINESS INCOME from their savings invested in one of the largest, strongest, safest, permanent businesses in the State.

Union Electric, providing electric light, heat and power for St. Louis and a steadily increasing area outside of St. Louis, expects eventually to have 15,000 to 20,000 home stockholders. This expresses, in one way, the Company's faith in the future growth of the Greater St. Louis industrial district.

PRICE: $100 a share for cash; $102 on a ten-payment plan.

SALES OFFICES: Room 201 Union Electric Building, 12th and Locust Streets, St. Louis, and Union Electric's offices in Franklin, Jefferson, Perry, St. Charles and St. Louis counties.

MAIL ORDERS: Send bank draft, certified check, postoffice or express order with mail orders. Prompt delivery of shares will be made by registered mail.

It will cost you only a minute and a 2-cent stamp to fill in and mail us this coupon. We shall be glad to send one of our salesmen to visit you, at your convenience; or, if you live at a distance, to mail you full details of Union Electric's business.

A PAGE FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

They found they had entered a cobble-stoned square,
Where a band of tin soldiers played "Fiddle-dee-dee."
And folks by the thousands were gathering there
To welcome the children to see Trundle-Tree.

TRAVELS IN THE LAND OF TRUNDLE-TRUNDLE-TREE.

"Oh, where are we going?" asked Peggy and Ted.
As Slim led them gaily along the quaint street.
"Mother Goose," replied Slim, "has invited you both
To visit her house, where she'll give you a treat."

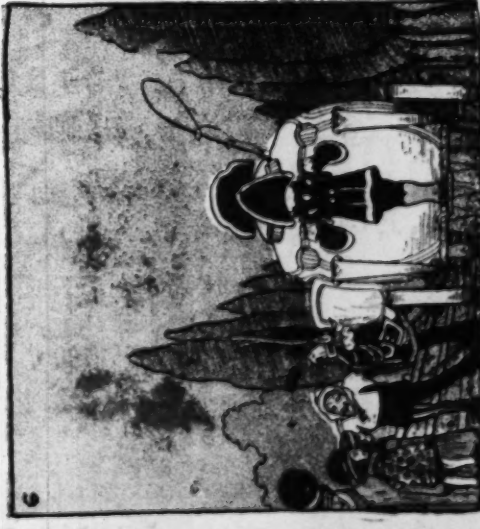

At Mother Goose's house on the edge of the town,
The lady herself met her guests at the door.
And took them inside to a great wooden board
Just loaded with cookies and good things galore.

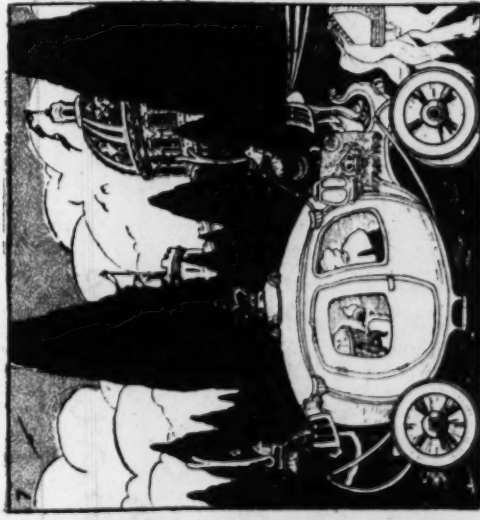

Little Peggy and Ted didn't think that just
"Thank you!"
Could ever repay any kindness so great.
But Mother Goose bade them be seated, and mercy!
I wish you could see how those little folks ate!

And when both the children had eaten their fill,
Of sugars and spices and honey and milk.
Their hostess arrayed them in clothes fair to see,
Of velvet, of satin, of linen and silk.

And then Slim returned (he'd been gone for a while),
Accompanied by footmen with carriage and four.
They bade Mother Goose their politest farewells.
And deep in their hearts hoped to see her once more.

Through meadow and forest, by lakeside and stream,
Through gardens and orchards, their gilded coach rolled,
Till over the tree tops young Teddy espied
The roof of the palace, all gleaming with gold.

With Slim as their escort they mounted the stairs,
Past lackeys and page boys and sentry so tall.
All the court was assembled to see them arrive.
A loud shout of greeting rang through the great hall.

Picturesque Incidents in Career of James O'Neill

As handsome, black-eyed youth he played in stock at Old Varieties Theater on Market Street, St. Louis—David Belasco's account of how actor undertook Christus in "Passion Play" at San Francisco, for which he was thrown in jail and fined $50—Inherited role of Monte Cristo from Charles P. Thorne, and played it for 15 years, in more than 6000 performances

NAT. 10 the final disposer of fates counted out James O'Neill, the actor, who as Edmund Dante, in more than 6000 performances of "The Count of Monte Cristo," had knelled the fatal "One! Two! Three!" over his enemies—Fernand, Danglars and Villefort. The man who for more than 15 years played Dumas' hero—a character from the Arabian Nights transplanted to nineteenth-century France—had himself a life of no small eventfulness, as many incidents of his career evince. A strikingly handsome youth, with lustrous black eyes and raven hair, O'Neill, during the early '70s, played in stock at the old St. Louis Varieties Theater on Market street, where the Grand Opera House now stands. His name had not yet been made famous—or notorious—through his performance of Christus in Saml Morse's "Passion Play" at San Francisco, in 1879.

Later O'Neill played his Edmund Dantes many times in this city, mostly at the Olympic Theater. His last performance of this role in St. Louis occurred at Delmar Garden during the summer of 1910. This was at the Dramatic Theater, the other stars of the season being Leslie Carter and Nat Goodwin. Across the walk at Delmar Garden, in the Musical Theater, a season of musical comedy was under way simultaneously, with Raymond Hitchcock, Grace Van Stradford and De Wolf Hopper at the head of the company. O'Neill's final appearance here occurred two seasons ago at the Shubert-Jefferson Theater, where he played the part of the father in "The Wanderer," a drama based on the biblical story of the prodigal son. Nance O'Neill played the part of the mother.

The corner stone of the Varieties Theater was laid on Aug. 18, 1851, by the famous Sol Smith, "the oldest man in the theatrical profession in St. Louis," who prepared this epitaph to be engraved upon a stone in Bellefontaine Cemetery:

"All the world's a stage,
"Exit Sol."

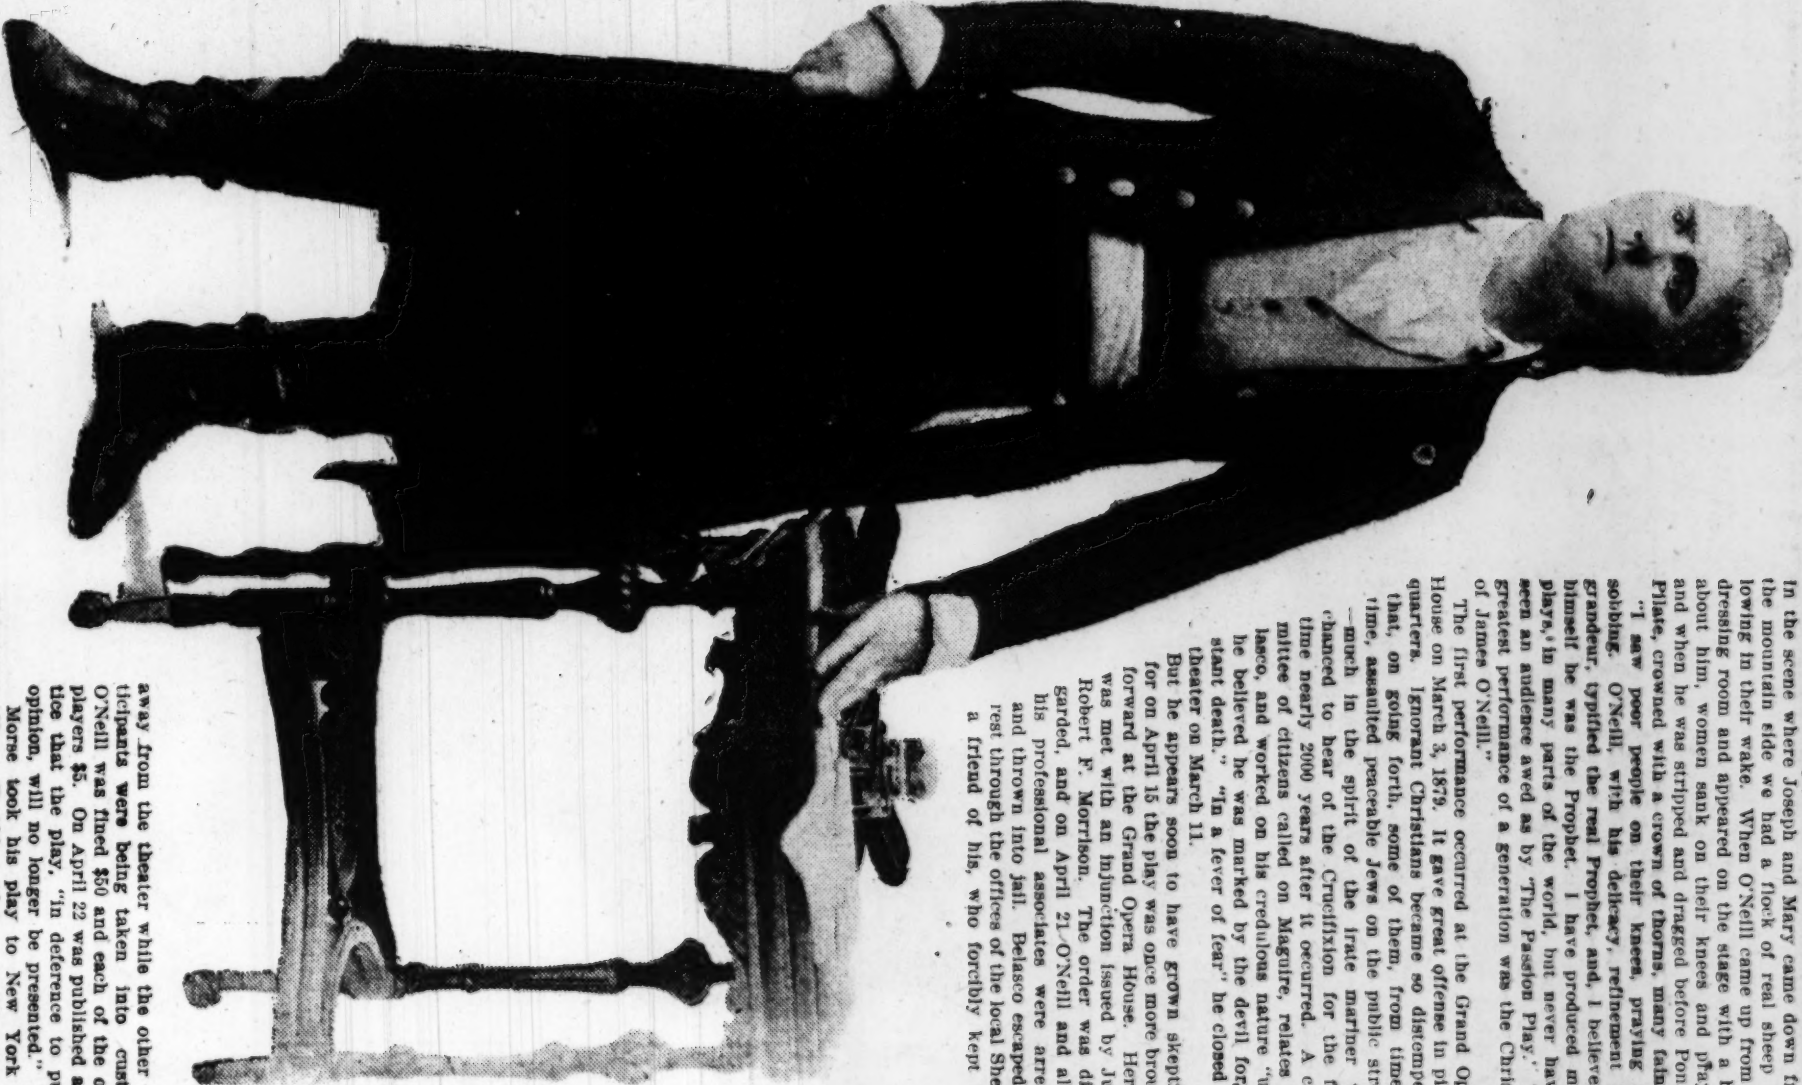

And all the men and women merely players.

The theater, in 1873, came into the control of the celebrated Ben (or Benedict) de Bar, and was thereafter known as De Bar's Opera House. It was under his consularship that O'Neill made his St. Louis debut. De Bar retained control of the showhouse until his death in 1877, and frequently assumed the comedy roles. His Falstaff was one of the famous characterizations of the day, and he also delighted in the roles of Touchstone and the Grave Digger in "Hamlet." He never failed to appear with Lotie, a favorite with him, and the contrast between his massive frame and her diminutive proportions always produced a ludicrous effect.

After leaving St. Louis, O'Neill played for a season in Cincinnati, was leading juvenile in a Baltimore company, played in stock at Chicago and appeared with Adelaide Neilson and Edwin Booth in classic plays.

We next hear of O'Neill in San Francisco, in connection with no less a man than David Belasco, who notes that Reader's "Dora" was brought out at Maguire's New Theater on Aug. 27, 1875, and that "I did some work on the prompt book, so as to make the part of Farmer Allen more suitable for James O'Neill." In 1876 Edward J. ("Lucky") Baldwin, who had been a hostler, and Thomas Maguire, who had been a cab driver, combined to build Baldwin's Academy of Music in San Francisco, and Belasco, though not advertised as such, officiated as assistant stage manager and prompter.

The opening bill was "Richard III," and one reads that James F. Cathcart played Richmond for several performances, when he was superseded by James O'Neill. His name appears in many succeeding casts, and finally we come to Morse's "Passion Play" in which O'Neill became enthusiastically interested about February, 1879. He was desirous of impersonating Christus, a part for which he considered himself peculiarly fitted, and presently succeeded in inducing Maguire to produce the drama. Baldwin supplied financial support, and Belasco was engaged as stage manager.

JAMES O'NEILL

"How we scoured San Francisco," says Belasco in his reminiscences, "school, church and theater, for people to put in our cast! Every actor who was out of employment was sure of finding something to do in our mob scenes. I cannot conceive, in the history of the theater, a more complete or perfect cast."

"We engaged 200 singers; we marshaled 400 men, women, children and infants in our ensembles. Every one seemed to be inspired. O'Neill, as the preparations progressed, grew more and more obsessed. He gave up smoking; all the little pleasures of life he denied himself. Any man who used a coarse word during rehearsals was dismissed. He walked the streets of the city with the expression of a holy man on his face. Whenever he drew near a hush prevailed such as one does not often find outside a church. The boards of the stage became Holy Land."

"In the Massacre of the Innocents we had a hundred mothers on the stage, with their babes in their arms. In the scene where Joseph and Mary came down from the mountain side we had a flock of real sheep following in their wake. When O'Neill came up from his dressing room and appeared on the stage with a halo about him, women sank on their knees and prayed, and when he was stripped and dragged before Pontius Pilate, crowned with a crown of thorns, many fainted. "I saw poor people on their knees, praying and sobbing. O'Neill, with his delicacy, refinement and grandeur, typified the real Prophet, and, I believe, to himself he was the Prophet. I have produced many plays, in many parts of the world, but never have I seen an audience awed as by 'The Passion Play.' The greatest performance of a generation was the Christus of James O'Neill."

The first performance occurred at the Grand Opera House on March 3, 1879. It gave great offense in pious quarters. Ignorant Christians became so displeased that, on going forth, some of them, from time to time, assailed peaceable Jews on the public streets—much in the spirit of the irate mariner who chanced to hear of the Crucifixion for the first time nearly 2000 years after it occurred. A committee of citizens called on Maguire, relates Belasco, and worked on his credulous nature "until he believed he was marked by the devil for instant death." "In a fever of fear" he closed the theater on March 11.

But he appears soon to have grown skeptical, for on April 15 the play was once more brought forward at the Grand Opera House. Here it was met with an injunction issued by Judge Robert F. Morrison. The order was disregarded, and on April 21 O'Neill and all of his professional associates were arrested and thrown into jail. Belasco escaped arrest through the offices of the local Sheriff, a friend of his, who forcibly kept him away from the theater while the other participants were being taken into custody. O'Neill was fined $50 and each of the other players $5. On April 22 was published a notice that the play, "in deference to public opinion, will no longer be presented."

Morse took his play to New York and offered it to Henry E. Abbey, then a prominent speculative manager, who, for a time, entertained the purpose of producing it at Booth's Theater, and even had a drop curtain painted, showing a flight of angels towards heaven, on Easter morning. Associated with him was John Stetson, who had been a circus man, and concerning whom O'Neill often told this story with great relish to St. Louis friends.

Stetson was making a list of the cast. O'Neill was named as Christus, and others were chosen for the various roles. Finally Stetson came to the Twelve Apostles.

"How many Apostles did they have at San Francisco?" he asked. "Twelve," was the reply. "And how many do they have over in that German town—what y' call it?" Why, 12, of course," was the answer. "Hell," exclaimed Stetson: "we're making this the biggest show in the world; let's have 40 Apostles."

But the costumes were destroyed by a fire at Abbey's New Theater, and press voiced disapproval, and Abbey seven hundred and once when the lawyer suddenly offered a trifle more. In each case Perry's spouse showed the degree of his uncertainty; he was eager to be married, and yet he dreaded to lose, in or quickly for Dorothea.

But in the course of his long absence from Ryhill he must have got a better perspective on the economic phases of the problem; at any rate, he eventually sent me a long letter, teeming with direct contradictions and false analogies and improbable conditions, and ended by leaving the matter entirely to my discretion. I was not by any means a happy circum-stance for me. Nevertheless, in a final attempt to learn just how Dorothea felt about it, I went to call on her one evening, not realizing very clearly how I could get at the realities of the case without playing traitor to Perry, but still resolved to do the best I could. I had received during the afternoon the best proposition yet, and I longed to take it, but somehow I couldn't bring myself to accept the burden of ac-countability, without at least the backing of ac-surgates. And I was glad now that Perry hadn't con-cluded in Dorothea, because if both of them had been compelled to wrestle with this particular contingency, they would have vacillated until doomsday, or until the Sherbrooke house grew uninhabitable from dry rot. It would be from Dorothea's very ignorance of the true state of affairs that I could hope to reach a def-inite conclusion chiefly for her individual benefit.

Dorothea, I was informed, would be downstairs di-rectly. Mr. Gardner was at the telephone and would also appear as soon as he conveniently could. So I sat listening involuntarily to the one-sided conversa-tion in the adjoining room, and by and by, when Mr. Gardner came in to welcome me, I was quite cheerful again.

"How's business?" he asked me casually.

"Not bad," I said. "You don't want to take that old Sherbrook place out of my hands, do you?"

"Not exactly," said Mr. Gardner, eyeing me with un-concealed suspicion. "I heard you'd bought it. But not much more than a bandbox. That's no invest-ment."

"I didn't know," I said, "but you might want it to give away, some time. I'll admit it isn't any palatial mansion, but it would certainly make a beautiful wed-ding gift."

He had a florid countenance and snapping black eyes and a fierce and bristling mustache, so that when he glared at me he was trebly impressive. "I dare say," said Mr. Gardner shortly, and for the next five minutes he hardly took his eyes off my youthful innocence which, if I do say it myself, was semi-professional.

He stayed only until Dorothea came down and he went away so crustily that Dorothea was abashed; but after I had repeated our dialogue to her she was woefully confused and indignant, and not at Mr. Gardner. "You shouldn't have said that," she declared. "You shouldn't!"

"But, my dear girl," I said, "it wasn't intended to start anything! It's natural enough, when people are engaged to—"

"That's just it!" she flashed. "He won't admit we're engaged!"

"Oh!" I said. "That's different!"

"He—he won't let us even be engaged until Perry's succeeded. I can't have a ring or—"

"or anything," she said, "or anything." She glanced about her, and stood up. "I can't talk about it in here. Let's go outdoors."

We went out under some superb trees not within range of the veranda, which harbored Mr. Gardner, and there we sat and talked of Perry and the Sher-brooke place, and Perry and manufacturing, and Perry and Ryhill in general, and Perry and fathers and sons, and Perry.

And as I listened to her, my decision slowly crystal-lized in her behalf, but to her worldly disadvantage. As I went under the spell of her adorable personality, and weighed two harrying sets of circumstances, it seemed to me that Perry ought not to wait. It wasn't because I doubted Dorothea's constancy, but because she was so ineffably sweet and ingenious and young, and the time for a man to marry a girl like that is when he can. Wait two years? Not for all the parents and paternal factories and suburban houses in Christen-dom! They could live in a tent, and make those two tasy which had bound them to the Sherbrooke place.

"Dorothea," I said, "Perry's badly worried about one thing; it's the same one we've gone over so often. He's spoken to me about it. I wish you'd make it clear, the next time you write to him, that you can be contented with him, even if he isn't able to give you notion that you won't be happy with him unless he can give you that. I know you've both been anxious to have it, but Perry's brooding about it. So I'm sim-ply whispering in your ear that you can relieve him immensely. Will you?"

She was perturbed, as I had intended her to be; and anxiety for Perry's welfare made her lovelier than before.

"He isn't really worried, is he?"

"Yes, he is."

"Oh!" she said. "I didn't know he took it so hard!"

"No—oh, no!" said Dorothea. "We were excited about it; but if I could I'd marry him and live in a garage."

"And if you say so to him," I interrupted, "you'll take a ton of lead off his heart."

"She must have written pretty specifically, for 10 days later I had a letter from Perry stating that he had finally seen the light, and that if I could effect a sale at any respectable profit I ought to do it."

The letter came as a humorous coincidence. It was put on my desk just after the door closed on the Ryhill lawyer; and it was put down squarely on top of the Sherbrooke place to the lawyer for $14,200. Acting on the authority previously given me, I had made the deal of my own accord. And it meant that in less than four months' time from the date of the ultimatum Perry had attained his quota, and Mr. Gardner hadn't a leg to stand on.

In reporting his accomplishment to Ryhill, Perry stated merely that he had made a very fortunate in-vestment, and his attitude was so independent that no-body questioned him too minutely, not even his own father. This reticence of his wasn't at all due to con-cel or to any lingering anger. He was too stricken with remorse, too sensitive of Dorothea's unwitting sacrifice, to be willing to talk about it. He had offset one ambition against another, and the lesser of the two had gone by the board.

"Just the same," he said to me disconsolately, "I feel stranded; I can't help it. The wedding's only six weeks away, and we've got to go house-hunting. I hadn't any idea I'd take it like this. Of course, in one sense it was the right thing to do, but every time I go past that house I get the jim-jams. Every time I go otha mentions it I feel like a cheap crook. We both he like troopers about it, and say we'll find something else that'll do as well; but it's sour grapes. The one thing I've got to be thankful about is that I kept it a secret."

The Gardners were awfully formal people, so that on a certain night that same week there was a formal dinner party to celebrate the announcement of an engagement which everyone in Ryhill already knew. There were the customary toasts and the customary re-sponses. And when, toward 9 o'clock, Mr. Gardner got to his feet, he had an air about him which gave prom-ise of a climax, and won him flattering attention.

As he glanced down the long table, he was actually stirred by genuine emotion; and as his eyes rested mo-mentarily on Dorothea I detected in them a spark of pride and benediction which strengthened me in a pri-vate belief I had, namely, that fathers are fathers sometimes. They can't help themselves. And whether it was a fundamental thrill, or merely the law of av-enges, something put a curiously mellow quality into Mr. Gardner's voice and made him cough once or twice before he began.

It was a delightfully banal speech he made to us, but it had sincerity behind it that couldn't be overlooked. He gave Perry a sort of official welcome to the family; he spoke of Perry in a chain of compliments which astonished all of us—Perry most of all.

"And now," said Mr. Gardner, thrusting his hand in his inside coat pocket, "one last word, and I am through. There is an ancient custom which in this country has fallen into disuse. On many grounds I ap-prove of it. As some of you know—" ahem! I never hide my approval, just as I never hide—" ahem! my disapproval. Therefore, as an evidence of my belief in this young man, and in place of the dowry which, as I have said, is a national institu-tion in many lands, I take pleasure in present-ing him, before you all, with this deed"—and Mr. Gardner produced it, held it aloft, gestured with it—

"This deed to the prop-erty known as the Sher-brooke place, as a home-stead for the family he will in time—"

He got no further, for the table was in an up-roar. Dorothea was clinging to Perry; Perry was staring at me with his mouth open; the rela-tives were applauding vo-ciferously and beaming at Perry and calling upon him for a speech in turn; and across from me a thin, aspidon man, who was Perry's father, was deliberately pushing back his chair.

"One moment!" said Perry's father, looking from me to Mr. Gardner and back again. "I claim the privilege of a parent also—be a my son, and there's not much wrong with him. I don't like to hurt anybody's feel-ings, but it seems to me that I'm entitled to some of that applause myself. It was my intention, once upon a time, to make a gift of that house to Dorothea." He looked at me, and back to Mr. Gardner. "In fact, I made an offer for it—two offers—three offers—"

"Great Scott!" exploded Mr. Gardner. "Were you the man who kept bidding it up on me?" His jaw dropped; a ripple of laughter ran around the table. Perry's eyes were burning through me.

"I dealt through a New York broker; I didn't want Perry here to think I was—"

"Well, I used Henry Kent!"

"Great Scott!" Perry's father motioned toward me, and laughed not unkindly. "Young man," he said, "I congratulate you! You must have been born under a lucky star! If either one of us had come out into the open, Gardner, if we'd talked this over together—"

"I—this is—it's the funniest thing!" He pointed his finger at his father. "Did you try to buy that place through a dummy?"

"That's what he turned out to be, Perry. He was a New York broker."

"And—and you?"

"Why, yes," said Mr. Gardner, still pallid. "Through a lawyer—Kent. I didn't want it to come out too soon; it was a surprise."

"Then you can't blame me very much, can you? You ally, I couldn't know—you see—"

"my investment, that one I told you about. I didn't want it known, either. I got it for Dorothea, and then I thought I ought to take a profit. I thought Kent bought it for himself—"

There was a moment of terrific silence, and a sud-den shout of laughter. Dorothea was fleeing inconfi-dently, Perry in pursuit.

"But—after that," said Dorothea, trembling with delight, "was it fair? Was it fair? Was it fair? When you knew—"

"Fair!" I said. "I should say it was! More than fair! Why I let him have it for fourteen thousand two hundred, didn't I? That was what Kent had offered me in the afternoon, and that was what I was con-sidering. And I heard Mr. Gardner tell Kent to bid up to fifteen thousand if he had to—the place was worth it!"

There was a little gasp from Dorothea, and I turned away. I hate to see any man, even Perry, kiss a nice girl—especially Dorothea—while I'm still a bachelor. From the dining room came gusts of laughter, and I distinctly caught both Mr. Gardner's bass and Mr. Max-well's infectious tenor. Father's are fathers, sometimes, and the verification wasn't in the least unpleasant.

And then Dorothea came over to me and touched my arm, while Perry watched us, unprotesting.

"I don't know a lot about business," she said breath-lessly, "and you fixed the—the option yourself; but aren't there always commissions—" thing?" And paid me royally, twice over, so that I didn't have to rehearse for the wedding ceremony.

And then we all went in, radiantly cheerful, to make our peace with two stern parents who couldn't possibly keep their faces straight when they looked at any of us.

La-may Face Powder is Guaranteed
Pure and Harmless.

Pure face powder cannot injure the most delicate baby skin. The trouble is, too many powders are made in the old-fashioned way, with rice powder. Rice powder is starchy, and, like bread-flour, it is quickly turned into a gluey paste by the moisture of the skin. This paste clogs the cuticle, swells in the pores, causing enlarged pores, blackheads and pimples. A specialist makes a harmless powder by using an ingredient doctors prescribe to heal the skin. Every time you apply this improved powder you give your complexion a real beauty treat-ment.

South Side Girl Prettiest in 100,000 Girls From All Over the United States

By MARGUERITE MARTYN.

WITHOUT leaving the threshold of her own home, an old-fashioned house, 127 King's Highway Park, just at the corner where the new driveway joins Broadway, a little South St. Louis girl entered a beauty contest against 100,000 other girls and was declared the prettiest of them all.

Such things are possible in these days of perfection in photography and competition of motion picture enterprises to enlist the fairest faces in the land.

But now Pauline Sandell, known to old schoolmates—not so very old—at the Lafayette School as Paula Becker, will no longer live in the old-fashioned house where she was born 18 years ago. She merely visits her mother, Mrs. M. Becker, there, as she has been doing this summer. For the theatrical world has claimed her. She departed for New York on Aug. 10, with "so many offers of engagements" that she will not know which to choose until she looks over the field and decides which will give her the "best opportunity."

The prize she won was offered by a magazine devoted to motion picture interests for the most beautiful facial portrait, and there were 100,000 entrants. It was not to be a money prize, but a promise of "fame and fortune." "Fame" was assured through the publication of many of the winner's portraits in the magazine; "Fortune," through assistance toward an engagement as a motion picture actress. The contest closed about a year ago, the notification that she had won first place coming to Pauline while she was rehearsing for last year's fashion show. She left this engagement to go to New York at the request and expense of the magazine. There she had a tryout in the movies, but joined a musical revue by preference, Raymond Hitchcock's "Hitchy Koo" of 1919, which closed at the American Theater here and left her free to spend a summer holiday with her mother.

A pretty face is a fortune in itself, the picture magazine seems to have assumed, but Pauline was not content to let the matter rest there. She entered another contest conducted by the Fox film company to determine the most beautifully formed girl, and won first prize in that competition, too. This prize was $100 and an engagement as a "bathing girl" in a coast company. The latter offer she rejected, because her sister did not approve of the role.

Nor is she content to rest her laurels with these two accomplishments. Actual contact with the beauty discloses that, in addition to what a photographic close-up shows, her wealth of hair is like spun gold, her coloring exquisitely blonde, that she has deep blue eyes, that she is 5 feet 1 inch tall and weighs 120 pounds. And a mental close-up, or at least a brief conversational close-up reveals—if ambition, thoughtfulness and purposefulness are indications—she has the makings of success inside her head as well as without.

She grew up much as other girls in the neighborhood, it seems, going to work in a downtown office when she had finished grammar school. But back in her head she steadily had nurtured a notion that one day she would go on the stage, a predilection inherent, no doubt, since an uncle, an aunt and an older sister have adopted this profession.

"Always I have been able to dance," she said, "and without training except such as my sister has given me. And always, in spite of the fact that my mother discouraged the idea, I have tried to develop myself with the view to becoming an actress. Never a night or morning that I haven't gone through gymnastic exercises, and I have taken advantage of every opportunity for outdoor sports to develop myself physically. I have practiced singing, and many roles that I have admired on the stage, and kept early hours and followed the directions of the beauty experts who write for the papers. Now I am ready to try and see what I can do. I don't know how I shall do with an important role, but at least I am ready to try to do what they tell me to."

She says all this demurely, without evidence of overweening self-confidence. In fact, a manner of extreme modesty, whether cultivated or not, is one of the attributes she will take to the ingenue roles she aspires to.

"I think my best opportunity will be in the pictures, because the most money is to be made there, and besides, I screen well," she remarked, and then added, naively: "Some people think I am very much better looking in my pictures than I am in real life."

Perhaps it is due to a sister's aggressive efforts, as well as tender solicitude in her behalf, that Pauline is able to preserve this air of maidenly modesty and

Is the American Eagle Doomed?

ALASKA BOUNTY LAW THREATENS OUR NATIONAL EMBLEM BIRD

By J. H. DAVIES,
American Museum of Natural History.

MUCH has been written in deprecation of the permitted extermination of the wild pigeon. Formerly found in almost incredible numbers in some parts of the United States, the species was utterly wiped out by unrestricted shooting and the destruction of its nests. And so rapid was the process of its extinction that the bird had vanished before the public realized its need of protection.

A similar fate now threatens the "American" or bald eagle—our national emblem and one of the most beautiful and magnificent of our native birds. And by a curious irony, the destruction is being accomplished at public expense, as provided in the bounty law passed by the Territorial Legislature of Alaska on April 30, 1917.

The bald eagle has never been an abundant species. Estimates of its numbers have generally been greatly exaggerated. It is only on the basis of the occupied nests that its real numbers—or rather its real scarcity—can be estimated. Computations based on observations of the birds themselves are obviously unreliable. For, conspicuous by its size and habits, and by its preference for coast regions and large rivers over remote forests and mountains, it is very apt to attract considerable attention, and the same individuals are doubtless seen again and again. This will be realized in consideration of the bird's natural longevity and strong powers of flight, which make it possible for a single individual to be seen repeatedly over a period of many years and in widely separated places.

Up to the present time, the only region where the bald eagle has maintained encouraging numbers has been the coastal region and large river valleys of Alaska. Here it did breed in numbers surprisingly large for a bird of its size. But the Alaskan bounty law, which provides for the payment of 50 cents for each eagle destroyed, although it went into effect only on April 30, 1917, had already, by April 10, 1919, resulted in the killing of 5600 eagles. Moreover, the bounty seekers have undoubtedly not confined their depredations to Alaskan territory, but have extended them into the British provinces joining Alaska, in order to swell their gains. It is possible that by this time more than one-half—perhaps more than three-quarters—of the entire species have already been sacrificed. If action is to be taken, it must be at once. For protection, to be effective, must come not merely before the species has been annihilated but before it has been so reduced as to suffer the weakening effect of inbreeding or the failure of the scattered individuals to find each other and raise young.

In view of all that is known by naturalists of the habits of this inoffensive bird, the hostility to the eagle in Alaska is based rather on misinformation and ignorant prejudice than on any real damage done by the birds. The tales of its ferocity and destructiveness to game or domestic animals are for the greater part pure fiction, for the rest, usually gross exaggerations. Moreover, it is the demonstrated policy of the United States Department of Agriculture—wise from experience—to discountenance bounty laws for the extermination of birds of prey. Much money is spent each year in the control of harmful rodents, whose increase is favored by the destruction of such birds. For the "American" eagle there is the added plea of its patriotic significance. And, finally, as it is a migratory bird, the right to destroy it cannot be claimed by any state or territory. Like most of our other migratory birds, it should be protected by the Federal Government—particularly as the effect of the protective laws adopted for its preservation in most of our states is being annulled by the action of a single Territory.

The general indifference to the fate of the great bird of splendid tradition is due, beyond doubt, to the common lack of information regarding its threatened extinction. The situation calls for publicity of the widest. The sheer vandalism of the destruction of the bird should be checked, and checked at once. The crusade for its protection should enlist the enthusiasm and sincere effort of bird lovers and bird students throughout the country, of our scientific and patriotic societies and the public press. It is only by the prompt passage of a Federal law protecting the American eagle that our national bird can be saved from extinction.

Incidents in Career of James O'Neill

abandoned the project. The indomitable Morse rented a house—later Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theater—named it Salmi Morse's Temple, and made efforts to put on his play there. This brought him before the New York Supreme Court, which blocked his endeavors with an injunction. On Feb. 28, 1884, the unfortunate playwright met death by drowning, in the Hudson River, near Harlem, and was thought to have committed suicide.

In the meantime, during 1883, O'Neill made his first appearance as Edmond Dantes at Booth's Theater in New York, under the management of John Stetson. The death of Charles P. Thorne, who had played the part, opened up the way for O'Neill, who made the title of the Count of Monte Cristo almost synonymous with his own name. Finally, the role came to hang about his neck like an Old Man of the Sea, of whom he could not rid himself. The public would not permit him to assume any other role, although he made many attempts to break away, notably in his D'Artagnan in "The Three Musketeers," which he first undertook in 1898.

Too Many Inventions

For a week or two he abstained from experiments, and we began to hope that he had reformed. But you cannot curb genius.

When sufficient pennies had been saved to purchase the necessary supplies he along a wireless aerial from the elm tree to the roof tree, and began taking messages through a telephone receiver he had borrowed from a boy whose father was a lineman.

This seemed a harmless enough amusement and we did not interfere with it. But he presently wearied of trying to decipher other people's messages, and decided to send his own views forth into the world.

To do this it was necessary to have current. He had no generator to make this current, but he knew where to find it.

A trolley runs in front of the house, with a heavy overhead copper wire, over which hangs a bough of the elm tree.

The child, apparently not wishing to alarm us by climbing the tree while we were watching, waited till we were from home to make his arrangements.

Connecting one end of the wire with his sending apparatus he ascended the elm, taking the other end with him.

Then weighting the wire with a stone, he dropped it across the trolley feeder.

Unhappily, the slack end of it lay over the telephone and lighting wires.

Inside the house there was a series of flashes which sent the cook shrieking into the front yard. And when we got home there were neither lights nor telephone.

That was two weeks ago. This afternoon the child came home from school, brimming with excitement.

"Gee!" he said. "There's an army officer coming to the school tomorrow to give us a lecture on high explosives and how they are made. If you'd just give me a little money for the stuff, I'll bet I could make them myself right here."

"I'll bet you could, too," I said, "but you aren't going to."

Ingenuousness. Nan Sandell, while Paula, 7 years her junior, has been developing her good looks, her voice, her dancing, her acting, has been in vaudeville a number of years, and not the least of her ambitions has been toward engineering a career for the younger beauty of the family. Sandell is Nan's married name. A "sister act" into which she introduced Pauline on a limited vaudeville circuit, making a debut at the Princess Theater several seasons ago, seemed to require that both take the same name. Without Nan's advice and interference at psychological moments, Pauline might have had to accept the first opportunity that offered, as in the case of the "bathing girl" role. Certainly she would not have been able to be so "choosy" about the engagement she will accept this winter, if it were not for Nan's capable looking out for her interests.

"My sister never lets me out of her sight," said Pauline. "I am as well chaperoned when with her as if my own mother were along. She has been in New York all summer lining up engagements for me. Now she keeps telegraphing me to hurry along. So I have only to go and look over the field, decide which offer will give me the best opportunity, and take my choice."

Rheumatism

A Remarkable Home Treatment

Given by One Who Had It

In the Spring of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years: I tried remedy after remedy, and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally, I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bedridden with rheumatism, some of them 70 to 80 years old, and results were the same as in my own case.

I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent, simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. After you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long looked-for means of getting rid of your rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today.

A Ounce of Preventions Is Worth a Pt. of Hootch

TO THE EDITOR:
M. Ira S. Fisher has just wrote me a letter witch reads in parts:
"Dear sir, please tell me how to keep the face and relative parts straight for 2 or 3 days after a mans elbow crazy bone has ran up vs. something. I am also troubled through the day with a high forehead witch goes so far back that the rear collar button is beginning to make welts on it. And I caught the freckles from somebody whose address I don't know where he lives, or I would send them back to him as they are not the size I ordered, but what way can I get rid of them painlessly? Also I use to think I had a hawk bill mouth but since I spilt my teeth I find that the lower jaw is the one that is Jimbered and I aint shut my mouth close up since April several yrs. ago. Also kindly tell me the way to avoid other disease peculiar to this time of yr."

I reprint Mr. Fisher's letter for 2 reasons. In the 1st. place it come from a town name Moscow Mills, Missouri, and I thought it would be of interest to your readers to know they was such a joint, and I also got a warm spot in my heart for old Mo. on acct. of it giving me my 1.2 vote for the democratic presidents chair. In the 2d. place the diseases the bird mentions is so common at this time of yr. and I made a study of them and some others and how to avoid them or get over them after you got them that maybe it might be a godsend was I to print what I know. To begin with a oz. of preventions is worth a pt. of hootch, witch is going some at the present market. It is easy enough to prevent a attack of freckles, but it costs money to get rid of them. In order to not get them a person has got to remember three things:

- (1) Keep away from people that has got the disease.
- (2) Don't never go out in the sun.
- (3) If you got to go out in the sun like playing golf for inst. keep a golf bag or burlap sack over the face and ears and bound securely around the Adams apple. If the freckles comes on you in spite of precautions however, the surest and safest way of riddance is to go to the nearest hardware store and buy a pair of pliers or forceps and apply them to the roots of the trouble, always remembering to only try for 1 freckle at a time, no matter how close together they lay. You can't pull out freckles in pairs or quantity lots without injury to the intervening cutis.

It is a harder matter for a man to keep his face straight after their elbow crazy bone has hit something. It seems like a person must giggle. The prevention for this summer disease is to either wear football pads on the elbows or else to never go out without keeping the elbows planted firmly on the thighs. But if the worst happens and the elbow crazy bone does happen to come in contact with some hard substance the bone should be sent to a private sanitarium for a few days rest. The day-time high forehead can be avoided by not associating with people with the same troubles. In other words, don't hobnob with bald nob. If you do get it, try the Elwell method. Big Chief sits on his toupee cheering braves to victory.

The Jimber-jaw, as I take it, is a kin to the lantern jaw and can be prevented by keeping the wicks trimmed. When the disease is once caught the best cure is to go up to Jack Dempsey and call him a bad name. The easiest way to get your mouth shut close up is to marry a lady that keeps saying shut your mouth till you begin to believe it.

The other most important diseases peculiar to this time of yr. is sunburn, hydrophobia, hair lip and mosquito bites.

The preventive for sunburn is buy a photograph gallery and spend the mo. of August in the dark rm. Sunburn however is not without its compensations. For inst. they're no more enjoyable pastime in the world than about the 3d. day of a good sunburn when a person begins to peel and can scrape off the outer skin, known to we medical men as the epidemic. If a bird can get sunburned often enough and peel often enough, you can find out what is under the skin.

The approve method for keeping void of hydrophobia is to not drink no water but rely on ginger ale for a chaser and also stay away from people and dogs that froth and all other kinds of froth. Its easier to keep away from froth this yr. than ever before. A person that has accumulated the hydrophobia can get rid of it by biteing his-children or if he hasn't none,

Hair lip is prevented by getting a 25 ct. shave, and the cure consists of parting it in the middle or training it into a pompadour. A pompadour hair lip is the same as no hair lip you might say.

They's practically no excuse for a man getting mosquito bites. All you half to do is keep away from mosquitos, but if a man hasn't got strenth of character enough to do the same and gets himself bit, why the results can be eliminted by the generous use of sand paper or a new razor blade.

When the fall season comes on I will try and remember to give your readers some of the preventions and cures of diseases peculiar to the fall season witch is even more dangerous.

TOO MANY INVENTIONS

By James J. Montague

HERBERT SPENCER says somewhere that the natural tendencies of a child should be encouraged. If the child develops a taste for drawing, he should be given pencil and paper and permitted to draw whatever he likes.

If he is musically inclined, he should be provided with a piano or an accordion or a saxophone, and his musical nature permitted to take its course.

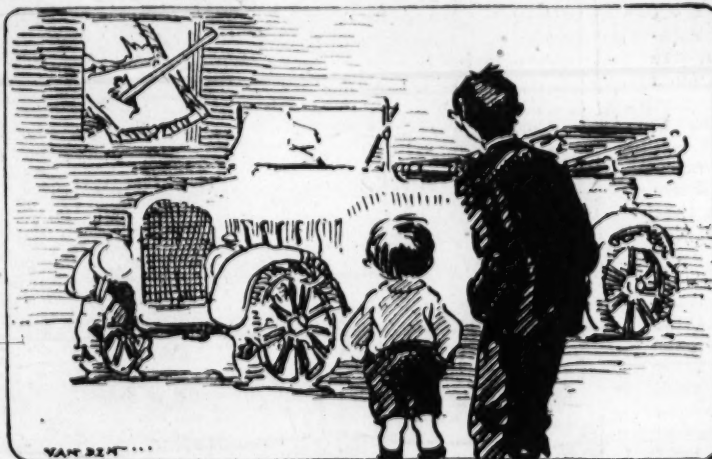

And if he shows an aptitude for mechanics, opportunity for experiment should be thrown in his way.

I don't know whether Herbert Spencer ever had a child or not, or whether, if he did have a child, it showed, in its adolescence, any aptitudes. If such was the fact and the philosopher practiced his own philosophy, I can understand why the later years of his life were touched with profound melancholy. In our case it was aptitude for mechanics that we encouraged.

The child had it—a lot of it. At the tender age of 10 he discovered by experimentation that a vacuum cleaner could be run backwards.

We didn't exactly throw the vacuum cleaner in his way. But there are times when parents are absent from home, and it was in these times that he made his discovery.

Having made it, he proceeded to figure out how it could be put to practical use. That is the way of genius. It is never content with mere invention. Unless the invention can be made of value to humanity, genius doesn't waste any more time on it.

Four tires, torn asunder as by some mighty explosion, hung in ribbons about the wheels of the car.

Contemplating the reversal of form he had compelled the vacuum cleaner to show, the child reasoned that if it formerly could take air out of things, it could now put air into things. Here lay its future value to the world.

cleaner disappeared from the hall closet.

It was spirited away early in the morning, while the family was at breakfast. There is an electric wire in the garage, for lighting purposes, and the current served nicely to drive the motor in the former renovating apparatus.

By means of sections of small hose, borrowed from a bathroom spray, it was connected with the automobile tires—all four of them.

Then the child, after turning on the current, and observing that the machine was functioning properly, came in to his breakfast.

He was calmly disposing of his cereal when we heard the sound of heavy firing proceeding apparently from the garage.

"Geel!" said the child, who was far less disturbed by the barrage than the rest of us, "I didn't think she'd work as fast as that."

She had worked not only fast, but effectively. Four tires, torn asunder as by some mighty explosion, hung in ribbons about the wheels of the car. The vacuum cleaner itself had been blown through one of the windows, taking the sash along as it went. The car had apparently been lifted several feet in the air and had come heavily down again, sustaining internal injuries from which it can never fully recover.

The inventor affected to be dismayed at the success of his experiment, but one could see that secretly he was deeply pleased, even when a partially adequate penalty was imposed. (Continued on Page 14.)

AS A WOMAN THINKETH

By HELEN ROWLAND.

TO HAVE—or not to have?
That is the vital question of every woman's life!
To have a HOME—
And to worry about the servant problem and the meals, and the housecleaning, and the laundry, and the price of food, and the plumbing and the moths, and the rugs and the garden and the screens,
Or to live in a hotel, and perish of ennui and boredom and discomfort?
To have a CAREER, fame, success—
And to dwell forever in the limelight, to be the target of gossip and envy and a mote in the public's eye; never to be able to do anything you want to do, or to step out of your "role," for an instant,
Or to be unnoticed and obscure, and to dwell forever in the shadow and the background, watching the parade go by?
To have BEAUTY—
And to spend your life battling with Time, struggling against inexorable Fate—and Fat! dieting, banting, dressing—and dreading the first gray hair,
Or to be plain and homely, and to spend your life longing vainly for flowers and tributes and the light of admiration in men's eyes?
To possess a TALENT, a spark of the divine fire—
And to be goaded to work forever, day after day, by the whip of conscience; driven like a dray horse by the remorseless spur of the creative instinct and the relentless cosmic urge,

To have beauty—and to spend your life struggling with fate—and fat.

Or to be dull and commonplace, and totally uninteresting, and to take life easily and comfortably?
To have RICHES—
And to lie awake nights, worrying about your stocks and bonds and diamonds and motor cars and tire troubles,
Or to be poor, and lie awake nights worrying about your bills and the price of gasoline?

Above all, to have a HUSBAND—
And to have to stay in town all summer to be with him, or to go away all summer and worry about him; to be anxious and unhappy if he is lonely without you, and suspicious and miserable if he isn't; to have to get up mornings when HE gets up, to eat when HE is hungry, to play when HE is merry and to be happy your whole life long in HIS way.

Or to be a Spinster, and live in cold comfort and loneliness, with Life as empty as a campaign speech, as dull as a political meeting and as useless as one glove or a knitting needle without a mate?

Heigho! How can a woman be happy, anyway?

Because every woman wants EVERYTHING—until she gets it!

And then she wants something else.
And every blessed thing she gets is just one more thing to worry about.

And if she hasn't a thing in the world to worry about—well, then she worries about THAT!

And, if she has everything in the world to worry about,

There are days and days,
When she wishes with her whole heart that she didn't possess a solitary thing on earth, Except her bathing suit and her toothbrush!

And yet men sometimes spend their whole lives Trying to make a woman HAPPY!

It can't be done!

I'm a woman—and I KNOW!

Early Business Men Observed Golden Rule

in those days, more like the noble red men of the Leatherstocking Tales than one usually sees now. Their way of making themselves known was to tap themselves on the chest and at the same time pronounce the name. One day John Matthews was walking along the street with a really impressive-looking Indian, when the savage stopped, tapped himself on the chest and said, solemnly, "Black Hawk."

It was the famous chief, born at Kaskaskia, across the river from St. Louis in 1767, who led the Sacs and Foxes in their revolt of 1832, sometimes called "Black Hawk's War." At the time of this incident the chief was an old man, for he died in Iowa, Oct. 3, 1838, in his seventy-first year. Young Matthews did not take to his heels when he heard the name, but he never forgot the meeting.

Afterwards, St. Francisville was visited by a band of Sacs and Foxes from Iowa Territory, sometimes known as "the half-breed tract," and one of the squaws was said on fairly good authority to be the widow of Chief Keokuk.

One incident of those boyhood days which Matthews recalls with pleasure occurred a little later, when he was on the farm of his father, John Matthews Jr., about five miles west of Hannibal. This was his delivering a load of cordwood at the Clemens home in Hannibal, where "Mark Twain" of the future was then a small, and no doubt pretty devilish, boy. Matthews had no youthful acquaintance with Clemens, but afterwards knew one of the humorist's sisters very well.

Another reminiscence which has a strange sound in this year of 1920 is that of attending an auction sale in Bowling Green, following the death of "Rocky" McPike, and buying one of the McPike slaves. This was a boy named "Jack," for whom Matthews paid $750, and then, without handcuffs or even a weapon, the young buyer took the slave back to the Matthews farm.

In 1849 came the "gold rush" to California, and Matthews was among the earliest of the '49ers. The party consisted of John J. Holliday, Samuel N. Holliday, Thomas Cleaver, Will Cleaver and Matthews. Starting in March and traveling overland, they reached the gold district in August, and there the party separated, the Cleavers going to the vicinity of Sacramento, while the others staked out claims on the American fork of the Sacramento River, about 25 miles from San Francisco. Thomas Cleaver, who had brought along a colored boy, agreed that one-third of the boy's earnings should go to each of his companions.

At the end of six weeks, when the breaking of a dam compelled them to cease operations, Matthews' share of the profits amounted to $2500. Thereafter Matthews was connected with a shipping and trading company in San Francisco, first as employee, then as partner, but the company went bankrupt and he started back for Missouri.

Coming to St. Louis in August, 1851, Matthews established a retail drug store at Third and Market streets. His brothers, William H. and John L., already were in the same line of business at Third and Green streets and at Fourth and Franklin avenue.

It was a time when the public put its faith in a few well-tried drugs, such as quinine, calomel and blue mass, and in a vast variety of patent medicines, some of which contained a large proportion of alcohol and most of which, says Matthews, "were made with a liberal percentage of printers' ink." Among the favorites of the day which were manufactured in St. Louis were "Bragg's Mustang Liniment" and "McLain's Volcanic Oil Liniment."

In 1854 the business became a wholesale one, under the style of Matthews, Levering & Co. (the partner being Charles W. Levering) and occupied premises on Washington between Main and Second streets. In 1858 it became J. Matthews & Sons, in 1861 J. Matthews' Sons and in 1865 the business was sold to the Meyer Bros. Drug Co.

Matthews did not engage in business again until 1870, when he entered the brokerage business with the late Gen. A. G. Edwards, then United States Assistant Treasurer at St. Louis. Meanwhile Edwards Whitaker, a cousin of the General, had been admitted to the firm, and later the firm became Matthews & Whitaker. In 1888 Matthews retired from the business, which for many years has been Whitaker & Co.

With a smile Matthews says that he "never enjoyed a salary but for a few months, when in San Francisco," as during practically all of his long life he has been in business for himself.

In 1886 he took an interesting cruise upon the U. S. S. Brooklyn, which searched the Caribbean Sea for three filibustering vessels which had been fitted out by an ex-President of Honduras and which were thought to be planning an expedition against that country. They never caught sight of the vessels, but during the voyage touched at Colon and saw Ferdinand de Lesseps, whose attempt to dig a canal across the isthmus had not yet collapsed, although to visitors the subsequent failure even then appeared to be inevitable.

Notwithstanding his age, Matthews retains his keen interest in current events and particularly in the economic problems now vexing the whole world. Although he always has belonged to what Socialists call the "capitalistic class," he declares labor has reason for its dissatisfaction, and that a new order of distribution must come about before contentment and peace return to the business world.

One of his basic beliefs is that "labor is not a commodity," but he criticizes Samuel Gompers for what he calls the attempts by Gompers to secure "class legislation," and declares that the most urgent need of organized labor, as for many years past, is intelligent and able leadership. And he believes that the chief cause of the high cost of living, and of the dissatisfaction among workers, is the excessive profits being made by firms and individuals in numerous lines of business.

Although in his ninety-second year, Matthews swings a wicked hoe in his garden and does not use that fatiguing tool for leaning purposes.

Matthews is a trustee of the Missouri Botanical Garden, of the Martha Parsons Hospital for Children, and belongs to the Washington University Association and to the Missouri Historical Society.

Mrs. Matthews died in November, 1918. The late Mrs. Percy Werner was one of the children. The other children are as follows: Mrs. Robert L. Morton, Webster Groves; Mrs. Belle Spottswood Norvell, Larchmont, N. Y.; William N. Matthews, St. Louis; Edmund Orville Matthews, El Paso, Tex.; Leonard Matthews Jr., St. Louis; Lucy Matthews Chambers, Joplin, and Claude Levering Matthews, St. Louis.

A Ounce of Preventions Is Worth a Pt. of Hooch

Aged St. Louisan Says Early Business Men Had Less Science but Observed Golden Rule

When Leonard Matthews opened up his retail drug store at Third and Market Streets, almost 70 years ago, competitors used to accomodate each other with loans, by exchanging checks—The credit rule on merchandise was six months without interest

BUSINESS ethics were better in "the good old days" than they are now, according to Leonard Matthews, former merchant and broker of St. Louis, who will be 92 years old next December. He declares that the easygoing merchants of that former era knew little about the science of competition, but that they were on much more familiar terms with the Golden Rule than business men today. The profiteer made his appearance now and then, even in those halcyon days, but his operations were on a much smaller scale, and it was easier to foil him than it is now.

Sitting on the porch of his old-fashioned brick residence at 5447 Cabanne avenue, Matthews discussed some of the interesting points of the business world before the Civil War. He himself, after going to California in the gold rush of 1849, returned to St. Louis and in August, 1851, opened up a retail drug store at Third and Market streets. He continued in that business, at several locations, until 1865, when the store, by that time a wholesale concern, was sold to the Meyer Bros. Drug Co.

"Most of the goods we handled were purchased and sold on six months' time, without interest," he said. "At that time, banking facilities were very poor and it was a common practice among us, when we needed some cash, to ask a neighbor or a competitor if he 'had anything over in the bank.'"

"If he did have some money there he would ask how much you wanted and then we would exchange checks, the borrower dating his ahead a few days. I do not believe there is much borrowing between business competitors nowadays."

"We made only a small profit, or none at all, on such staple articles as white lead, linseed oil, quinine, alcohol and a few other items, for some of which we had to pay cash and required cash for them. As a rule the country merchants cared little about prices except on staple articles, as they usually sold for twice the figure they paid, and the higher the price the larger their profit."

"I regret to say that ethics in the business world today do not compare favorably with those of the time when I was just starting in business. I will tell you about an instance of scrupulous honor which was not unusual then, but, I fear, too infrequent now."

"During the placer gold-mining excitement, quicksilver was in great demand and advanced from 75 cents a pound to $1.25 in a very few days. We ordered 100 flasks from the firm of Powers & Weightman, asking at the same time 'if they thought it would decline shortly.'"

"They immediately shipped the quicksilver, charging us $1.25 a pound. Some time afterward it declined to 75 cents a pound, when the firm sent us a corrected bill, crediting us with 50 cents a pound on 700 pounds, or the sum of $350, stating that when they received our order they did think the price would decline, but were in such a situation that they could not express their views."

"Therefore they made the correction in charging us, although in the meanwhile we had sold all the quicksilver, making our profit on the cost of $1.25. No doubt there are houses now who would do the same thing under the same conditions. But I fear that there are not so many such houses as there were in the old days. 'I will give you a few instances of how business was done. An Eastern manufacturer of white lead asked us to submit samples of the different brands of white lead ground in oil which we handled. They said they would analyze the samples and furnish us with the same quantities, packed in similar kegs, but without a brand, so we could have our own brands put on the kegs, and at such a figure that we could sell at the same prices which we had been paying, and yet make a profit of 25 per cent. They did just what they had proposed, and ultimately we obtained heavy discounts from the local white lead manufacturers."

"Another instance: The glass manufacturers of Pittsburg had been making enormous profits. A firm in Brussels offered to deliver in our warehouse as good window glass as we were getting from Pittsburg, and on a basis which would enable us to sell at Pittsburg prices and make a profit of 25 per cent."

"This they did, and our fast consignment from overseas, consisting of 1800 boxes of large and small sizes, arrived in New Orleans just as the Confederates captured the Custom House, but the boat with our chickens were not considered fit to eat. Potatoes were 25 cents a bushel, wheat 35 to 50 cents, corn 15 cents and whisky 12 to 15 cents a gallon.

"Most people spun and wove the materials for their own wearing apparel, and yet those girls were just as pretty then as now; at least it seemed so to me!"

"The slaves generally loved their masters and many became fashion leaders in our cities. They bragged on their families. Most of them were happier than their descendants now. The Golden Rule was generally practiced in business to a much greater degree than at present."

Much the same condition as to rents and prices prevailed in St. Louis during the Civil War period as now, according to Matthews, who said that in 1864 he sold quinine at wholesale for $10 an ounce, as compared with $3 to $4 an ounce a few years before, while a final price of $25 an ounce was confidently predicted. Since those days, it has sold as low as 14 cents an ounce. The present jobbing price is around $1.30 an ounce.

In 1861 he rented a business building at the northwest corner of Second and Locust street for $1800 a year. In 1862 the rent was raised to $2500 a year, and in 1863 to $4000 a year. In 1864 the business moved into other quarters rather than to pay the next increase demanded, which was to $7000 a year, but the premises found a renter at the latter figure.

House rents also advanced steadily, but the situation was mixed and some curious inequalities resulted. For example, Matthews tells of renting a house in what was called Dorris row, these residences being on the north side of Olive street and the row extending west from Eleventh street. Some of the neighbors in the row were paying $1500 a year rent, but Matthews only paid $450. He says there were other cases of families occupying premises identical as to size and conveniences and sometimes even side by side, and paying rentals fully as dissimilar as the case just cited.

Matthews was born in Baltimore, Md., on Dec. 17,

1828, and lived there until he was 10 years old. Night watchmen still walked their rounds in Baltimore, and cried the hour. He remembers well hearing such cries as "Eleven o'clock and a star-light night!" or "Past 2 o'clock and a cloudy morning!"

One of the watchmen was a certain Fogleman, who had been one of Napoleon's bodyguard, and who sometimes would unbend enough to tell the awed schoolboys some anecdote of the great Emperor, who had died in 1821.

Another vivid memory Matthews has is of a certain John Gredonne at Baltimore, who was "a boy 40 years old" and played marbles with the other boys. Gredonne used to pick up cigar butts around the hotels, for his own smoking, and it was a favorite diversion to ask Gredonne how the times were.

"They're bad," he would say. "The cigar butts are short." Or he would answer: "They're fine; the cigar butts now are long." As Matthews grew older, he wondered if there wasn't some truth in this unique way of measuring general prosperity.

In 1838, when he was 10 years old, Matthews made the trip from Baltimore to St. Louis, traveling as far as Frederick, Md., by railroad, of the early type, in which strap iron was fastened to wooden girders for rails, crossed the Allegheny Mountains and proceeding to Wheeling, W. Va., by stage; and at Wheeling went aboard the steamer West Wind for St. Louis. The time from Baltimore to St. Louis was two weeks.

In such numbers were steamboats tied up along the St. Louis waterfront when they landed that they had to walk across two other vessels on their way ashore from the West Wind.

An older brother, John L. Matthews, had come to Missouri the year before and was in a store at St. Francisville, Clarke County, which was owned by his father and his brothers-in-law, Franklin Levering and Aaron R. Levering of Bowling Green. The younger Matthews did not remain long in St. Louis at that time, but continued his journey to St. Francisville. A good many Indians still roamed through Missouri armistice. Nevertheless, on Oct. 21, 1918, Zsatkovitch, as a representative of the American National Council of Utho-Rusins, was granted an audience with the President, and presented their memorandum to him. President Wilson listened with sympathy and understanding. He did not think it would be feasible to secure complete independence for this diminutive country; but he promised to aid in securing autonomy for them. Meanwhile, it was suggested that they become affiliated with the mid-European Union, made up of the small countries which were striving for their independence. Thomas G. Masaryk, now President of the Czechoslovak republic, was then head of that union.

Three days after the conference with President Wilson the Utho-Rusins were admitted to the union, and the first step in their struggle for freedom had been taken.

After the signing of the armistice, the Utho-Rusins in this country too, a plebiscite for them to be as a nation, since it was impossible for them to be completely independent. It is an interesting commentary on the strangely composite character of their race to note the result. Seven hundred and thirty-two voted for union with the Czechs, 310 for the Utho-Rusins, 27 for total independence, 13 for Carpatho-Russia, 10 for Russia, 9 for the Magyars and 1 for Galicia. The result was definitive.

With Gardos, the President of the Utho-Rusin Union, Zsatkovitch set out early in 1919 for the peace conference. There, it is said, he met representatives of the Hungarian section of his race, and worked in complete sympathy with them in presenting his problem at the Versailles tables.

The Rusins were freed from Hungary! They were to become a part of the republic of Czechoslovakia, which made for their autonomy. Zsatkovitch was chosen to take the glad news to them.

The journey proved a wild one. Uzhorod, the picturesque capital of Podkarpatska Rusin, is located at the very edge of the country. It was necessary to travel through Slovakia by motor. The machine in which Zsatkovitch was driving was mistaken one night for that in which some Hungarians were attempting to escape. Bullets rained on it. The car was badly damaged. Zsatkovitch fortunately escaped, and after explanations proceeded on his way to Uzhorod.

In the mountain capital the young American did not find peaceful flag-bung streets to welcome him. That night he slipped quietly into town, found a cousin he had not seen for 30 years, and spent the night in a 300-year old castle, renewing acquaintance. In the morning further complications arose. On either side of the Ung River opposing armies were encamped—the Czechs and the Bolsheviks. Fighting, however, had ceased; and after Zsatkovitch had displayed his documents proving the freedom of the Utho-Rusins, even the most doubting of the citizens believed and rejoiced.

The natives of Uzhorod listened with admiration to the clear exposition of republican government made by the young lawyer. They had never had rulers among their own kind, because the Hungarians had seized the offices and dominated the country for centuries.

Adult Ailments

THAT many of the diseases of adult life are the direct result of faulty habits of diet acquired in childhood, was the theme of an address before the American Medical Association at its recent annual meeting, delivered by Dr. C. Hilton Rice Jr. of Montgomery, Ala.

"In its first year," said Dr. Rice, "the well-fed, rapidly developing baby gets no nourishment except from the breast or bottle. His diet is well balanced and he shows all the enviable characteristics of physical and mental equilibrium. In the second year he comes into possession of language, of his locomotive mechanism and of the strong desire to taste everything in his immediate environment. Then comes the anxious question, What may the baby eat? If parental discipline is strong, all may be well; but if the entire household bows down in idolatrous obedience to every whim of his adventurous palate, the baby comes more and more to satisfy his hunger with those foods that taste best, and so his dietary habits are formed, ranging from mild dislikes for essential foods to alarming perversions.

"Many times I have seen scrawny, anemic, irritable children who possess the red blood and vigor of health are those who eat a variety of foods, and all of them are fond of green vegetables."

that their problem now is one of humanity rather than government. They must alleviate hunger before they can preach self-government. Mrs. Zsatkovitch has endeared herself to the women and children of her husband's distressed land by her untiring efforts for their relief. Gov. Zsatkovitch himself is working night and day to surmount the seemingly impossible obstacles that confront him.

One out of every four of the Utho-Rusins cannot read or write.

Imagine preparing such a people to exercise the right to vote! It is only in the foothill towns that there have been any schools and the great proportion of the Rusins live in the isolated mountains. An educational system must be introduced. Must they wait for this in order to hold an election?

No, an election will soon be held, and the Governor has solved his problem in a characteristically American way. No writing will be necessary, for the photograph of each candidate will be run on the ballot, and a cross marked beside a picture will designate the vote.

Some of "Jerry's" friends wonder why he is almost bankrupting himself by mixing in the strange affairs of his stranger country. Those who know him better do not ask questions. They know the grim determination, the love of surmounting obstacles and the intense patriotism that inspire him. In the months ahead there is more work than romance awaiting him; but he will see his task through, rescue his people, and then will return to Pittsburg and resume his practice.

The salary as Governor of Podkarpatska Rusin is less than a hundred dollars a month—not a princely stipend! Were it not for the money he had saved while practicing law he would have been forced to give up his efforts for his country long ago. There is little money and little glory for the ambitious young Pittsburger from his efforts among the lonely Carpathians. The only reward for him will be the satisfaction that he has made his own people happier by aiding them to institute a democratic form of government and by attempting to rescue them from starvation and poverty.

This is an unusual man placed in an unusual position. That he is appreciated is evident by the fact that Rusins recently arriving in this country have nothing but praise for him.

"Things have taken a turn for the better since Gov. Zsatkovitch has taken affairs into his hands," declared one of them when asked how conditions were in the newly organized Carpathian state. "We have confidence in the young American. True, there is much suffering from the lack of food and clothing, but the conditions in our state are better than they are in Rumania, Poland, Galicia and the other districts which have been similarly affected. The real distress now is in the mountain districts, and the lack of transportation facilities has hampered Gov. Zsatkovitch in furnishing aid to these unfortunate people."

Americans will watch with fascination this curious experiment of a Pittsburg boy molding a European state. It is said that in his present work on the Continent of Podkarpatska Rusin he is using that of the State of Pennsylvania as a model. A far jump that, from our Quaker forefathers to the primitive natives of a Slav state!

good percentage of such cases, that nothing short of complete and permanent removal from home environment and influence will effect a cure. And we know that some of these patients do well for a time, or as long as maternal discipline obtains, and then gradually lapse into their old habits of diet."

Dr. Rice said he found that the great majority of middle-aged sufferers from indigestion, constipation, anemia, etc., had for years eaten few green vegetables, milk, eggs and fresh meats, but lived on potatoes, cereals, bread, syrup and similar foods.

He said, however, that perfectly healthy, active, red-blooded children seem to be able to while away the between-meal hours with ice-cream cones and all-day suckers without impairing their appetites for essential foods, but generally "the eating of sweets between meals destroyed the appetite for all food, except sweets and starches."

Dr. Rice emphasized the fact that all adults and children who possess the red blood and vigor of health are those who eat a variety of foods, and all of them are fond of green vegetables.

IN WALTZ-RULED VIENNA

The carefree Austrian capital, running true to form, may be "doomed," but the Viennese are more interested in "The Blue Mazurka" than in the Treaty of Versailles—and they will not go to perdition on empty stomachs :: :: ::

By KARL K. KITCHEN.

IT IS not yet 8 o'clock, but every seat in the Theater an der Wien is filled. For evening performances in the playhouses of Vienna begin before the majority of New Yorkers even think of dressing for dinner.

The huge audience is plainly expectant, despite its rustling of programs and occasional coughs from croupy individuals. It is apparent that it has assembled for an important occasion.

A little commotion at one end of the orchestra pit attracts everyone's attention. A moment later a figure in evening dress is seen pushing through the musicians to the conductor's chair.

The audience bursts into wild applause. For fully a minute the noise is deafening and it is not until the new arrival in the orchestra pit turns and bows several times to the boxes and gallery that it ceases. The pause that follows lasts but an instant.

There is a sharp rap on the conductor's desk, and as the lights of the auditorium suddenly grow dim the curtain rises to a burst of melody. The first act of "Die Blaue Mazur" has begun.

It is not difficult for the reader to guess that the recipient of this ovation is a celebrated composer. But to end the suspense I will give his name without any further perambulation.

It is Franz Lehar, the waltz king.

There are several reasons why Franz Lehar receives an ovation every evening when he takes his place at the conductor's desk at the Theater an der Wien. And not the least important is the fact he is the only undethroned king in Central Europe.

While all the other Kings—and kinglets—of the countries which once made up the Central Powers are not only out of jobs, but about as popular with the public as the smallpox, Franz Lehar is more popular than ever before.

There have been many composers who have disputed his title since "The Merry Widow" waltz swept around the world, but with the Viennese public, at least, he has never been forced to yield his throne.

Lehar is still the waltz king of Vienna, and every night he receives the homage of the crowds that flock to the Theater an der Wien to hear his latest melodies.

"Die Blaue Mazur," his latest operetta, is not only the musical sensation of Vienna at the present time, but the greatest success of its kind since "The Merry Widow." The Theater an der Wien, where it has been holding the boards since his fiftieth anniversary last May, is sold out for months in advance—so great is the demand for seats.

This desirable condition (from the box-office standpoint) did not embarrass me, for Herr Lehar invited me to sit in his loge, and I witnessed the performance from a location similar to that of a stage box.

I am more or less familiar with the operetta crops of various parts of the world, in addition to having seen dozens of the Viennese variety on their native heath, so to speak. But "Die Blaue Mazur" ("The Blue Mazurka," to give its literal translation) is easily the best I've encountered since "The Merry Widow." In fact, its score is even more brilliant and tuneful than the earlier work.

"The Blue Mazurka" takes its name from the Polish custom of dancing the last dance of a ball with the blue dawn streaming through the windows. Of course, this last dance is a mazurka, and, of course, two lovers dance it together. There is no occasion to relate its plot. Suffice it to say that it has the rarest of all rare things in the realms of operetta—a good book. And, unlike most

Viennese operettas produced in the formerly gay capital, it is well staged. Four of the most popular players in Austria enact its leading roles—Betty Fischer, Hubert Marischka, Ernst Tautenbain and Louise Kartousch—and, unlike our musical comedy favorites, all four can sing and dance as well as act.

Naturally, the corner stone of "Die Blaue Mazur" is a waltz; but its novelty is the mazurka, from which it takes its name. I never heard such applause in any theater as that which greeted the mazurka in the last act. Betty Fischer and Hubert Marischka were recalled a dozen times to dance to its Polish strains. And when the final curtain fell the audience remained seated until Lehar joined the principal players on the stage and bowed his thanks again and again.

In Vienna the public doesn't wait until a composer is dead to decide whether he is a genius—which is more than can be said for some other capitals.

After the audience had filed out of the theater—it was then 9:30—I went back stage to join Lehar, who had invited me to supper.

The evening meal in Vienna is a movable feast, especially for those who have been to the theater. The restaurants are filled from 8 o'clock until they close, at 11. Eating is still the king of indoor sports—for those who have the price—in spite of the fact that the bulk of the population is supposed to be starving.

In company with Lehar, Fraulein Marie Jeritza, the great prima donna from the opera, and half a dozen lesser lights of the musical world, I supped in a quiet corner of the bar of "Die Holle," a cabaret restaurant beneath the Theater an der Wien. We had an excellent meal, hors d'oeuvres, Wiener roastbraten, potatoes, avragus, chocolate pastry and coffee—not forgetting several bottles of excellent Grinzinger '93, and kirsch.

For if one knows where to go one can dine or sup as well in Vienna as in any capital in Europe. And if one has American dollars a banquet is as inexpensive as a quick lunch in New York. At the present rate of exchange a dollar brings 160 kronen, and even at the Hopfner Grill, Sacher's or Pucher's—three of the best restaurants in Vienna—a hundred kronen go a long way. At the famous Rathauskeller or the Deutsches Haus, where lower prices prevail, an excellent meal is a matter of 60 or 70 cents, including more than enough to drink. And in Vienna enough is plenty.

Indeed, on the surface, Vienna has changed very little. Despite the fact that everyone here will tell you that the city is doomed, no one seems to take it seriously. The bulk of the population is living up to its gay, carefree reputation.

Everyone knows that German Austria cannot exist unless the treaty of Versailles is revised. Everyone knows that a country of six millions cannot support a capital of two millions and a half. But the life of the city goes along just the same. Those with plenty of money—and apparently there are an amazing number of them—fill the theaters, restaurants and race tracks every day.

Those with little money exist through the aid of the various relief organizations. There are many hungry people in Vienna, but there are few gloomy ones. They know they're at the end of their rope—but they don't care a hang. Headless of today, thoughtless of tomorrow, gay Viennese run true to form to their inevitable fate.

We discussed these serious questions with light hearts. Lehar told me how the radical Socialists wanted to make him give up part of his large apartment to house members of the working class.

"I told them," he said, "that I couldn't compose my music unless I had plenty of room. So after a long discussion they allowed me to keep my apartment. They are very stupid, the radical Socialists. They think unless a man works with his hands he doesn't earn his daily bread. I work harder—put in longer hours—than any laborer in Vienna. They want to ruin everything, the stupid fools."

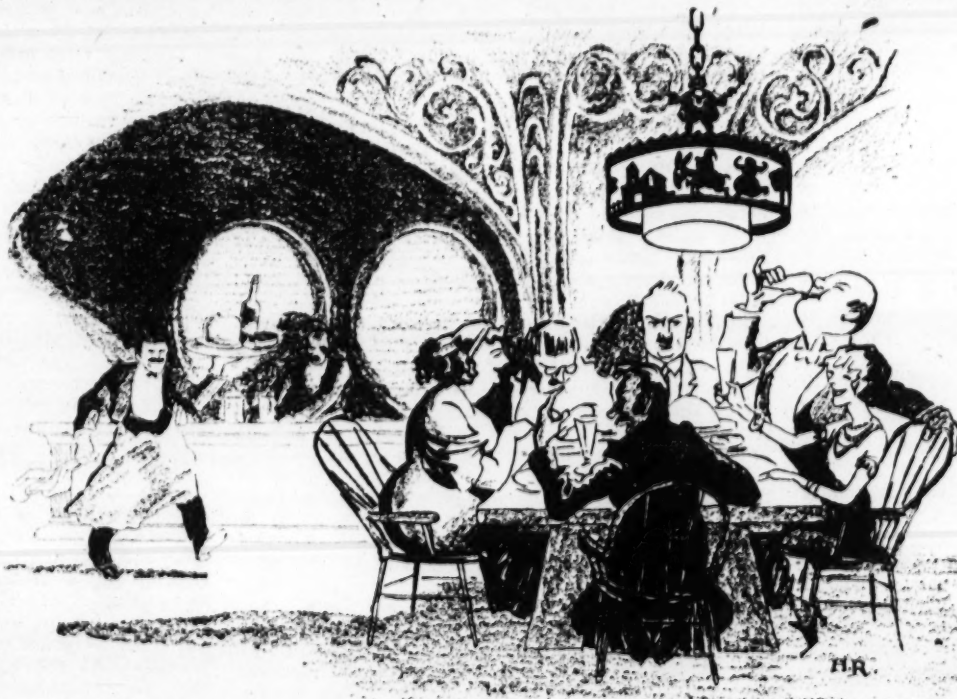

"My brother Toni drove the Bolsheviks out of Budapest," the famous composer went on, referring to his brother, Col. Anton Lehar, one of the outstanding figures in the present militaristic regime in Hungary. "But here we are still too sympathetic to them."

The composer of "The Merry Widow," "The Count of Luxembourg," "Gypsy Love" and a score of other distinctly Viennese operettas explained to me that he had reached the mature age of 50 to discover that he was not a Hungarian, but a Czecho-Slovak.

"The city where I was born, Komoron, has been allocated to Czecho-Slovakia," he said, "so I'm now a citizen of that country. Our poor country has been so badly dissected at Versailles that we don't know what or where we are. Hungarians who don't speak a word of any other language now find themselves Czechs or Rumanians. Many rich people find themselves poor and many workmen find themselves with more money than they ever dreamed of. It's a topsy-turvy part of the world—and what it's all about I don't know. I just keep on writing music—I will have a new operetta at the Johann Strauss Theater at Christmas time—although I don't know why I do so. It's a funny world."

Our repast was indeed so excellent—not to mention the Grinzinger '93—that we lingered over it until long after 11 o'clock, the official closing hour in the Austrian capital. But that did not give anyone any concern. One of the other guests informed me that the police never bothered any restaurant proprietor who stood in with the ring. From which it will be seen that New York and Vienna have at least one thing in common. An officer in front of the theater when we emerged, turned his back on us.

One Thousand Dollars Down

living man who could have dwelt in the same house with Dorothea and have maintained such a Portland cement sort of disposition. "And you're sure there's no chance of a lower price?"

"I hate to say so, Dorothea, but there isn't a chance in a million."

She drew a long breath, and rose—I, too.

"It's too bad," she said, soberly. "And Perry'll never get over it, never! And if we don't make sure of it now, we'll never have the opportunity again; no one who ever lived there would give it up! I'll talk to father, but"— "The worst of it," I said, "is that two parties are flirting with it now. I don't like to disturb you, but I've a duty to Sherbrooke. I've got to make a trade whenever somebody meets his price."

She took a step toward me and gave me her hand. "Promise me you won't let anyone else have it until I've talked to father. I'll know by Saturday at the latest."

"Ah," said I. "An option! All right; I'll give you the refusal of it for 48 hours at that price. But an option, you know, isn't valid without a consideration."

"Isn't it?" said Dorothea. "Is it awfully expensive?"

"The cost of this particular option," I said, "won't bother you a great deal—at least, I hope it won't. It isn't payable right now, either; it's a sort of contingent payment."

"Can't you give me some idea of what it is?"

"I should judge," I said cautiously, "that I'll try to collect it about 10 seconds after the minister says 'Amen!'" Then I raised my voice very circumspcctly. "George," I said to the office boy. "Open the door for Miss Gardner."

It was tactful, but it was a species of privation nevertheless; I should have preferred to open the door myself—and, if you must have it, to lie down peacefully on the farther side of the threshold and be a door mat. That's how much I thought of Dorothea!

And then, all at once, Ryhill was stunned by a revelation which sent Ryhill into a mood of blanket impotence. Dorothea's father, on being solicited for his consent, had refused it outright, and had laid down an ultimatum, phrased in platitudes of finance, arbitrary and irrevocable. Simultaneously there came from Perry's father an objection no less grave. So that two lovers, each the outstanding idol and the genius of the sex in Ryhill, were abruptly dissociated, shocked, disillusioned—and all the town shared in an epidemic of bewilderment.

My own information came straight from headquarters. I had first a telephone message from Dorothea; and although she merely intimated that disaster had come unexpectedly, so that there was nothing to be gained by thinking of real estate, I got a fairly impression of what had happened. And shortly after, Perry hunted me up. He came to me, and looked me squarely in the eyes and pulled me down to a seat beside him, and began to talk quietly, but with a tenseness which showed that he was near the bursting point.

"It's money," he said, with a curiously dry intonation. "Money! Cash! It's a cash proposition! I'm making $35 a week; I told him I thought that plenty to begin on. He laughed at me—laughed at me! He had the nerve to preach at me—and Dorothea told me that he was married himself on half that! He says times have changed! Has to be sure she won't be deprived of—Good heavens! What does he think I'm made of? He told me in plain English I'd have to show him at least three or four thousand in the bank, or else at least three thousand salary! He's made it mercenary—that's all he cares about! Nothing about prospects, nothing about indications, nothing about me personally—but cash!"

"Perry!" I said. "That isn't a death sentence, is it? Can't you reason with your father?"

"My father!" he echoed. "Oh, Lord! I should say I have. He's just as bad! I'm only a boy, a mere child yet! I've got to be advanced slowly, or the old employes'll get sore, and quit! If I'm good, and behave myself, I'll inherit the plant in a couple of centuries, maybe; but, in the meantime, he's got to treat me impartially! I'm the boss' son, I am! There mustn't be any favoritism! Will he loan me any money? No. Don't ask me why not. I'm only his son; I suppose that means my credit's no good! And he knows why I want it, too—to get that house for Dorothea. I'd pay him back for it! Will he tell me how soon I ought to be drawing three thousand a year? No. Says it depends on me, not on him. And if I marry before he thinks I'm financially responsible—bloody! He's through with me!" He glanced at me, and grinned savagely. "It's a merry little world, a merry little world!"

"Of course," I said, "you're of age, Perry"—

"Yes, but I've still got some sense left! I'm not going to antagonize two families and throw up a big future and go out hunting for a new job and try to be married on a shoestring!" He brought his hand down on his knee with a resounding slap. "Mr. Gardner's theory is all right, Dorothea ought to be safeguarded; where we split is on the estimates. So—good-by, house!"

"You're still interested, are you?" I was busily completing a calculation which looked very favorable for Perry.

"More every minute, and Dorothea's heartbroken. I had a notion her father might buy it, and hold it until I could afford to take it over; but under the circumstances I couldn't very well suggest that, either to her or to him. I guess he'd have hooted at it, anyway. And here we are; if we have to wait as long as two years"—

"Two years!" I repeated. "That Sherbrooke property will change hands inside of two weeks. See here, Perry, how much money have you got in the world?"

"Oh, possibly a thousand dollars."

"Then buy the house yourself!"

He stared incredulously at me, and at length a smile began to flicker at the corners of his mouth.

"That's really funny."

"You'll change your mind in a minute or two," I said. "Now there's an option of purchase on that house that expires in about an hour and a half. I'll guarantee it won't be taken up. And you're next and the terms are easy."

"Who owns that option?"

"I'm not at liberty to tell you. But if you care to, you can take the title to that house for $1000 cash. There's a first mortgage of six thousand, and a second mortgage of three. The selling price is twelve. That leaves a balance of two thousand and you can pay it in monthly installments over a period of four years. You'd have to give notes for the periodic payments, and get an indorser; but we could fix that up in no time."

Perry brightened. "Is that so? Let's see, now"—

"A thousand down," I said. "And the interest on the mortgages amounts to, say, five hundred a year. Monthly payments another five hundred, and taxes about a hundred more. Eleven hundred a year altogether. But it's an investment; don't forget that! And after four years, with the increase of value, you'd have an equity of five or six thousand dollars. And while you're waiting, you can probably rent it to somebody for enough to pay all your carrying charges. That is, after your first cash payment, it shouldn't cost you a cent. I tell you, it's a bargain!"

He laughed nervously, and inhaled two or three times with abandon.

"That's all right. But suppose I couldn't find a tenant! It would take two-thirds of my income to carry it, and"—

"Perry, it's due to be ready for occupancy in June, and that's a renting month for the summer season. I don't think you'd have to worry a single second. And as a first-class real estate investment it's a wonder. Only you'll have to speak up; in decency to Sherbrooke I couldn't hold that offer open indefinitely."

He moved forward to the edge of his chair.

"Could you arrange it so nobody'd know? I wouldn't want to have it published; you can see that!"

"Easy! I'd buy it myself, and make a private contract with you. It would be your property, but temporarily in my name. I'd be simply your agent, holding it for you until you want it transferred. I'd make the payments to Sherbrooke, and you'd pay me. I'd give the notes and you'd give me yours, maturing on the same day. And if you and Dorothea really want to live in that house—ever—you'd better say the word."

"If I had a couple of days to think it over."

"A 48-hour option," I said, "will cost you one of those cigarettes. Thank you. And a couple of safety matches for a bonus."

"I wouldn't even want Dorothea to know," he said, reflectively. "I'd want to surprise her with it. And Mr. Gardner shouldn't know either; he's always hammering away about speculations. And my father couldn't know. He'd rant about my recklessness, and—oh, what's the use? I've got to work like thunder and wait for two years, apparently."

"And at the end of two years you'll have a property worth fifteen thousand if it's worth a nickel. Isn't that better than three and a half per cent in a savings bank?"

"True enough," said Perry. "Well, I'll let you hear from me tomorrow."

By the time that he telephoned to me I had a new goal for him.

"Remember I told you two parties were looking at it?" I said. "Well, there's two more now. They came in today, only nibbles, but they have some significance. And your option's still good, Perry, but if you don't exercise it I'll have that place sold by tomorrow morning."

"Who are they? These other people?"

"One's a lawyer, and one's a New York agent. You won't make any mistake, Perry. Let me go ahead and close for you."

"It's a big price," he said thoughtfully; "but Dorothea's so keen about it. I'll go you!"

"Fine!" I said. "That's the way to talk. It's sold!"

He laughed excitedly.

"I'll bring you a check tonight."

"Good!" I said. "We'll clean it up in no time."

"You're sure you can keep it secret?"

"Man, dear, I'm the purchaser—to all intents and purposes. It's your title whenever you want it, but until then it's in my name."

"All right," he said. "I'll be around tonight."

I had the contract ready. I had closed in my own name with Sherbrooke's cousin, who had power of attorney. Perry was jubilant, but naturally apprehensive.

"Now," he said, "we've just got to rent it. Make it for two years. I'm in all over!"

I didn't see Dorothea for nearly a fortnight; but when we found ourselves face to face on Main street one sunny morning, I realized that she must have been living through an agony of indecision. Loyalty to her parents and loyalty to Perry; conservatism and desire; slow years of delay, and immediate happiness; these were the factors she had been struggling to reduce to an equation.

"I suppose our house went long ago?" she said.

"Unfortunately, it did," I said, and as disappointment and chagrin leaped to her eyes I rather wished that I could either have lied more artistically or have told the truth.

"Oh," she said softly. "Poor Perry! Who rented it?"

"It isn't rented; it's sold," I said. "I'm sorry I can't give you the buyer's name, but he bought it through me because he wants to be an undisclosed principal. The only consolation is that it went to somebody who loves it just as much as you do."

"I spoke to father about it," said Dorothea. "But it was so much breath wasted. You've heard the gossip, of course."

"Gossip doesn't interest me. Perry told me."

"And yet they're perfectly sincere, both of them," said Dorothea absently. "Our fathers, I mean. They're thinking about us; but it is hard to realize it, sometimes. Well, it can't be helped now. But even yet I can't think of living anywhere else."

"If Perry's as obstinate as you are, perhaps you won't have to."

"Perry," said Dorothea, smiling, "won't think of it! But I'm going to make him practice. Don't you think I'm philosophical?" and waved me the pleasantest of farewells.

At Perry's desire I had offered the house for rental at twelve hundred; but by one of those frequent mysteries of realty, those who liked the property wanted to buy it, and not to lease it. And, to our dismay, those who talked of buying bailed at a price which would have provided any inducement for Perry to sell. He was both distressed and alarmed; he was already forced to devote two-thirds of his income to the expenses of ownership, and it took a good deal of persuasion on my part to convince him that he hadn't erred.

Then, quite unexpectedly, Kent, the most prominent of Ryhill lawyers, who once before had displayed a passing interest in the tiny estate, came to me again.

"Would you," he inquired, "be satisfied with a 10 per cent net profit? I'll tell you frankly, it'll cost $5000 more to make the changes I'd want to. Put your cards on the table, and I'll give you 10 per cent over and above cost."

I staved him off for a few days and got in communication with Perry.

"There!" I said. "How's that! A profit of $1200, and your capital intact, and you aren't far short of Mr. Gardner's limit. I call it speed. How about it?"

He looked quizzically at me, and a faraway expression dimmed his eyes. Then he stiffened and laughed helplessly.

"If I sell it, I'll be fairly close to having enough money to satisfy Mr. Gardner, won't I?"

"Surely."

"Then where," said Perry, "would Dorothea and I live?"

"But—but the point is—which do you really want?"

"I want to be married," said Perry. "But if I took Dorothea to any other place, why—it's one of those things you can't comprehend unless you're in it. It's sentimental, of course. It's"—

"Would you rather wait two years, then?"

"I don't know," said Perry, greatly harassed. "I don't know! Besides, that profit wouldn't be enough. I'd intended to do what we agreed originally, and have the house to move into two years from now. But if somebody offered us say, fourteen thousand five hundred for it, I'd have to think twice. I think I'd take it. . . . I think so." He shook his head in perplexity. "What a mess!" he said. "It's the one house in Ryhill—and there's Dorothea—and there's the profit; you couldn't have a better example of wanting to eat your cake and have it, too."

"Well, shall I give Kent any encouragement?"

"Ask him fourteen thousand five hundred," said Perry brusquely. "And I don't know whether I'd take it at that!"

I asked, and got myself scorned for too vaulting ambition. Perry went West on a long trip of missionary work for his father, and twice I had to telegraph him; once when another broker offered thirteen thousand

Pittsburg Lawyer Governs Romantic European State

It is the tiny new republic of Rusinia in the Carpathians—Gregory Zsatkovitch, a native son of that oppressed but unquenchable race, the Uhro-Rusins, is heroically shaping it into an up-to-date constitutional democracy.

Zsatkovitch's car shot up by mistake for that of an escaping Hungarian.

A PITTSBURG lawyer is now the romantic ruler of one of the most extraordinary of the new European states. Looking down from the lofty windows of his feudal castle among the Carpathian Mountains, Gregory L. Zsatkovitch can see the rugged land which he helped to free, organize and put on the map. His story is the thrilling one of a leader rising in time of need among a leaderless people, of an American citizen who transformed the tragic oppression of his native race to a free-moving, new-world democracy.

Podkarpatska Rusin is the curious name of the tiny state at the narrow end of the slice-like new republic of Czecho-Slovakia. It lies along the edge of the Carpathians and is the home of the Uhro-Rusins, who, in the days before the war, were the most isolated and persecuted of all the non-Magyar races of Hungary. Although speaking a dialect similar to that of the Ukrainians, and being, like them, a part of the group known as Little Russians, these Uhro-Rusins, or Ruthenians, have been so oppressed by the Magyars, so kept apart by the mountains from their neighbors of Galicia, that they have become a distinct race by themselves, with the hopes, ideals and sorrows of a nation. Today this tiny people have the Czecho-Slovaks on the west, the Ukrainians across the Carpathians, the Rumanians to the southeast and the Magyars to the southwest. Such are the racial problems their American Governor has to face.

In 1886 a son was born to a poor peasant family living in the little town of Holubinia, among the forest-laden mountains of Hungary. As his mother looked at him, squalling and struggling, she doubtless had high visions for his future; but what could the future of a boy born in that oppressed land be but slavery and terror? The Zsatkovitchs, however, were not as placid as their fellow peasants. Perhaps there was a strain of nobility in their line that had not been destroyed by years of Magyarization. Perhaps they were of the original Slavs who are said to have lived along the slopes of the Carpathians even before the arrival of the Magyar Princes. Or perhaps they had been a part of the main body of Russians who arrived along the borderland of Hungary in 1340 under Theodore Koroatovik, and to whom Louis the Great granted the town and castle of Munkacs. Whatever their forbears, the Zsatkovitchs showed spirit, so much so that as the leader of a small district the father of young Gregory became a mark for the Magyar authorities, and was forced to flee in 1891 to America. He left his family in the Carpathians.

In the great furnaces and mills of the Pennsylvania district Zsatkovitch found a chance to work out his salvation. It was a strange jump from the lumbering and sheep-raising quiet of the Carpathians. But here he found thousands of his own countrymen, and within a year he had so prospered that he was able to send for his family; soon he had leaped to a position of prominence among his own kind, and was editing the Uhro-Rusin paper of the Homestead section.

The boy Gregory had left his native mountains when he was only 5 years old. He probably remembered little of their towering grandeur, or of the unhappiness of the people living in oppression under them. There was small chance, however, to grow away from the thought of them, for the mother and father were staunch patriots. They taught him the legendry and the sorrows of his own land; they bred in him the desire to free his people.

As a child Gregory was given the advantages that his father had missed. He was sent to the public schools in Homestead, then went on to New York and went through De Witt Clinton High School; he was graduated from Duquesne University in Pittsburg, and went to the University of Pennsylvania Law School.

After his graduation from law school with high honors, he was admitted to the Pittsburg bar and became associated with Attorney Frank Piekarski. Piekarski will be remembered as a famous Penn State football star. The two partners were ambitious, thorough, keen and pleasant. Their practice grew. They became extremely successful among the foreign-speaking people.

Attorney Zsatkovitch was now a prosperous American. He was a naturalized citizen. He married a charming American girl from Ohio. In the exclusive Squirrel Hill district of Pittsburg, with his children and his friends, Gregory Zsatkovitch was leading a quiet, happy existence.

He had not forgotten, however, that pitiful race, wedged in among the quarreling nationalities of Central Europe.

The war came, with its upheaval of peoples. President Wilson made his famous declaration on the rights of self-government and self-determination. To the thousands of Uhro-Rusins in this country it came as a searchlight, firing again their smoldering dreams of freedom.

They were a tiny nation. In 1916 it was estimated that in Hungary there were only 464,529 of them. In America there are 52 parishes of their Greek church, with 19,010 families, which might reach a total of many more individuals, so it can readily be seen why the American Rusins felt it their duty to initiate the move for freeing their countrymen. The American Council of Uhro-Rusins was therefore formed. Young Zsatkovitch was well known to these men as a patriot, both because of his dead father's memory, and because of his own zeal. He was chosen as legal adviser to the council.

Gregory Zsatkovitch does not undertake things half-heartedly. He closed his law office and gave himself and his money to the task of freeing the oppressed Rusins.

One day Congressman Guy E. Campbell was sitting in his office. A young man came in quickly. He was quick-spoken and alert.

"I want to free Rusinia, and I want to see President Wilson about it," declared Zsatkovitch to the Congressman.

"Where is Rusinia?" shot back that dignitary. "I've studied geography, but I never heard of Rusinia. Are you kidding me?"

Attorney Zsatkovitch then pointed out the tiny people and their hopes and aspirations.

It was not an easy time to see the President. The Americans were waging the great offensive of the Argonne and the Germans were negotiating for an

ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS DOWN.

By HOLWORTHY HALL

HE WAKED me out of a sound sleep at midnight, but I had to forgive him because our friendship was sturdy and his news was great. He made me get up and put on a dressing gown and furnish him with tobacco, and light a pipe myself; and then he told me, feverishly and in fine detail, how lucky he was (which I promptly conceded) and how a certain girl named Dorothea Gardner was beyond all praise (which I had always known), and exactly what had happened to them, and who was to be the best man.

"I just had to tell somebody! Now! Tonight!" said Perry, tramping the floor excitedly. He was a little flushed, and handsomer than ever; his bigness and his boyishness, added to his exultation, made him quite irresistible, even to me, so newly dragged from sleep. "I knew you'd be glad. It's incredible, isn't it? Absolutely incredible. It's unreal—just think! And, besides"—He laughed at high pressure. "And besides, there's some business in it for you!"

"Business! I'm not a jeweler!"

Perry halted, remained for a moment in apparent adoration of vacancy, and resumed his triumphal march.

"It's the house on the old Sherbrooke lot," he said, smoking furiously. "I've always admired that spot; the trees are wonderful. And the house they're building there—it's perfect, absolutely perfect! We've been going up there nearly every evening. Dorothea's crazy about it, and so am I. It was up there tonight we found this out—we must have that house to live in! She wants it."

"Oh!" I said. "So that's the idea! Well, it isn't impossible. Sherbrooke had to go to Russia a month ago; but we've got the place on our books."

"I know you have! And it won't be finished for another two months, anyway. I want it for Dorothea."

"The rent," I said, "is twelve hundred."

Perry stopped and stared at me, and opened and shut his mouth several times without saying anything. The flush on his face deepened and his eyes grew wider and wider. Finally he caught his breath, and indicted me, which was unfair, because I had merely quoted Sherbrooke's minimum figure.

"Nonsense! Oh, you're joking! Twelve hundred a year! Why, that's—it's an outrage! I never heard of such a thing! Twelve hundred dollars for a simple little cottage like that? You're dreaming!"

"No; you are," I assured him. "Why, Perry, that house has nine rooms; four master's bedrooms and a sleeping porch!"

"I know all that! But you can't sit there and tell me—"

"Summer dining room and vapor vacuum heating system; one and a quarter acres!"

"But—twelve—hundred—dollars!" said Perry weakly.

"Fifteen minutes from the station; 40 minutes from the city; cost the owner approximately $11,000."

"Including the land, I suppose," said Perry, and relapsed into profound melancholy. "Twelve—hundred—dollars a year! I could just about afford the cellar and a part of the attic and the kitchen sink!"

"Rentals are ridiculously high these days," I reminded him. "And houses are scarce, awfully scarce."

"I'm simply staggered!" said Perry. "We used to go up to that lot to watch sunsets. We've seen that house go up bit by bit; we sat on the first piles of lumber—crawled around on the floor beams; we know every nail that's gone into it! It's just large enough and not an inch too large—and Dorothea's felt the same way about it. And tonight! Well, I sort of—you see, that house is a part of the whole scheme. It belongs to it! It never occurred to me I couldn't have it; and Dorothea!"—He broke off sharply.

"Is she as enthusiastic as you are?"

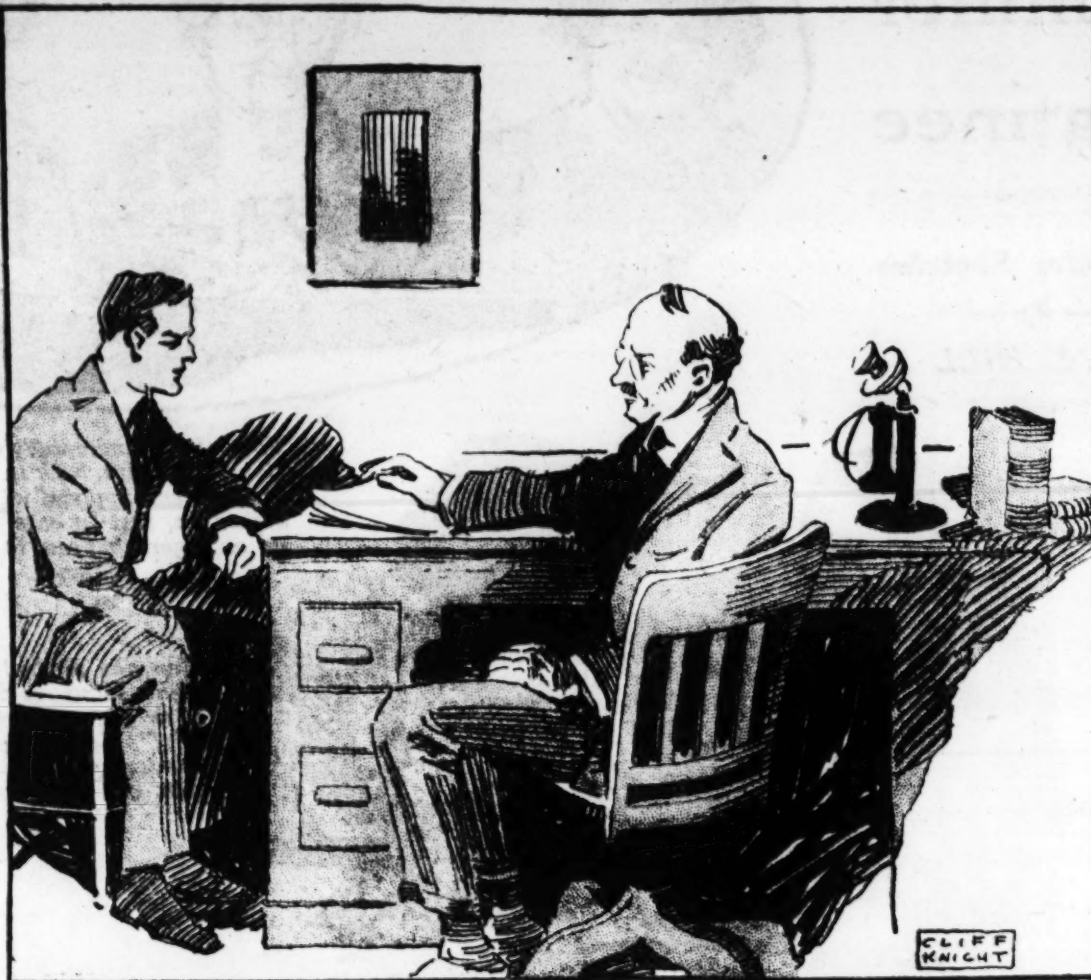

"As enthusiastic as—Why, I want it, of course. But she's mad about it! You don't understand. It's the combination of the land and the house. That's the last scrap of land there is on the hill, and the house fits it. I thought it might possibly run up to sixty a month; but—$1200! Honestly, is that the lowest?"

"I gave you the rock-bottom figure. The asking price was a good deal higher. Fourteen hundred. And two parties have already looked it over. But I gave you the inside price."

"Well," said Perry, hesitating, "it probably wouldn't do any good to dicker, would it?"

"Hardly. Sherbrooke left instructions in black and white, and, of course, if I get a chance to make a deal"

"That's all right. You've got to protect Sherbrooke,

"I'm making thirty-five dollars a week. I told him I thought that plenty to begin on."

certainly. Well"—Perry picked up his hat and moved toward the door—"I don't mind telling you it's an awful wallop. I'd make every sacrifice to get that house for her; maybe I can scheme it out some way yet. Anyway, I'll see you later."

"Right!" I said. "And you know how pleased I am about this other thing, don't you? The sooner the better, too—and I'll be ring holder, clergyman payer, trunk checker and all that on 10 minutes' notice."

"Wish I could give it to you now," said Perry. "Well—good-night."

"Good-night," I said. "And, Perry, if you really want to know my private opinion—you're both lucky!"

It was on the following morning that Dorothea Gardner came for the first time to my office. I had known her since the age at which we were passionately devoted to peppermint lozenges and animal crackers; but so far she had never honored my business quarters by her presence. She didn't believe in confusing commerce and society, and she made it clear to the office boy, to the stenographer and to me as well, that she had come on business and for nothing else.

I could never regard her as a merely "pretty" girl. She was small, but not little; she was a woman on a small scale, and not a schoolgirl who had neglected to grow up. She was intrinsically lovable—which means that she said things and did things to make people love her, and not merely that she attracted men by the accidental consolidation of her features. And she was an unusually fascinating girl at that, with deep, dark eyes which had plenty of intelligence in them, not devoid of humor; a marvelous complexion, which owed far more to her habits than to the apothecary's counter; and, above everything, she had a manner that was so gay and serious and playful and dignified and so bewitchingly mature, and at the same time so spontaneous, that she baffled all men with her quick-changing spirits, and she took the worst photograph in the world, except when she was tired, and then the reproduction didn't do her justice.

Dorothea, trusting that friendship would outweigh the traditional avarice of real estate agents, told me precisely what I had hardened myself to hear.

"It isn't like an ordinary house to us, now," she said, with a very unbusinesslike little tremor in her voice. "It's as though it belonged to us. There's a sort of—"

of glamour about it. I can't explain. It just is! And Perry probably wouldn't like my coming to see about it this way, but—why, it was up on that hill that we"—Her color deepened. "All this year," she said, with obvious repression, "we've been going there; and falling in love with it more all the time. What I want is to get the—the terms, you know. Don't tell Perry, please, but I'm going to try to get father to buy it for us."

I could only give her the facts. I didn't tell her of my talk with Perry about it. That was an incident, exactly as this present occasion was an incident, for them to learn by themselves, because there would be mutual appreciation of motives.

"It really isn't a high price," I said. "On the contrary, it's a rare bargain. I've thought pretty seriously of buying it myself, to hold for an advance; but if you want it, it's yours."

"It does sound high to me," she admitted; "but then, I don't know much about values. Could it be rented? I mean, could Perry afford it? What is the rent?"

I told her that, and saw her start in amazement, for Perry's salary was eighteen hundred a year, and here was a ratio she could comprehend.

"Oh!" she said with a grimace of regret. "That saves us a lot of trouble, doesn't it? You're positive, are you?"

"I'm positive, dear," I said, and caught the stenographer's eye across a filing cabinet. "Dear as it is," I tacked on instantly, "it's worth it."

She shook her head slowly, and there was no optimism in her gaze.

"It'll be terribly hard on Perry; he's set his heart on that house. I have, too, but Perry's crazy about it. I thought he might be able to take a lease on it if father wouldn't buy it for us; but that's hopeless." She smiled bravely, but it seemed to me that her eyelids were quivering more than usual. "And when you sit under those trees, and look off over the valley, and the other hills and the river"—

"I'll send a note to your father, if you think he'd"

"No; please don't!" said Dorothea quickly. "I'm afraid it's useless, anyway; but I'll have to be diplomatic about it!"

She was right. I knew her father; he was the only

There is a scientifically correct way to repress the annoying moisture of underarm perspiration and to banish even the slightest suggestion of its attendant evils. And without staining the sheerest waist or finest lingerie.

It is a new way, exquisite, harmless and dainty. It is with Immac, a crystal clear and colorless lotion that is more to be treasured than any other toilet accessory.

For Immac does even more than effect the refreshing underarm dryness so essential to perfect daintiness. It protects one's finest frocks and flimsies against the havoc of perspiration. And Immac can not stain. It is soothingly antiseptic and may be used freely whenever required. Merely ask for Immac at your dealer's.

Immac gives delightful freedom from all suggestion of perspiration annoyance.

AFTER

IMPERIAL GRANUM

Food for the BABY

BABY McCORMICK, Brooklyn, N. Y.

There is a mother in Halsey St., Brooklyn, who feels that all mothers should know how Imperial Granum helped her little daughter. She told us this—

Her baby weighed 7½ lbs. at birth. At 4 months only 5 lbs. when she should have weighed 14 lbs. After trying every known food and formula, she was started on Imperial Granum, and in 2 months gained 2 lbs. At 1 year she now weighs 23 lbs. And the little mother enthusiastically concluded "I cannot say more than this, Imperial Granum saved my baby's life."

DO NOT EXPERIMENT WITH YOUR BABY. Get Imperial Granum and make up the feedings according to your baby's weight. It is a wholesome wheat food, full of vegetable protein and bone-forming phosphates, and its nourishment is unequalled. It may be used with any form of milk. In fact, all milk needs Imperial Granum to complete the nourishment and ensure digestibility.

Little Babies' Birthdays come Every Month. We want to give yours a little rag doll the next birthday.

LODEUR
Chantilly

Recalling in its every breath those flowering gardens of Old Chantilly, and the sparkling ballroom with its dainty figures floating through the quadrille—whispering graceful flattery behind a sweetly-scented fan.

All the charms of the romantic French Courts seem to be distilled in Parfum Chantilly—its stumptuousness, its subtlety, its rare fragrance that intrigues the senses with its whimsical appeal.

Blackheads are a confession

Blackheads are caused by excessive oil collecting dirt in the pores of the skin. Their presence is a confession that you are using the wrong method of cleansing for your type of skin.

To cleanse thoroughly skins liable to this disfiguring trouble, use the following special treatment: Apply hot cloths to the face until the skin is reddened. Then with a rough washcloth work up a heavy lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap and rub it into the pores thoroughly, always with an upward and outward motion. Rinse with clear hot water, then with cold—the colder the better. If possible, rub your face for thirty seconds with a piece of ice. Dry carefully.

To remove blackheads already formed, substitute a flesh brush for the washcloth in the treatment above. Then protect the fingers with a handkerchief and press out the blackheads.

Keep your skin free of blackheads by the above treatment and gain the clear, attractive skin that the regular use of Woodbury's brings.

Get a cake of Woodbury's Facial Soap and begin tonight the treatment your skin needs. You will find Woodbury's on sale at any drug store or toilet goods counter in the United States or Canada. A 25 cent cake will last a month or six weeks.

"To win, secure a satin skin"

All admire a satin skin. Its captivating daintiness lures glances that linger longingly. This beauty boon is now within your reach. The maker of Satin Skin Cream and Satin Skin Powder generously gives readers of the Post-Dispatch trial sizes of four of the famous Satin Skin Specialties. Just send an addressed stamped return envelope and your own druggist's name to Satin Skin Laboratory, 45 Wood Bldg., Detroit. Regular sizes sold by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co.

That Thin Spot

Thinning hair is a sure sign that your scalp is inactive and the roots of the hair are not in a normal condition. Don't neglect your scalp. Dust, excess oil, perspiration, dandruff and other impurities clog up the hair ducts, prevent the natural growth of the hair and soon it falls out.

Coconut Shampoo will keep your hair and scalp clean, stimulate the circulation of the blood in the underlying tissues, and promote a thick growth of lustrous hair. Try this perfect shampoo.
